
ABOUT THE AUTHORS

J. Craig Campbell is a member of the litigation section of Hand Arendall LLC in Mobile, Alabama. He practices construction law as well as other areas of commercial litigation, including product liability, trucking, personal injury, and insurance coverage. He received his BA, summa cum laude, from Georgetown College, and his JD, cum laude, from the Cumberland School of Law. Mr. Campbell is a member of the American Bar Association's Forum on the Construction Industry and of the Alabama State Bar's Section on the Construction Industry.

Robert M. Connolly is Chairman of Stites & Harbison. He resides in Louisville, Kentucky, and practices in the firm's Business Litigation, Torts & Insurance, and Construction Service Groups. He has tried over 80 cases to jury verdicts in several states. He is a graduate of Dartmouth College (1977) and Washington & Lee University School of Law (1980).

W. Stephen Dale presently serves as the U.S. General Counsel for WSP/Parsons Brinckerhoff and formerly served as the Assistant General Counsel for Litigation with Parsons Brinckerhoff. WSP/Parsons Brinckerhoff is one of the world's leading professional services firms in its industry, working with governments, businesses, architects, and planners to provide integrated solutions to transform the built environment and restore the natural environment.

Mr. Dale was formerly a partner with the law firm of Smith Pachter McWhorter, PLC, a construction and public contract boutique located outside of Washington, DC. While in private practice, Mr. Dale represented contractors and design professionals before federal, state, and regional tribunals on a variety of complex infrastructure projects.

Nkoyo-Ene Effiong is an associate in the Atlanta office of Nelson Mullins Riley & Scarborough LLP where she practices education law. She advises clients on facilities and operations matters including construction, procurement, and contract negotiation as well as matters related to governance and policy. Ms. Effiong is a member of the American Bar Association Forum on Construction and the Georgia Association of Black Women Attorneys.

Jennifer Fletcher is co-leader of the Litigation Practice Group of Sutherland, Asbill & Brennan LLP and previously served as leader of the Construction Industry Practice Group and as a member of the firm's Executive Committee. Her practice involves construction industry issues exclusively. She has served as lead counsel and successfully resolved complex construction disputes throughout the country and internationally, representing construction managers, developers, general contractors, owners, municipalities, and specialty contractors.

Ms. Fletcher has served as lead counsel in many jury and bench trials, arbitrations, appellate arguments, court appearances, and mediations. She has extensive jury trial experience, including winning the largest construction jury verdict in Nevada, in 2003. Ms. Fletcher has also settled complex cases without the need for trials and has experience in deciding cases, having served as an arbitrator on the American Arbitration Association Construction Industry Panel for more than 20 years.

William G. Geisen is current Chair of the Construction Service Group for Stites & Harbison PLLC. He is a magna cum laude graduate of Xavier University and earned his JD from the University of Kentucky College of Law. Mr. Geisen is a Fellow of the American College of Construction Lawyers and a Fellow of the Litigation Counsel of America. He is a Kentucky Super Lawyer; is listed in Best Lawyers in America for Construction Law; and is listed in Chambers USA, “America’s Leading Lawyers for Business” in the Construction Law area.

Peter Halls is a partner at Faegre Baker Daniels LLP. He has handled a wide range of construction issues, including drafting contract documents, identifying potential claims, negotiating claims, conducting mediations, and handling arbitrations and trials. He has represented clients in construction projects in most U.S. states and several foreign countries, including Russia, Germany, China, India, and Canada. Mr. Halls has been involved in negotiating, reviewing, and drafting several billion dollars’ worth of construction contracts and has prepared contracts for some of the largest owners, designers, and contractors in the world. Mr. Halls is a fellow in the American College of Construction Lawyers and has been Chair of the Minnesota State Bar Association Construction Law Section, Chair of the International Construction Division of the American Bar Association Forum Committee on the Construction Industry, President of the Minnesota Construction Association, President of the Minnesota Chapter of the Construction Management Association of America, and head of his firm’s Construction Law Practice Group.

Steven M. Henderson is a member of Stites & Harbison PLLC where he practices in the firm’s Construction Law Group. He is based in Louisville, Kentucky, but works on behalf of clients across the country. He graduated with a Master of Science in civil engineering from the University of Kentucky in 1997 and with a JD from the University of Kentucky College of Law in 2007. As a registered professional engineer and attorney, he represents owners, contractors, and design professionals in all aspects of the construction and design process. He also litigates cases in state and federal courts and regularly manages the resolution of disputes for clients. He served as an engineer with the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet prior to becoming an attorney.

Jessica A. Hill is an attorney in Stites & Harbison PLLC and a member of the Construction Service Group. She graduated from Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, then obtained her law degree from the University of Dayton School of Law. She is licensed to practice in Kentucky, Indiana, and Ohio. She is active in Allied Construction Industries trade association and the ABA Forum on Construction Law, where she serves on the Steering Committee for Division 6.

Zachary Jones is an attorney with the law firm of Stites & Harbison and devotes his practice to representing contractors, suppliers, and owners. He is an active member of the Underground Construction Association, where he chairs a committee tasked with improving the effectiveness and efficiency of underground construction, and the Society of American Military Engineers, where he regularly speaks on issues affecting government contractors. Mr. Jones received his JD from the University of Memphis, where he graduated magna cum laude and in the top 5 percent of his class, and his BA from Trevecca Nazarene University in Nashville, Tennessee. Prior to law school, he was a project engineer and estimator for Layne Heavy Civil and W.L. Hailey, Inc., where he worked on several unique projects, including the construction of an underground nuclear refueling simulator and an outfall diffuser for what was at the time the largest membrane reactor treatment facility in the United States. Prior to that, Mr. Jones was an infantry squad leader in the 327th Infantry Regiment, 101st Airborne Division, where he deployed in support of the global war on terrorism during Operation Iraqi Freedom.

