SUMMARY OF CONTENTS

Preface .......................................................... xxii
About the Editors ................................................ xxiv
About the Contributors ........................................xxvi

CHAPTER 1
An Overview of the Attorney-Client Privilege When the Client
   Is a Corporation .................................................. 1

CHAPTER 2
The Duties of Confidentiality and the Attorney-Client Privilege in the Context of the Prospective Client ....................... 107

CHAPTER 3
Perspectives on the Attorney-Client Privilege and the Work-Product Doctrine ................................ 129

CHAPTER 4
Confidentiality and Its Relationship to the Attorney-Client Privilege ....................................... 159

CHAPTER 5
Preserving Candor between Lawyers and Clients: The Hidden Danger from Exceptions to the Attorney-Client Privilege .......... 175

CHAPTER 6
Protection of Attorney-Client Privilege and Work Product
   in the Electronic Disclosure Era ............................... 199

CHAPTER 7
Communications between Attorneys and Putative
   Class Members .................................................. 219
CHAPTER 8
Communications between Related Corporations and the Attorney-Client Privilege. 247

CHAPTER 9
Federal Courts’ Application of the Work-Product Doctrine to Nonparties 267

CHAPTER 10
Applying the Attorney-Client Privilege to Investigations Involving Attorneys: What Is Fair Game in Discovery? 281

CHAPTER 11
Protecting the Attorney-Client Privilege during an Internal Investigation 317

CHAPTER 12
Contacting Employees, Former Employees, and Other Witnesses Currently or Formerly Affiliated with the Opposing Party—Conflict between the Permissive Scope of Fact Investigation and Protection of Attorney-Client Communication 353

CHAPTER 13
Discovery of the Nontestifying In-House Expert Assigned to Litigation 375

CHAPTER 14
The Attorney-Client Privilege in Bankruptcy 391

CHAPTER 15
Putting Attorneys on the Witness Stand and Their Advice at Issue: The Perils of Selective Waiver of Privilege 401

CHAPTER 16
The Application of the Attorney-Client Privilege and the Work-Product Doctrine to Communications between Insureds and Insurance Carriers 435

CHAPTER 17
Attorney-Client Privilege and Work-Product Immunity in Patent Litigation 471
CHAPTER 18
The Joint-Defense Privilege:
An Illusion or a Magic Wand? ........................................... 535

CHAPTER 19
The Scope and Use of the Attorney-Client Privilege in the United States and Its Applicability to Communications
in the United States and Abroad ......................................... 559

CHAPTER 20
Privilege, Public Relations Firms, and Protecting Confidential
Communications from Disclosure........................................ 581

CHAPTER 21
Preserving the Attorney-Client Privilege and Work-Product
Protections Afforded to Communications with Experts:
Be Mindful of What You Say and to Whom You Say It ...... 593

Table of Cases ............................................................ 631
Index ............................................................................ 691
CONTENTS

Preface .......................................................... xxi
About the Editors ................................................ xxiii
About the Contributors ............................................ xxv

CHAPTER 1
An Overview of the Attorney-Client Privilege When the Client Is a Corporation ............................................. 1

Vincent S. Walkowiak
I. Introduction ................................................. 2
II. The Attorney-Client Privilege: First Principles ............. 4
   A. Establishing the Privilege ............................... 5
   B. Determining the Rule of Privilege: Control Group versus Subject Matter .................................. 7
   C. Multiple Roles of In-House Counsel .................... 10
      1. In-House Counsel as Executive ...................... 10
      2. In-House Counsel as Witness ....................... 13
      3. The Shelton Doctrine: Noticing the Opposing Counsel’s Deposition ............................... 14
   D. Other Types of Privilege Theory ....................... 16
      1. The “Joint Defense” ................................. 16
      2. Narrow Self-Critical Analysis .................... 17
   E. Losing the Attorney-Client Privilege .................... 19
      1. Waiving the Privilege ............................... 20
      2. Waiver by Selective and Inadvertent Disclosure ..... 20
      3. Protecting the Privilege in Today’s Technological Age . 24
      4. Offensive Use of the Privilege ..................... 26
      5. The “Good Cause” Exception ...................... 26
   F. Distinguishing the Attorney Work-Product Doctrine from the Attorney-Client Privilege .................... 28
      1. The Attorney Work-Product Doctrine ............... 28
      2. Limits of the Work-Product Doctrine .............. 29
      3. Asserting the Work-Product Doctrine in Successive Litigation .......................................... 29
III. Conclusion and Practical Tips ............................ 30
Notes ................................................................... 31
Appendix 1-1 Memorandum to Accompany “Principles of Federal Prosecution of Business Organizations” (Thompson Memo) ........................................ 43
Appendix 1-2 Principles of Federal Prosecution of Business Organizations (McNulty Memo) .................................. 61
Appendix 1-3 Principles of Federal Prosecution of Business Organizations (Filip Memo) .......................... 83

