About the Authors

Peter Gray is the national chair of the Environment, Energy and Product Regulation Department at McKenna Long & Aldridge LLP. Since joining McKenna in 1985, he has worked on a broad range of environmental matters, including disputes over responsibility for cleanup of contaminated property, challenges to state and federal environmental regulations, enforcement cases involving hazardous materials, and climate change planning and advocacy.

Mr. Gray has a diverse Washington, D.C.-based regulatory practice in which he regularly represents clients before numerous federal agencies, and counsels clients on hazardous materials management, release reporting requirements and climate change.

He has served in many leadership roles in the ABA Section of Environment, Energy and Resources, including most recently Chair of the Environmental Litigation and Toxic Torts Committee (2006–2008). In addition to the ABA leadership roles, he co-chairs the American Council on Renewable Energy’s Climate Change Committee, and serves on the Chemical Waste Litigation Reporter’s Board of Advisors. Mr. Gray writes and lectures extensively in the environmental area. Recent treatises include Hazardous Materials Transportation (LexisNexis Matthew Bender 2004) and the ABA’s Basic Practice Series: EPCRA—Emergency Planning and Community Right-to-Know Act (2002).

Carole Stern Switzer, Esq. currently is the President of a non-profit think tank called the Open Compliance & Ethics Group (http://www.oceg.org/). OCEG provides objective standards, guidelines, and online resources to help organizations improve performance by integrating governance, risk management, and compliance (GRC). Ms. Switzer is a recognized leader in GRC. She is frequently published on these topics in leading business... magazines and lectures on GRC internationally and throughout the United States.

Prior to joining OCEG, Ms. Switzer was a founder and principal in Mitigation Strategies, LLC, an endangered species and wetland mitigation banking firm. She also maintained an active national environmental law practice for twenty years, with emphasis on hazardous waste regulation and Superfund. She has represented multinational clients in the government contracting, energy, mining and mineral processing, chemical manufacturing, and agricultural industries. She has appeared in Superfund litigation matters and litigated regulatory compliance issues in several U.S. Circuit Courts and the U.S. Supreme Court.

Ms. Switzer has served on the Council of the American Bar Association Section of Environment, Energy, and Resources, and has chaired that Section’s Solid & Hazardous Waste Committee. She has been honored by an ABA presidential appointment to a three-year term on the ABA Standing Committee on Environmental Law. She has spoken before many national and international audiences, and has authored numerous articles and several books addressing environmental regulatory compliance and requirements.