8:30 a.m. – 10:00 a.m.
Metro Toronto Convention Centre
Room 705, 700 Level

Cosponsored by Section of Administrative Law, Commission on Immigration

This panel will discuss the Postville, Iowa raids and subsequent criminal prosecutions of the workers and the corporation's top officials, including the relevant case law and changes that have occurred since this time. We will focus on the swift prosecutions of the workers, lack of immigration advice, and due process concerns in the proceedings. The panel will then turn to the internal investigation of Agri-Processors, and the prosecution of the heads of the company. Finally, the panel will discuss what worked, what didn't, and provide guidance for practitioners on all sides as to how to better and more effectively handle these cases in the future, including preventative measures that corporations can take.