CHAPTER 2
The Duties of Confidentiality and the Attorney-Client Privilege in the Context of the Prospective Client ................................. 107

Jin Kim
Tailim Song

I. Introduction ............................................... 108

II. The ABA Model Rules of Professional Conduct ................. 109
   A. The ABA House of Delegates Adopts Rule 1.18 in 2002 ......... 109
   B. The State of the Law Prior to the ABA’s Adoption of Rule 1.18 ............................................ 110

III. The Distinction between the Confidentiality Rule and the Attorney-Client Privilege .................................................... 111
    A. The ABA Code of Professional Responsibility versus the ABA Model Rules of Professional Conduct ................. 112
    B. The Model Code’s Distinction between a Prospective Client’s “Confidences” and “Secrets” ...................... 112
    C. Model Rule of Professional Conduct 1.6 Protects “Information” Relating to the Representation of the Prospective Client .......................................................... 113
    D. The Common Law Attorney-Client Privilege ..................... 114

IV. Who Is a Prospective Client? ................................ 115
    A. Model Rule 1.18(a)’s Definition of a Prospective Client ....... 115
    B. The Common Law Definition of a Prospective Client ......... 115
    C. The Unsolicited E-mail .................................. 116
    D. Waivers of Confidentiality ................................ 118

V. Fraud Exception ........................................... 118

VI. Model Rule 1.18 and the Attorney’s Duty of Confidentiality .... 119
    A. Limiting the Inadvertent Attachment of the Duty of Confidentiality and Protecting against Conflicts of Interest .......................................................... 119
    B. Screening a Lawyer Who Receives Confidential Communications from a Prospective Client with Whom There Is a Conflict of Interest ................................. 120

VII. Conclusion ................................................ 121
    Notes ........................................................................ 121
CHAPTER 3
Perspectives on the Attorney-Client Privilege and the Work-Product Doctrine

Allan Kanner
Tibor Nagy

I. Introduction. ............................................... 129
II. The Attorney-Client Privilege and the Work-Product Doctrine ................. 130
   A. The Attorney-Client Privilege ............................................ 130
   B. The Work-Product Doctrine. .............................................. 133
III. Investigations by In-House and Outside Counsel .................................. 135
   A. The Changing Role of In-House Counsel .............................. 136
   B. The Use of Outside Counsel in Internal Investigations .......... 138
   C. Changing Conceptions of Secrecy  ...................................... 139
IV. The Crime-Fraud Exception ........................................... 141
   A. Origin and Purpose ......................................................... 141
   B. Scope of the Exception .................................................. 142
   C. Evidentiary Standards .................................................... 143
   D. Building a Crime-Fraud Exception Argument in Mass Disaster Cases ........................................ 145
V. Communications with Former Employees ........................................ 147
VI. Conclusion ........................................................................ 151

Notes ................................................................................. 151

CHAPTER 4
Confidentiality and Its Relationship to the Attorney-Client Privilege.

