

ABOUT THE CONTRIBUTORS

Roy L. Bergeron Jr. is an associate in the Baton Rouge, Louisiana, office of Phelps Dunbar LLP. His practice focuses primarily on environmental litigation and regulatory counseling on state and federal environmental matters.

Shawna Bligh is a member of BW Law Group, LLC, a boutique firm in Kansas City, Missouri. Ms. Bligh focuses her practice on appellate law, complex civil litigation, and environmental law. Ms. Bligh's environmental practice includes litigation, including toxic tort litigation, permitting, and environmental issues related to business and real estate transactions. She is very active in the American Bar Association's Section of Environment, Energy, and Resources. Ms. Bligh serves on the editorial board for Natural Resources & Environment and the Section of Environment, Energy, and Resources's Book Publishing Board. She also serves as the American Bar Association's liaison to the Council for Agricultural Science and Technology. Ms. Bligh graduated from the University of Missouri–Kansas City School of Law and received her LL.M. in Environmental Law from Vermont Law School.

J Kevin Buster is a senior trial partner with King & Spalding LLP in Atlanta, Georgia, and serves as the head of the firm's Toxic Tort Litigation Practice Group. He has more than thirty years of courtroom experience in a wide variety of cases including toxic tort, product liability, environmental tort, criminal, antitrust, and commercial cases, although over the past twenty-five years he has focused on the various types of toxic tort litigation (environmental, product, and workplace). Mr. Buster's practice is nationwide, as he has litigated cases in both state and federal courts in more than thirty states. His toxic tort cases have involved a wide variety of chemical substances, including dioxins, polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs), pesticides, metals, solvents, gases, odors, petroleum products, food products, pharmaceuticals, chemical warfare agents, asbestos, vinyl chloride, and others.

Randy J. Butterfield is of counsel in the Atlanta office of King & Spalding LLP where his practice focuses on environmental and toxic tort litigation matters. Over the past fourteen years, he has handled a wide variety of individual, mass joinder, and class action cases, both at the trial and appellate levels in state and federal court. Mr. Butterfield currently serves on the Board of the Environmental and Toxic Tort Section of the Atlanta Bar Association.

Brendan K. Collins is a litigation partner in the Philadelphia office of Ballard Spahr LLP, and a member of the Environment and Natural Resources Group and the Product Liability and Mass Tort Group. His work is focused on the energy sector, and he coordinates the firm's petroleum products practice, integrating litigation, environmental, real estate, and other disciplines to serve clients operating in this sector. Mr. Collins has represented clients in civil, criminal, and administrative matters at all levels of the state and federal judicial systems, including the U.S. Supreme Court and the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. He currently serves as vice chair of the Toxic Torts and Environmental Law Committee of the American Bar Association (ABA) Tort Trial and Insurance Practice Section, and is a former chair of the Environmental Litigation and Toxic Torts Committee of the ABA Section of Environment, Energy, and Resources. Mr. Collins is listed in Chambers USA: America's Leading Lawyers for Business (2003–2012) and The Best Lawyers in America (2006–2013) for environmental law.

Ashley Cummings is a partner at Hunton & Williams LLP. Her practice focuses on class actions and other complex civil litigation, including financial services litigation, consumer fraud, and mass tort actions. She aids clients in assessing future litigation risks and strategic preparation for such risks. She also has significant experience with jury research and trial theme development. Ms. Cummings has served as second-chair in three nationwide class actions, and has played a central role in other large-scale class and collective actions. She also has significant experience in Georgia state and federal courts, including appellate practice before the Georgia Court of Appeals and the Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals.

Alexandra Cunningham is a partner in the Richmond, Virginia, office of Hunton & Williams LLP, where she is a member of the National Business Torts and Product Liability team. She focuses her practice on complex tort claims, including class actions, multidistrict litigation, mass torts, and toxic and environmental exposure claims.

William D. Dannelly is a senior counsel at Hunton & Williams LLP. He has significant experience in litigation, other adversarial proceedings, transactions, compliance and regulatory affairs, including those involving toxic torts, Superfund, the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA), water quality, brownfields, and related matters. Mr. Dannelly has appeared as lead counsel in numerous cases in state, federal, and administrative courts, handling both civil litigation and criminal investigations.

Evan Dicharry is an associate in Phelps Dunbar LLP's New Orleans office. He practices in the areas of tort and insurance litigation.

Ryan T. Dunn is an associate at Faegre Baker Daniels LLP in Minneapolis and focuses his practice on environmental and products liability litigation. He has worked on several toxic tort and product liability litigation and regulatory matters involving topics such as groundwater contamination, low- and no-injury toxic tort claims, and nuisance. Mr. Dunn is admitted in courts in Minnesota and California and served as a law clerk to two trial court judges in Los Angeles Superior Court after graduating from the UCLA School of Law.

