<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Section One: Introduction</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Chapter 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Environmental Conflict Management and Dispute Resolution</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ann L. MacNaughton and Jay G. Martin</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Introduction 3</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Common Characteristics of Environmental Conflicts and Disputes 5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Subject Matter That Crosses Geographic and Professional Borders 6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Environmental Performance as an Indicator of Overall Management Quality 7</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Optimum Solutions Outside the Scope of Judicial Reach 8</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Scientific and Economic Uncertainty 9</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cross-Cultural Conflict and/or Important Values Conflicts 9</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Multiparty Dynamics 9</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Involvement of Significant Stakeholders Outside the Scope of Any Judicial Proceedings 10</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Extremely Large Economic Stakes 10</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Improving EDR Outcomes: A Framework for Analysis 10</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>What Kind of Dispute Is It? 11</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>What Kind of Outcome Is Desired? 13</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>What EDR Process Will Be Most Appropriate to Achieve the Desired Outcome? 13</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>What Kind of Resources Can Best Assist the Selected EDR Process? 14</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Environmental Management Systems and EDR 16
   The EMS Trend 16
   Using an EMS to Avoid or Reduce Environmental Disputes 18
   Using an EMS to Support Early Dispute Resolution 19
Conclusion 20

Chapter 2
Moving Beyond the Familiar Rules: The Challenges of Alternative Dispute Resolution 31
Russell Carparelli
Convening the Stakeholders 32
Identifying the Issues 33
Identifying the Decision Makers 33
Determining the Role of Neutrals 34
   Selecting Neutrals 34
   How Much Power to Give to the Neutral(s) 34
Invoking the Participation of Neutrals 35
Establishing a Schedule 35
Obtaining Information 36
Presenting and Evaluating Information 37
Standards for Decision Making 38
Remedies 39
Enforcing Resolutions 39
Conclusions 40

Chapter 3
Advantages of Using Mediation and Arbitration to Settle Environmental Disputes 43
Jay J. Madrid and Jay G. Martin
Introduction 43
Advantages of Mediation in Resolving an Environmental Dispute 44
Advantages of Arbitration Over Litigation as a Means of Settling Environmental Disputes 46
Law Applicable to an Arbitration Proceeding Involving an Environmental Dispute 49
Specific Application of “Med/Arb” to Environmental Disputes 49
Use of ADR by the EPA 51
   Use of Arbitration Under the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide and Rodenticide Act 52
Conclusion 54
Section Two: Effective Settlement Advocacy  57

Chapter 4
Mediating with an Environmental Enforcement Agency  59
Elissa Tonkin
Introduction  59
Mediating With an Enforcement Agency Differs from Private Party Mediation  59
The Government Decision Maker Is Seldom at the Table  60
Governmental and Private Party Objectives Are Essentially Different  61
The Enforcement Setting Is Uniquely Fertile Ground for Provocative Moral Judgments  62
Recommendations for Mediating with an Enforcement Agency  63
In Reactive Moments, Get Input from the Mediator Before Making Decisions  64
Find a Mediator You Trust—and Don’t Hold Back  64
Let the Mediator Help You Get Inside Your Adversary’s Head  64
Conclusion  64

Chapter 5
Effective Settlement Strategies for Public Disputes  65
Peter A. Bowman
The Texas Risk Communication Project and Its Progeny: Dispute Avoidance Through Preemptive Conflict Management  66
The Armand Bayou Preserve Negotiations: Effective EDR in Permitting Disputes  71
The Texas Copper Smelter Negotiations: EDR Lessons Learned  75
Conclusion  81

Chapter 6
Robin L. Juni
Historic Differences in U.S. and British Environmental Law and Institutions  87
Toward a Common Approach  88
Changes in the United Kingdom  88
Changes in the United States  91
Development and Use of ADR Processes  92
   Process Options  92
   Incentives for Participation  93
Conclusion: ADR Processes Alone Are Not Enough  98

Chapter 7
Effective Settlement Advocacy in Mass Tort Disputes  105
William B. Allison, Robert M. Petersen, and Ann L. MacNaughton
Introduction  105
Settlement Challenges in Mass Tort Cases  106
   Maturity  107
   Scale  110
   Logistics  115
   Technical Nature of the Claims  115
   Value Conflicts  117
   The Role of Nonparties  118
   Confidentiality  119
   Implementation Issues  119
Assisted Settlement Strategies  120
   Assisted Negotiation Strategies  120
   Facilitated Communication  122
   Expanded Preparation for Mediation  129
   Resolution Counsel  131
Conclusion  132

