

Features

4 How to Share Parenting
So that “equal access” means
“the best of both parents”
By Susan A. Dwyer

8 One, Two, Buckle My Shoe
Crafting age-appropriate parenting plans for your children
By Jonathan Gould

12 Should Your Infant Spend the Night?
What the experts say about overnight visits for young children
*By Marc J. Ackerman &
Colleen M. Drosdeck*

16 Should Your Adolescent Have a Say?
By Jeffrey C. Siegel & Michael C. Gottlieb

20 Parenting Plan Coordinators
When you need professional help to make joint decisions
By Christine A. Coates

23 All Parenting Plans Are Not Equal
By Marsha Kline Pruett

27 Relocation Realities
Developing a long-distance parenting plan
By Leslie Ellen Shear

32 When Your Child Says “No, I Don’t Want to Go!”
By Lyn R. Greenberg

36 Who Knows Where the Time Goes?
One judge’s perspective on shared parenting
By Hon. Robert Schnider

40 When the Conflict Continues
The right parenting plan can help defuse tensions
By Robin M. Deutsch

46 Problems with the Plan
What are your alternatives to litigation?
By Richard F. Gould-Saltman

48 Books & More:
A Parenting Plan Bibliography

SERVING AS THE NATIONAL LEADER IN THE FIELD OF MARITAL AND FAMILY LAW
KNOWLEDGE • EXPERTISE • NETWORKING

© (2010) American Bar Association. Reprinted with permission. This publication may be downloaded and stored on a single computer or moved to and used on another computer. Sample forms, articles, and letters may be reproduced by the original purchaser (or single transferee) in conjunction with his or her individual professional practice. This publication or any portion thereof may not be otherwise copied or disseminated in any form, including but not limited to print or electronic form, or by any means or otherwise downloaded or stored in an electronic database or retrieval system without the express written consent of the American Bar Association.