Arthur Garwin

I. Introduction ......................................................... 159
II. Model Rule 1.6—Confidentiality of Information .................................. 161
   A. Public Information .............................................................. 162
   B. Paragraph (a) Impliedly Authorized Disclosures .................. 163
   C. Authorized Disclosures ..................................................... 164
   D. Paragraph (b) Exceptions .................................................. 164
      1. Physical Harm ............................................................... 164
      2. Crime-Fraud Exception .................................................... 165
      3. Ethics Advice ................................................................. 167
      4. Claim or Defense ............................................................ 168
      5. Other Law or Court Order .............................................. 168
      6. Lawyer’s Change of Employment .................................... 170
   E. Paragraph (c) Inadvertent or Unauthorized Disclosures .......... 171
Notes ................................................................................... 171
CHAPTER 5
Preserving Candor between Lawyers and Clients: The Hidden
Danger from Exceptions to the Attorney-Client Privilege ........ 175
Kenneth A. Hindman
M. Colston Jones
I. What Lawyers and Clients Understand about the Attorney-Client Privilege, and What It Means to Them .......... 175
II. The Unspoken Understanding between Lawyers and Clients .................................................. 176
III. The Source of the Danger: Substantive Law ............... 177
IV. The Source of the Danger: Procedural and Process Considerations .................................. 177
V. How Restricting the Scope of the Privilege
Expands Exceptions to the Privilege .......................... 180
A. Exception for “Nonlegal” Work ............................ 180
B. “Bad Faith”/“At Issue” Exception .......................... 181
C. “Crime Fraud” Exception .................................. 184
VI. Why the Courts Are Not the Answer ......................... 186
VII. Why Litigation-Based Rules Should Not Define the Privilege .................................................. 188
VIII. Conclusion ................................................ 189
Notes .................................................................. 191

CHAPTER 6
Protection of Attorney-Client Privilege and Work Product
in the Electronic Disclosure Era ................................. 199
Laurie A. Weiss
Laura A. Hernández
I. Introduction: Attorney-Client Privilege and Work-Product
Doctrine under Strain ......................................... 200
II. Challenge of the Information Age: Increasing
Data Volumes and Rising Costs of Attorney Review ......... 200
III. Scope of the Problem: Proliferation of Electronically Stored
Information ...................................................... 201
IV. Government Investigations: Rewards for Limited
Disclosure and “Selective Waiver” by Federal,
State, and Local Regulatory Authorities ...................... 202
V. Uncertainty Regarding Court’s Response to Waiver Arguments ......................................... 202
VI. Judicial Approaches to Waiver ............................... 202
VII. Federal Rules of Civil Procedure ............................ 203
A. Rule 26(b)(5) .................................................. 203
B. Rule 26(f) and Rule 16(b) .................................. 204
VIII. Clawback Agreements ...................................... 204
Contents

IX. Quick-Peek Agreements .................................... 205
X. Federal Rule of Evidence 502 ................................ 206
  A. History of Rule 502 ..................................... 206
  B. September 2007 Version of Rule 502 as Submitted to Congress ................................................ 207
  C. Rule 502 as Enacted ..................................... 208
  D. Limitations of Rule 502 .................................. 208
  E. Developing Case Law Interpreting Rule 502 ......... 208
     1. Factors Supporting Nonwaiver ..................... 209
     2. Factors That May Indicate Waiver ................. 209
XI. Practice Considerations for Preserving Privileges ...... 210
  A. Meet-and-Confer Process ................................ 210
  B. Nonwaiver Agreements to Minimize Damage ........... 210
  C. Defensible Processes for Privilege Review and Recovery of Inadvertently Produced Documents ................. 211
  D. Adequate Privilege Log ............................... 211
XII. Conclusion................................................ 212
Notes..................................................... 212

CHAPTER 7
Communications between Attorneys and Putative
Class Members. ................................................ 219
Allan Kanner
Tibor Nagy
I. Introduction............................................... 219
II. Communications with Nonclients Generally ............ 220
  A. Rules against Solicitation, Contact with Represented Parties, and Misleading Statements .... 220
  B. The Traditional Model: No-Comment Local Rules .... 222
  C. The Modern Model: Case Management ................. 224
III. Communications with Putative Class Members ......... 225
  A. Precertification ....................................... 225
    1. Jackson v. Motel 6 Multipurpose, Inc. and Abdallah v. Coca-Cola Co. .......................... 226
    2. Hammond v. City of Junction City .................. 229
  B. The Opt-Out Period .................................... 230
    2. Georgine v. Amchem Products, Inc. ................. 232
  C. Postcertification, Post-Opt-Out Period ............... 234
IV. The Role of Class Members’ Organizations .............. 234
V. Opt-In Class Actions .................................... 235
VI. Conclusion................................................ 239
Notes..................................................... 240
CHAPTER 8
Communications between Related Corporations and the Attorney-Client Privilege