Jennifer A. Mahar is a member of Smith Pachter McWhorter PLC in Tysons Corner, Virginia, and focuses her practice on construction and government contract law. She has extensive experience representing general contractors, subcontractors, and sureties in a wide range of construction and commercial law disputes. Her practice includes the prosecution and defense of claims in litigation as well as the successful resolution of claims through various forms of alternative dispute resolution. Ms. Mahar is admitted to practice in Virginia, Maryland, and the District of Columbia. She is active in the Virginia State Bar's Construction Law and Public Contracts Section, serving on its Board of Governors.

Keeley A. McCarty is an associate with Smith Pachter McWhorter PLC in Tysons Corner, Virginia, practicing in government contracts, construction, and white-collar defense. She is the Public Contract Law Committee Chair for the ABA Young Lawyers Division and a member of the ABA Section of Public Contract Law. Ms. McCarty has experience litigating before the ASBCA, DC Superior Court, and other state courts, as well as with internal investigations, alternative dispute resolution, and document management in complex litigation.

Ms. McCarty received a Juris Doctor, cum laude, from American University Washington College of Law in 2012 and a Bachelor of Arts from the University of Florida in 2006.

Jonathan Rosshandler has had nearly 40 years' experience in handling significant construction and engineering disputes on behalf of a variety of major national and international companies. He received his MA from Oxford University in 1974. Following a short period postqualification, he became a partner in his then law firm (Nabarro) in 1974, moving from there to what is now Charles Russell Speechly Bircham in 2000 where he was a partner for some 13 years. Since 2014, he has acted as consultant to a number of firms and companies, advising on and having direct responsibility for handling their disputes.

His experience of major international disputes covers a wide range of jurisdictions, including France, Italy, Switzerland, Ghana, Nigeria, Thailand, India, Pakistan, UAE, Qatar, Kuwait, Egypt, and Saudi Arabia, as well as major oil and gas and infrastructure projects in the United Kingdom. He has worked under a variety of procedural rules, including ICC, UNCITRAL, LCIA, ADCCAC, and Swiss Arbitration Rules, and has been a party-appointed arbitrator in disputes subject to ICC and LCIA Rules. He is a member of TecSA, the Society of Construction Lawyers, and the Arbitration Club and has been recognized as a legal expert by Legal Experts, Legal 500, and Chambers.

John S. Vento is a shareholder with Trenam Kemker and serves as the firm's Government Contracting practice group leader. He is a Florida Bar Board Certified Construction Lawyer and is AV Preeminent rated by Martindale Hubbell. His practice areas include construction litigation, mediation, and arbitration; federal government contracting and procurement law; qui tam litigation; and international litigation and arbitration. Mr. Vento has handled many high-profile cases in his career and frequently speaks and writes on construction law topics. Prior to joining Trenam Kemker, Mr. Vento was a Judge Advocate on active duty with the U.S. Air Force, including an assignment as Assistant Law Professor at the U.S. Air Force Academy. While in the Air Force Reserve, Mr. Vento served as an Adjunct Professor of Law at the Air Force's Judge Advocate General's School, which published the handbook he authored on contingency contracting and fiscal law and where he taught procurement law. Mr. Vento retired with the rank of Colonel and was awarded the prestigious Legion of Merit Award upon retirement. During his career, Mr. Vento has received numerous awards and professional distinctions and has held leadership positions in state and national legal associations. He recently completed three years of service on the Governing Committee of the American Bar Association's Forum on Construction Law. He is annually recognized in Florida Super Lawyers, Florida Legal Elite, the National Law Journal, Chambers, the American Law Journal, and The Best Lawyers in America, which named him Construction Lawyer of the Year (Tampa Bay, Litigation, 2014), to name just a few. Mr. Vento earned his JD, cum laude, at Duquesne University School of Law and his LLM in International Law from the University of Michigan Law School, where he was a Michigan Scholar for highest academic achievement. In addition, he was a National Endowment for the Humanities Fellow at Yale Law School. Mr. Vento is also a Florida Supreme Court Certified Circuit Civil Mediator.

Owen S. Walker is a senior associate at Smith Pachter McWhorter PLC, in Tysons Corner, Virginia, and focuses his practice in the areas of government contracts and construction litigation. Mr. Walker regularly counsels regional, national, and international clients on matters involving contract formation, administration, and performance; claim entitlement and liability; contract termination for convenience and default; quantification of damages; delay and critical path scheduling; design-build and joint venture issues; mechanic's liens; and performance and payment bond claims. Mr. Walker has represented clients on a range of projects including a light-rail transit extension, sports stadium construction, international military installations, manufacturing facilities, high rise buildings, and retail buildings. Mr. Walker is a frequent author on construction issues including an article on differing site conditions published by the ABA Procurement Lawyer publication for which he was awarded the Board of Contract Appeals Bar Association Young Attorney Writing Award.

Mr. Walker received a Doctor of Jurisprudence from American University Washington College of Law in 2007 and a Bachelor of Arts from the University of California, Santa Barbara, in 2001.