CONTENTS

Introduction ix

1. Break Up or Stay Together? Tripping Up a Privilege Log with an E-Mail String 1
2. RAM and Cache? Things You Did Not Learn in Law School 7
3. Discovery on E-Discovery: Fishing Expedition or Smoking Gun? 13
4. Must a Party Preserve Backup Tapes? 21
5. Downgrading Data to Inaccessible Format: Risky Business? 27
6. Vendor, Vendor, on the Wall, Who’s the Fairest of Them All? 39
7. The Sanctions Hit Parade: Caveat Advocatus? Rule 16(f) 41
   Rule 26(g) 42
   Rule 37(b)(2)(A) 45
   Rule 37(d) 47
   Rule 37(e) 47
   Inherent Authority 48
8. Does Qualcomm Answer the Question of Whether You Can Take Comfort in the Fact That Morgan Stanley Was Vacated? 53
9. Must Bad Faith Be Shown to Obtain Sanctions against the United States? 63
10. Must Bad Faith Be Shown to Obtain Sanctions against a Party Other Than the United States? 65
11. Identification of Key Players: How Far Do You Cast the Net? 67
13. Concept Searches: Has the Day Arrived for Computers to Replace Lawyers? 79
15. Does One Form of Production Really Mean Just One Form? 89
Contents

16. Should You Take a Consultant to the Rule 26 Meet-and-Confer Session? ................................................................. 95
17. A Different Form of Computer Monitor: How Do You Make Sure That a Party Complies with E-Discovery Obligations? ................................................................. 97
18. Can You Use a Subpoena to Obtain Information from an Opposing Expert? ................................................................. 101
19. Should Subpoena Issuers Have Their Checkbooks Ready? ...................................................................................................... 103
20. Are States Close Behind? ......................................................................................................................................................... 107
21. Conclusion .............................................................................................................................................................................. 115

Index .................................................................................................................................................................................. 117
About the Author ..................................................................................................................................................................... 123