Chapter 8
Resolving Superfund Cost Recovery Disputes Outside the Courtroom  143
Robert P. Dahlquist, Ann L. MacNaughton, and Raymond G. Schaefer
Introduction  143
Regulatory Context: The Federal Superfund Statute  144
   Incentives to Innovate  146
Development of an Effective Allocation Methodology  149
   Cost Allocation in “First Wave” Regulatory Enforcement Situations  149
   Expanding the Model to “Second Wave” Cost Recovery Settlement Negotiations  151
   Business Factors Influencing Allocation Decisions  151
Case Law Developments: Improved Ability to Predict Outcomes, Analyze Litigation Risk, and Use Litigation Strategies to Negotiate Settlements  153
Chapter 9
Effective Settlement Advocacy in Environmental Insurance Coverage Disputes 183
D. Christopher Heckman and Jeffrey L. Mitchell

Brief History of Environmental Insurance Coverage Claims 183
Major Issues Common to Most Environmental Insurance Coverage Disputes 184

Settling Environmental Insurance Coverage Disputes 185
Establishing Framework for Settlement 185
Preparing to Negotiate (A Policyholder’s Perspective) 186
Substantive Settlement Negotiations 195

Conclusion 196
Attachment A: Settlement Agreement and Release 197

Chapter 10
Is Mediation a Better Alternative for the Resolution of International Environmental Disputes? 207
Nancy A. Oretskin and Ann L. MacNaughton

Introduction 207
Overview of Dispute Resolution Agreements 209
Multilateral Agreement for All Countries 209
Regional and Subregional Agreements in the Western Hemisphere 210
Environmental Side Agreement of NAFTA 211

Metalclad: “Investment” or “Environmental” Dispute? 213
Mediation: A Better Alternative 215
What Is Mediation?  215
Benefits of Using Mediation for International Environmental Disputes
217
Conclusion  219

Section III: Conclusion  229

Chapter 11
Ethical Issues in Environmental Alternative Dispute Resolution  231
John M. Barkett  231

Lawyers Serving as Counsel in ADR Proceedings  232
Preparation for Mediation or Other ADR Process Under Rule 1.1  232
Communications with Clients Under Model Rule 1.4  232
Avoidance of False Statements Under Rule 4.1  233
Disclosures Under Model Rule 1.6  237
Prohibition on Assisting a Client in Criminal or Fraudulent Conduct
Under Rule 1.2  239
Duty to Withdraw from Representation Under Model Rule 1.16  240
Duty of Candor  240
Access to, Altering, Destroying, Concealing, and Fabricating Evidence or Inducements to Witnesses to Testify Under Rule 3.4  242
Attempts to Influence Decisions or Disrupt a Tribunal  244
Prohibitions on Contacts with Represented Persons  244
Conflicts of Interest  246

Lawyers Serving as a Third-Party Neutral  249

Conduct of Mediators and Arbitrators  250
Conflicts  251
Competence  251
Self-determination  252
Impartiality  252
Confidentiality  253
Quality of the Process  254
Advertising and Solicitation  255
Fees  255
Improving the Practice of Mediation  256

Conclusion  256
Chapter 12
Managing Environmental Conflict and Disputes for Improved EDR Results  269
Ann L. MacNaughton and Jay G. Martin
Introduction  269
Managing Conflict for Sustainable Solutions  270
  The Nature of Conflict  270
  Managing Emotional Conflicts  271
  Managing Values Conflicts  272
Managing Environmental Disputes for Sustainable Results  273
  Preliminary Diagnostics  273
  Selecting or Designing a Process to Fit  274
  Selecting Appropriate Neutral Resources  274
Improving EDR Results with Electronic Information Management Systems  279
Improving EDR Results Through Environmental Management Systems  281
EMS as a Dispute Avoidance Mechanism  281
  Minimizing the Risk of Regulatory Compliance Disputes  282
  Improving Operational Performance Through Enhanced Conflict Management  283
Conclusion  286

Appendix A—Environmental Conflict Resolution: Field Guide and Annotated Bibliography  291

Appendix B—A Lexicon of Dispute Resolution Terms: Processes Parties Use to Negotiate Agreement/Settlement  401

Appendix C—Report and Recommendation to the American Bar Association House of Delegates Relating to Environmental Management Systems  411

About the Editors  419

Index  423