

About the Authors

Lawrence Singer (Author, Editor)

Larry Singer is the Director of the Beazley Institute for Health Law and Policy at Loyola University Chicago School of Law. He is also the Associate Dean of Distance Learning and an Associate Professor at Loyola. Larry's primary teaching and research focus is on transactional and regulatory matters, as well as access to care.

Larry was previously an attorney, and then partner, with the Chicago office of McDermott Will & Emery, where his practice focused on general corporate and transactional matters, medical staff affairs, and patient care issues. He also served as assistant to the general counsel of the American Hospital Association and as legal counsel in the American Hospital Association's Office of Legal and Regulatory Affairs. While there, Larry was one of the authors of an amicus curiae brief to the U.S. Supreme Court in the case of Cruzan v. Missouri Department of Health.

Larry has been recognized multiple times as a "super lawyer" in health law. He also has been inducted as a Fellow into the Institute of Medicine of Chicago. Larry has served on and chaired multiple boards, including those for a large regional health system, a facility for the developmentally disabled, and a local chapter of United Way. Larry received his Bachelor's degree, Master's degree, and Juris Doctor from the University of Michigan.

Megan Bess (Author, Editor)

Megan Bess is the Associate Director of the Beazley Institute for Health Law and Policy at Loyola University Chicago School of Law. She oversees all department operations, including strategic planning, development and implementation of student and academic policies, management of health law degree programs, externship placement and site relationships, marketing, and financial operations. Megan counsels and advises health law students on academic matters and career and externship placement in the health law field. Megan also teaches “Introduction to Legal Writing and Legal Study” for Loyola’s online health law program.

Prior to working at Loyola, Megan was an associate attorney in the litigation group of Winston & Strawn. She earned her certification in mediation from the Center for Conflict Resolution in Chicago. Megan has served on the Youth Guidance Metro Board and on the board of the Chicago Chapter of the American Constitution Society. She volunteers with Rape Victim Advocates and at the East Lakeview Food Pantry. Megan received her Bachelor of Science degree from the University of Arizona and her Juris Doctor from Vanderbilt University Law School.

Kristin Finn (Author, Editor)

Kristin Finn is the Program Coordinator of the Beazley Institute for Health Law and Policy at Loyola University Chicago School of Law. Kristin works closely with the Director and Associate Director in overseeing the operations of the Institute. Kristin assists in student academic and career advising, budget management, and developing and coordinating Institute programming. Kristin is also the liaison between the Institute and adjunct faculty, the Annals of Health Law journal, and the Health Law Society. Kristin also teaches the course “Health Law Seminar Series” for Loyola’s online health law program.

Prior to joining the Beazley Institute, Kristin received a Juris Doctor from Loyola University Chicago School of Law, where she was a Student Bar Association representative and an editor of the Children’s Legal Rights Journal. Kristin also holds a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science from Saint Louis University.

Marianne Deagle (Contributor, Chapters 5 and 6)

Marianne Deagle is the Assistant Dean in the Office of Career Services at Loyola University Chicago School of Law. Marianne received her Bachelor’s degree from the University of Michigan and her Juris Doctor from Washburn Law School. Following law school, Marianne worked for the Kansas Corporation Commission doing public utility regulatory law, and for the Department of Social and Rehabilitation Services doing health care policy. Immediately prior to joining Loyola, she was the Manager of Legal Recruiting at two large law firms.
