I make my living representing owners, contractors and subcontractors involved in the construction sector. Not a day goes by when at least one of my clients does not encounter a labor or employment issue affecting their workforce. And while I try mightily to stay abreast of the ever changing laws and regulations affecting our industry, I am not an employment law specialist. Thus, I was thrilled to hear that the ABA Forum on Construction Law was issuing a Second Edition of "The Construction Lawyer’s Guide to Labor & Employment law."

As with all Forum publications, this Guide provides a wonderful resource to lawyers serving the construction sector. The breadth of issues covered, and the straightforward, easy-to-understand manner in which they are addressed, makes it easy for non-employment lawyers like me to "triage" any number of employment law challenges that impact our client’s business. I’m sure you will come to rely on this resource as much as I have.

R. Harper Heckman
Nexsen Pruet, PLLC, Greensboro, NC
2015-2016 Chair, The American Bar Association’s Forum on Construction Law