R. Peter Durning Jr. is an associate in the Los Angeles office of Latham & Watkins LLP. Mr. Durning is active in a broad variety of litigation matters, and he is experienced in securities, mass tort, and insurance litigation. Mr. Durning is a graduate of Columbia Law School, where he was a Harlan Fiske Stone Scholar and an articles editor of the Columbia Business Law Review. He served as a judicial extern to the Honorable Robert D. Sack of the Second Circuit Court of Appeals. Mr. Durning completed undergraduate and graduate degrees at Stanford University, with honors.

Delmar R. Ehrich is a nationally recognized trial lawyer focusing his practice on complex environmental and natural resource damage litigation. He recently completed a five-month trial as lead counsel in one of the largest natural resource damage suits tried in the United States. Since joining Faegre Baker Daniels LLP in 1983, Mr. Ehrich has represented business clients in a wide variety of litigation and administrative proceedings involving all of the major federal environmental statutes. He has appeared in federal and state courts in every region of the country. Mr. Ehrich is a Fellow of the American College of Environmental Lawyers and ranked in Chambers USA in litigation.

L. Neal Ellis Jr. is a partner in the Ellis & Anthony LLP law firm of Wake Forest, North Carolina. Prior to joining Ellis & Anthony, Neal served for more than thirty years first as an associate, then as a partner, of the Hunton & Williams LLP law firm. His practice has concentrated on environmental, toxic tort, and products liability litigation. Mr. Ellis has served as a member of Council of the ABA's Tort Trial and Insurance Practice Section and chaired its Trial Techniques Committee. He has also served as a member of Council of the ABA's Judicial Division and chaired its Lawyers Conference. With the North Carolina Bar Association, Mr. Ellis served on the Board of Governors and as a member of its Executive Committee. He co-edited with Charles Case a treatise on toxic tort and hazardous substance litigation. Mr. Ellis is recognized in Best Lawyers in America (Bet the Company Litigation and Commercial Litigation), North Carolina Super Lawyers (Business Litigation), and Super Lawyers Corporate Counsel Edition (Business Litigation).

Matthew F. Hanchey is an associate at Hunton & Williams LLP. He represents clients on compliance with environmental laws. As part of his practice, Mr. Hanchey works with clients who are subject to enforcement at the state and federal levels and clients who are involved in corporate transactions involving brownfields or other properties with environmental law components. He also has a particular interest in advising clients on water allocation issues. Mr. Hanchey has experience working with owners of industrial facilities, particularly in the chemicals and energy industries, and real estate developers, among other clients.

J. Alan Harrell is a partner in the Baton Rouge, Louisiana, office of Phelps Dunbar LLP. His practice includes toxic tort and environmental litigation, class actions, and commercial litigation. He also advises clients on environmental regulatory compliance. Mr. Harrell regularly defends clients in class action and mass joinder litigation involving environmental and other theories of recovery.

Andrew Holly is a partner in the Minneapolis office of Dorsey & Whitney LLP. Mr. Holly is a member of the firm's Trial Department, and he represents clients in a variety of civil matters, including complex environmental litigation.

S. Ault Hootsell III is a partner in the New Orleans office of Phelps Dunbar LLP in the Commercial Litigation Section. Mr. Hootsell handles complex commercial and tort litigation matters, including client defense in class action and mass tort litigation. His class settlements include a settlement within the context of a bankruptcy reorganization of environmental claims allegedly related to an environmental waste disposal facility. Presently, Mr. Hootsell is working to resolve, through a mandatory limited fund settlement, all claims arising from Hurricane Katrina against the levee district in New Orleans.

Bruce Jones is a partner in the Product Liability and Environmental Group of Faegre Baker Daniels LLP, and is co-chair of the firm's Appellate Advocacy Practice. He frequently serves as the lead Law Team attorney in mass tort litigation, including environmental, toxic tort, consumer fraud, and drug and medical device litigation. Mr. Jones has prosecuted and defended scores of appeals in the state and federal appellate courts, and is listed in the Best Lawyers in America. He also has a Master of Fine Arts in Playwriting.

Courtney A. Lawrence is an associate in the Minneapolis office of Faegre Baker Daniels LLP, where she is a member of the Product Liability and Environmental Practice Group. She focuses her practice on litigation and regulatory matters within the food and agricultural industries. Ms. Lawrence graduated summa cum laude from William Mitchell College of Law in 2012, where she was an editor of the William Mitchell Law Review.

Steven J. Levine is a partner in the Baton Rouge, Louisiana, office of Phelps Dunbar LLP, where his environmental law practice includes litigation and regulatory counseling. Previously, he practiced in fisheries biology and estuarine ecology as a research associate at Louisiana State University's Center for Wetland Resources.

Karen R. Leviton is of counsel in the Los Angeles office of Latham & Watkins LLP and is a member of the Litigation Department. Her practice focuses primarily on mass tort and environmental litigation, complex business disputes in trial and appellate courts, and insurance coverage litigation on behalf of policyholders. In the mass tort area, she focuses on toxic torts, including the defense of multipoint actions for alleged exposure to hazardous substances from airborne emissions or soil and groundwater contamination. Ms. Leviton graduated summa cum laude with high honors in English from Colgate University in 1974. She received her J.D., cum laude, from Georgetown University Law Center in 1978.