Vincent S. Walkowiak

I. Direct Communications between a Parent Corporation and Its Subsidiary
II. The “Common Ownership” Test
III. The “Community of Interest” Test
IV. The “Joint Defense” Test
V. Summary of the Three Tests
VI. The Work-Product Doctrine as It Applies to Communications between Related Corporations
VII. Degree of Ownership Required for “Common Ownership” to Apply
VIII. Control of Privilege before and after Sale of Related Corporation
IX. Conclusion
Notes

CHAPTER 9
Federal Courts’ Application of the Work-Product Doctrine to Nonparties

Christina M. Jones

J. Tracy Walker, IV

I. Introduction
II. Origin of the Work-Product Doctrine and Underlying Policy
III. Decisions Narrowly Interpreting Rule 26(b)(3) or Otherwise Denying Work-Product Protection to Nonparties
IV. Decisions Granting Work-Product Protection to Nonparties
V. Advice for Practitioners
VI. Conclusion
Notes

CHAPTER 10
Applying the Attorney-Client Privilege to Investigations Involving Attorneys: What Is Fair Game in Discovery?

David E. Bland
Scott G. Johnson

I. Introduction
II. The Attorney-Client Privilege Defined
III. Upjohn Co. v. United States
CHAPTER 11
Protecting the Attorney-Client Privilege during an Internal Investigation ............................................................................................................. 317

Michael Dockterman
I. Introduction .......................................................................................................................... 318
II. Attorney-Client Privilege ....................................................................................................... 318
   A. Elements of the Privilege ................................................................................................. 318
   B. Identifying the “Client” ...................................................................................................... 319
   C. What Is Protected? ........................................................................................................ 320
   D. Asking for Legal Advice .................................................................................................. 322
   E. Preserving the Privilege When Establishing the Investigation Team ......................... 323
   F. Identifying Information Subject to the Privilege ................................................................. 325
   G. Expecting to Waive the Privilege .................................................................................... 325
III. Work-Product Doctrine ....................................................................................................... 327
   A. Elements of the Work-Product Doctrine .......................................................................... 329
   B. Preserving the Exemption .................................................................................................. 330
   C. Expecting to Waive the Exemption .................................................................................. 331
IV. Preserving the Privilege and the Exemption .................................................................... 332
   A. Internal Disclosure ........................................................................................................... 335
   B. Disclosure to a Party with a Common Interest ................................................................. 336
   C. Disclosure to a Nonadversary Third Party ....................................................................... 337
   D. Disclosure to a Consultant or Expert .............................................................................. 339
   Notes .................................................................................................................................... 341
Appendix 11-1 Sample Upjohn Letter ......................................................................................... 347
Appendix 11-2 Sample Memorandum Authorizing Investigation .............................................. 349
Appendix 11-3 Sample Delegation of Authority .......................................................................... 351
CHAPTER 12
Contacting Employees, Former Employees, and Other Witnesses Currently or Formerly Affiliated with the Opposing Party—Conflict between the Permissive Scope of Fact Investigation and Protection of Attorney-Client Communication ................................................. 353
Vincent S. Walkowiak
I. Definition of the Problem ................................... 354
II. Current Employees ......................................... 355
III. Former Employees ......................................... 356
IV. Creation of Attorney-Client Relationships with Former Employees ......................................... 361
V. Strategies to Prevent Access to Key People and Information . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . 362
A. Identify Key People ..................................... 362
   1. Require Confidentiality Agreements ................... 362
   2. Enjoin the Former Employee ......................... 362
   3. Quash Third-Party Subpoenas ....................... 364
B. Trial Strategies ......................................... 365
   1. Move to Disqualify .................................. 365
   2. Size Up the Hostile Ex-Employee Witness .......... 366
   3. Defuse the Former Witness at Trial ............... 366
VI. Conclusion ................................................ 367
Notes .................................................................. 367

