2013 Annual Meeting

Surfing the Next Wave:
The Future of Construction Law and Practice

April 25-27, 2013
St. Regis Monarch Beach Resort
Dana Point, CA
The future starts on the West Coast – just ask your kids – so it is only appropriate that the Forum’s 2013 Annual Meeting takes us to the sparkling shores of sunny Southern California to learn about the future direction of construction law and construction law practice. Halfway between Los Angeles and San Diego, the incomparable St. Regis Monarch Beach Resort and Spa in Dana Point, California will be home to you and your family while you learn from some of the most insightful academics, industry experts and practitioners about how globalization and new technologies will affect your clients and your practice in the years to come.

The two-and-a-half day program features sessions on the legal issues arising from new on-site construction technologies, new procurement and project management technologies, and the future of construction insurance and bonding, preference programs on public projects and workforce issues, as well as the impact of globalization on construction dispute resolution. Other sessions focus on the practice of construction law, from a construction lawyers’ technology expo featuring cutting-edge new hardware and software to enhance your client service, to an in-depth look at where the practice of construction law is headed in the future, to a live demonstration on the future of preserving, finding and presenting construction project data at trial.

Thursday evening’s Welcome Reception is a can’t-miss occasion on the Grand Lawn of the St. Regis overlooking the Pacific Ocean. On Friday morning, spouses and guests can attend a cooking class and wine tasting at Laguna Culinary Arts in nearby Laguna Beach. Friday features separate luncheon sessions hosted by the Forum’s Divisions, giving you the opportunity to choose from among many topics and speakers and network in a smaller setting. Friday afternoon, the Forum Young Lawyers Section, teamed with the Surfrider Foundation, will lead us on a community service volunteer project to clean up a nearby ocean beach.

Saturday morning’s program is an entirely new format focused on YOUR FUTURE. Designed for veteran rainmakers and new associates alike, you will have the opportunity to attend three out of four different interactive workshops, focusing on ethical business development skills for construction lawyers. Saturday morning concludes with a very special presentation to which your entire family is invited, by featured speaker Dr. David A. Wolf, a NASA astronaut who headed the construction of the International Space Station. Dr. Wolf will also sign autographs for young and old! The Forum Golf Tournament will be Saturday afternoon at the oceanfront course adjacent to the hotel, or you can be part of a Forum first - a Croquet Tournament on the resort grounds.

So bring along your surfboard and join us for a memorable Forum experience that combines advanced construction CLE, enjoying the fellowship of your colleagues, and delighting in all that a legendary Southern California beach community has to offer!

THE LEGAL ISSUES ARISING FROM FUTURE ON-SITE CONSTRUCTION TECHNOLOGIES

The construction industry is finally focusing on its lack of productivity and efficiencies compared to other industries and is looking to advanced technology to change the paradigm. This session looks at the potential roles of emerging super hi-technology in construction, including robotics, modular construction, new contracting and administration techniques, and some key legal issues that may arise with the use of these new and emerging construction concepts, methods and materials.

PREFERENCE PROGRAMS IN PUBLIC PROJECTS: WILL THIS TREND CONTINUE?

This session is an opportunity to learn about future trends in federal, state and local government procurement, and particularly the expansion of programs to involve disadvantaged, small and local, disabled veteran-owned, minority-owned, and women-owned contractors, subcontractors, and suppliers, to require use of U.S. and local products and services (Buy America, ARRA and state/local initiatives) to protect particular industry sectors (anti-bid shopping laws), and to provide greater access to bonding and credit for small and emerging contractors.

THE FUTURE OF CONSTRUCTION INSURANCE AND BONDING

What is the future of construction insurance and bonding and the law that governs them? Will domestic and international underwriting standards, coverages, and policy language begin to merge? Will there continue to be coverage for construction defects? Will subcontractor default insurance continue to make inroads into the surety market and will law governing it develop? Will legislatures eliminate the statutory requirements for bonds? All this and more will be addressed by our expert panel.

THE CONSTRUCTION LAWYER’S
TECHNOLOGY TOOLBOX
(Presented in conjunction with the ABA Law Practice Management Section)
The ABA Model Rules of Professional Conduct now state that a lawyer should keep abreast of changes in the law and its practice, “including the benefits and risks associated with relevant technology.” This session showcases both hardware and software beneficial to a construction lawyer’s practice, while both in and out of the office. These new practice management tools have the potential to enhance client service many-fold, and are likely integral to the new paradigm that is “practicing construction law” in the 21st Century.

LEGAL SERVICES ARISING FROM NEW PROCUREMENT AND PROJECT MANAGEMENT TECHNOLOGIES
New technologies are revolutionizing the way projects are bid, negotiated, memorialized, and managed. This session examines the legal services that will likely be spawned by future advances in procurement and back office project management, such as internet-based procurement, reverse online auctions, on-line real time simultaneous contract drafting and negotiation, and location-based scheduling.

The increasing prevalence of local hire requirements, right to work statutes, and diversity programs will also be analyzed, along with the use of foreign workers in the U.S. and U.S. workers employed cross-border.

FORECASTING CHANGE IN CONSTRUCTION LAW PRACTICE — IDENTIFYING THE TRENDS AND TOOLS FOR THRIVING IN A CHANGING MARKETPLACE

This session explores how the construction business is changing and where the practice of construction law is headed. Given the dramatic need for construction services in the developing world, how will this globalization of the industry impact U.S. construction lawyers? What effect will the emergence of the “non-firm” law firm, contract lawyers, and outsourcing of legal services have? How will growing pressure to control fees and costs drive law firms’ use of technology and the possible use of construction litigation funding? Future consumers of legal services will likely demand counsel with higher levels of specialization, so how can small firms and solo practice lawyers compete in a more segmented legal market?