John P. Manard Jr. is a partner and practice coordinator of the Tort Litigation Group in Phelps Dunbar LLP's New Orleans office. His practice is exclusively litigation in the area of toxic torts, pharmaceutical, environmental, and class actions. Mr. Manard frequently speaks on tort and environmental law and has written several articles on that subject. He is currently on the Council of the Section of Environment, Energy, and Resources of the American Bar Association and a Fellow in the American College of Environmental Lawyers.

Michael G. Romey is a partner in the Los Angeles office of Latham & Watkins LLP and a member of both the Litigation and Environment, Land & Resources Departments. Mr. Romey has a broad range of litigation experience, with an emphasis on environmental litigation. He has represented clients in toxic tort, Superfund, cost recovery, Clean Air Act, Clean Water Act, RCRA, Proposition 65, and insurance coverage litigations. Since 1999, Mr. Romey has been an adjunct professor of environmental law at the University of Southern California School of Law where he teaches the Clean Air Act, the Clean Water Act, RCRA, the Endangered Species Act, Risk Assessment, and Climate Change. Mr. Romey graduated from Columbia University in 1985 and received his J.D. from the University of California, Berkeley, School of Law (Boalt Hall) in 1988.

Alan Rudlin is a partner in the Richmond, Virginia, office of Hunton & Williams LLP. He focuses his practice on complex commercial disputes, including class action, energy, environmental, and fiduciary litigation. Mr. Rudlin has been involved in numerous trials throughout the country. He has authored numerous books and articles, served on national editorial boards, and served as adjunct faculty at several law schools.

Rita A. Sheffey is a partner with Hunton & Williams LLP, where her practice focuses on complex litigation, primarily environmental, toxic tort, product liability, trademark infringement, and patent infringement litigation. She is very involved with the Atlanta pro bono community, the Atlanta Bar Association, and the State Bar of Georgia, among other organizations. Ms. Sheffey has been honored with numerous awards, including the Atlanta Bar Association's 2013 Charles E. Watkins, Jr., Award for Distinguished and Sustained Service, the Atlanta Bar Association's inaugural Rita A. Sheffey Public Interest Award and a POW! Award for Purposeful Women from Womenetics in 2012, a 2010 Emory School of Law Public Interest Committee's Unsung Devotion to Those Most in Need Award, the 2009 Atlanta Victim Assistance, Inc. Rachel Champagne Leadership Award, the Atlanta Bar Association Women in the Profession Section's 2005 Outstanding Woman in the Profession Achievement Award, and the 2004 State Bar of Georgia H. Sol Clark Pro Bono Award. Ms. Sheffey received her B.A. from University of Virginia in Chemistry, a Ph.D. in Chemistry from Duke University, and a J.D. from the Boston College Law School, cum laude.

Lisa Horvath Shub is a litigation partner with Fulbright & Jaworski LLP in San Antonio, Texas. Her practice includes mass tort, toxic tort, pharmaceutical, and environmental matters, with a focus on disputes surrounding the reliability and admissibility of scientific expert testimony. Ms. Shub also has significant experience handling commercial, energy, products liability, fiduciary duty, and contractual disputes.

Libretta Stennes is a partner with Steptoe & Johnson LLP, where she is a member of the firm's Mass Tort, Toxic Tort and Environmental Practice. Ms. Stennes has successfully defended toxic tort matters alleging harm from perfluorinated compounds, 1,2,3-TCP, benzene, MTBE, solvents, fly ash, and other contaminants. As part of her extensive class action litigation experience, she has defeated class certification for medical monitoring and property damage claims.

Thomas R. Waskom is a senior associate in the Richmond, Virginia, office of Hunton & Williams LLP. His practice focuses on representing companies in class action and mass tort litigation. Mr. Waskom has been recognized as a Rising Star by Virginia Super Lawyers magazine.

Chris Wendelbo is a member of BW Law Group LLC, a boutique firm in Kansas City, Missouri. Mr. Wendelbo focuses his practice on appellate law, complex civil litigation, and environmental law. He has handled more than two hundred civil and criminal appeals and also specializes in complex environmental litigation, regulatory compliance, brownfields redevelopment, and environmental due diligence. Mr. Wendelbo has handled multiparty litigation for claims arising under Sections 107 and 113 of CERCLA at privately owned sites, as well as former military installations and federal facilities. He serves as Chair of the Missouri Bar's Solo and Small Firm Committee. Mr. Wendelbo received his law degree from the University of Oklahoma College of Law and his LL.M. in Environmental Law from George Washington University.

Colin Wicker is a Senior Attorney in the Minneapolis office of Dorsey & Whitney LLP, where he is a member of the firm's Regulatory Affairs Practice Group. He represents clients in litigation and provides regulatory counseling in a number of areas.