CHAPTER 13
Discovery of the Nontestifying In-House Expert Assigned to Litigation ................................................. 375
Ann Marie Mortimer
I. Introduction ............................................... 376
II. Understanding Rule 26(b)(4)(B) and Successor Rule 26(b)(4)(D): A Historical Perspective ............... 376
III. Making the Case for Qualified Protection of Nontestifying, In-House Experts under Rule 26(b)(4) .......... 379
IV. Practical Challenges in Applying Rule 26(b)(4) to In-House Experts ........................................ 381
   A. What Does “Specially Retained” Mean in the Context of an Existing In-House Employee? ........... 381
   B. What Does “In Anticipation of Litigation” Mean? ............ 382
   C. What Qualifies as “Exceptional Circumstances” for Purposes of Piercing the Qualified Discovery Protection of Rule 26(b)(4)? ............... 383
   D. Who Has the Burden of Demonstrating Whether the Prerequisites of Rule 26(b)(4) Have Been Met? .... 383
TABLE OF CONTENTS

E. Does the Identity of a Nontestifying In-House Expert Need to Be Disclosed? ............................ 383
F. What Are the Differences between an “Informally Consulted” Expert and a Nontestifying Expert? ............ 384
V. Practice Pointers for Minimizing Discovery Risk ............................ 384
VI. Conclusion ............................ 385
Notes ............................ 386

CHAPTER 14

The Attorney-Client Privilege in Bankruptcy ............................ 391
Toby L. Gerber

I. Introduction ............................................... 391
II. The “Applicable Law” in Bankruptcy Proceedings ............. 392
III. Application of the Attorney-Client Privilege to Parties in a Bankruptcy Proceeding .................. 393
A. The Debtor, the Debtor-in-Possession, and the Trustee ....... 393
   1. Prebankruptcy Attorney-Client Privilege Belonging to a Debtor ............................................... 393
   2. Postfiling Transfer of Ownership and Control of the Privilege from the Debtor to the Trustee or Debtor-in-Possession .................. 394
B. Creditors Committee .................................... 395
C. Liquidating Trustee under a Plan ............................ 396
D. Litigation Trustee under a Plan ............................ 396
E. Examiner .............................................. 396

IV. Assertion of the Attorney-Client Privilege in Bankruptcy Proceedings .................. 397
Notes ............................ 397

CHAPTER 15

Putting Attorneys on the Witness Stand and Their Advice at Issue: The Perils of Selective Waiver of Privilege ............. 401
Alan J. Martin
Demetrios G. Metropoulos
Nicole J. Highland

I. Introduction ............................................... 402
II. The Attorney as Witness .................................... 403
   A. Handgards ............................................. 404
   B. Underlying Considerations ............................ 404
   C. Work-Product Immunity ............................ 405
   D. Attorneys Testifying Outside Their Capacity as Such .......... 405
      1. The Attorney as an Expert Witness .................. 405
      2. The Attorney as a Corporate Representative .......... 406
III. Putting the Advice of Counsel at Issue
   A. Criminal Cases
   B. Civil Cases: The General Rule
   C. Hearn and Progeny: The “State of Mind” Exception
      1. Hearn and the Qualified Immunity Defense
      2. The “Good Faith” Defense
      3. Equitable Estoppel
      4. Fraud
      5. Contractual Intent
   D. Beyond “State of Mind”
   E. Further Extensions of the Implied Waiver Doctrine
      1. Refusal of Advice-of-Counsel Defense
      2. Pleading by Opponent

IV. Pretrial Procedure
   A. General Considerations
   B. Deposing Counsel
   C. Northbrook v. Procter & Gamble

V. Scope of Privilege Waiver
   A. Scope of Attorney-Client-Privilege Waiver
      1. Subject Matter Waiver
      2. Prior Proceedings
      3. Multiple Attorneys
   B. Scope of Work-Product Waiver

VI. Conclusion

Notes

CHAPTER 16
The Application of the Attorney-Client Privilege and the Work-Product Doctrine to Communications between Insureds and Insurance Carriers