PLENARY 8
THE FUTURE IS NOW — THE IMPACT OF GLOBALIZATION ON CONSTRUCTION DISPUTE RESOLUTION

The project may be in your backyard, but the architect is from Sweden, the general contractor is owned by a Spanish conglomerate, and the steel is from China. Your local project may use the FIDIC contract forms, not AIA; and the UN Convention on the International Sale of Goods, not the UCC; and the New York Convention, not the Federal Arbitration Act, may be the governing law. Dispute resolution is as likely to be under ICC, ICDR, LCIA, or UNCITRAL rules as AAA. International norms are revolutionizing construction contracting and will influence the dispute resolution process. This session will explore the impacts of globalization on the future of domestic dispute resolution.

THE TRIAL TIME MACHINE — THE FUTURE OF PRESERVING, FINDING, AND PRESENTING CONSTRUCTION PROJECT DATA AT TRIAL

(Apresented in conjunction with the Construction Litigation Committee of the ABA Litigation Section)

A jurist, two construction lawyers, and a trial presentation consultant are our time-traveling tour guides as we embark on a journey to explore construction projects managed in the cloud, the electronic exchange and collaboration of project data, real time monitoring and preservation of events, and computer-assisted predictive coding for electronic document searches. Learn how these technological changes will impact how lawyers present project data in the trials and arbitrations of the future.

YOUR FUTURE — HOW TO GET NEW CLIENTS ETHICALLY — THE ETHICS OF BUSINESS DEVELOPMENT FOR CONSTRUCTION LAWYERS

8:20 AM – 8:50 AM
ETHICAL BUSINESS DEVELOPMENT STRATEGIES THAT CAN ADD NEW CLIENTS AND GROW REVENUE

As you traverse the internet highway and its many social media off-ramps, it is essential that you avoid certain ethics “speed traps.” Most State Bars have adopted the American Bar Association Model Rules of Professional (ABA MRPC). Those that have not, like California, follow the ABA MRPC very closely. However, there are a few states that have differences from the ABA MRPC and in many,
but not all of those instances, the ABA MRPC are more conservative. In thirty minutes this course will provide an overview of how you can develop strategies that steer away from malpractice as you propel towards a more prosperous career.

8:50 AM – 10:50 AM
BUSINESS DEVELOPMENT
WORKSHOPS
(Four Concurrent Workshops, 40 Minutes
each—Repeated so that you can attend three Workshops)

WORKSHOP A.
ETHICAL AND EFFECTIVE WAYS TO USE THE INTERNET.

WORKSHOP B.
ETHICAL AND EFFECTIVE WAYS TO IDENTIFY AND NETWORK AT EVENTS AND CONFERENCES.

Marketing and networking can be rewarding, but be warned. ABA Model Rules 5.5, 7.1 and 7.4
limit a lawyer’s ability to use puffery or exaggerate legal knowledge. These rules also limit how you can use non-lawyer staff in your practice. So how do you “work a room” without violating the rules?
The panelists will discuss the rules and how you can successfully avoid the pitfalls.

Elizabeth B. Howard
Boyd & Jenerette PA, Jacksonville, FL

Amy Phillips
Arcadis U.S., Inc., Columbia, MD

WORKSHOP C.
ETHICAL AND EFFECTIVE WAYS TO COMMUNICATE WITH FORMER CLIENTS, MAKE COLD CALLS, AND ENCOURAGE REFERRAL SOURCES.

Can I approach past clients that I advised when at a previous firm? Can I offer other attorneys referral fees? Can I offer client advice over the phone?
The faculty will discuss which rules of professional conduct apply and how to best comply with them.

Julia Blackwell Gelinas
Frost Brown Todd LLC, Indianapolis, IN

Jerry Dow
Exponent, Inc., Oakland, CA

WORKSHOP D.
RESPONDING TO RFPS AND DOING ETHICAL AND EFFECTIVE
PITCHES AND INTERVIEWS, WITH PROSPECTIVE CLIENTS.

Lawyers frequently do not recognize that certain duties and obligations, under the Model Rules, apply when a lawyer agrees to consider whether
a lawyer-client relationship shall be established.
This includes, without limitation, responding to a prospective client’s request for proposal or qualifications. The panelists will discuss which rules of professional conduct apply and how to best comply with those rules.

(All Attendees and Guests are Welcome)

Dr. David A. Wolf, Astronaut
David A. Wolf, with seven space walks and 168 days in orbit under his belt, has both an Electrical Engineering degree and is an M.D. Dr. Wolf will narrate a video shot largely in Earth orbit depicting one of the greatest construction projects ever undertaken by humankind, building the International Space Station. Dr. Wolf led the NASA spacewalk team that conducted over 100 spacewalks to complete this orbiting laboratory now at full operational capability. Dr. Wolf was intimately involved in the development, testing, and on-orbit execution of the unique construction methods conducted in the weightless vacuum of space, while travelling over 17,000 miles per hour, with temperature excursions of over 500 degrees. He provides an overview of operations inside the Space Station as well as bringing this historic construction effort to life in a presentation that all ages will long remember.