Kirk A. Pasich

I. Introduction

II. Application of the Attorney-Client Privilege
   A. The Majority View
   B. The Minority View
   C. Witness Interviews by Carriers or Their Counsel
   D. The Impact of a Carrier’s Reservation of Rights or Declination on the Applicability of the Attorney-Client Privilege

III. Application of the Work-Product Doctrine
   A. The Majority View: Information in an Insurance Carrier’s Claim Files Is Collected in the Ordinary Course of Business
B. The Minority View: Information in an Insurance Carrier’s Claim File Is Collected in Anticipation of Litigation ............................................ 448
C. The California View ..................................... 450
D. Protection of the Work-Product Doctrine ............. 450
  1. The Limited Protection View .......................... 450
  2. The Broad Protection View ........................... 451
  3. The Intermediate View ............................... 451
E. Waiver of the Work-Product Doctrine ................. 451
  1. Waiver under Federal Law ......................... 451
  2. Waiver under California Law ....................... 452
IV. Safeguards an Insured May Employ to Protect the Attorney-Client Privilege and the Work-Product Doctrine ....... 454
V. Conclusion ................................................ 455
Notes ................................................................ 456

CHAPTER 17
Attorney-Client Privilege and Work-Product Immunity in Patent Litigation ................................. 471

Michael Edward McCabe, Jr.

I. Introduction and Overview ................................ 472
II. General Rules on Privilege and Work Product in Patent Cases ............................................ 474
  A. Attorney-Client Privilege .......................... 474
  B. Work-Product Immunity ........................... 475
III. Communications Relating to Invention Process ............... 476
  A. The Privilege Standard Set Forth in the Spalding Decision .............................................. 477
  B. District Court Cases Applying Spalding ........ 478
  C. The Limits of the Spalding Decision .......... 480
    1. Forwarding Nonprivileged Records Not Privileged ...... 480
    2. Nonconfidential Communications Not Privileged  ....... 480
    4. Prior Art Searches May Not Be Privileged .......... 481
    5. Choice of Law Limitations ........................... 481
  D. Patent Prosecution Documents as Work Product .... 482
IV. Communications with Patent Agents and Foreign Counsel as Privileged ................................. 483
  A. Who Qualifies as an “Attorney” ....................... 483
  B. Communications with U.S. Patent Agents .......... 484
    3. Limits on U.S. Patent Agent Privilege ............ 486
C. Communications with Foreign Patent Agents and Foreign Attorneys .................................. 487
1. Whose Law to Apply ................................ 488
2. Determining Privilege under Foreign Law ......... 490

V. Attorney-Client Privilege in Patent-Related Administrative Proceedings ................................. 494
A. Section 337 Investigations before the International Trade Commission ................................ 494
B. Proceedings before the Patent Trial and Appeal Board .................................................. 496
1. Standard Applied by Former Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences ..................... 496
2. Standard Applied by Patent Trial and Appeal Board .............................................. 498

VI. Waiver of Privilege or Immunity ............................................................. 499
A. Inadvertent Disclosure versus Intentional Waiver .............................................. 499
B. Advice-of-Counsel Defenses by Accused Infringer .................................................. 503
1. The EchoStar Decision ................................ 504
2. The Seagate Decision ......................... 505
3. Post-Seagate Decisions ....................... 506
4. Advice of Counsel after the AIA ................. 509
C. Waiver Based on Crime-Fraud Exception .................................................. 510

VII. Conclusion .................................................. 513
Notes ..................................................... 513

CHAPTER 18
The Joint-Defense Privilege: An Illusion or a Magic Wand? .......... 535
Jeffery J. Carlson

I. Introduction ............................................... 536
II. Basic Overview of the Attorney-Client and Work-Product Privileges ................................ 536
A. Attorney-Client Privilege ................................ 536
B. Work-Product Privilege ................................ 537
III. The Applicability of the Attorney-Client Privilege and the Work-Product Privilege in the Context of a Joint-Defense Arrangement ........................................... 538
A. Attorney-Client Privilege ................................ 538
1. Communications between Parties to JDA and Their Counsel Relating to Joint Defense Are Privileged ........................................... 538
2. Limits of Joint-Defense Attorney-Client Privilege ........................................... 540
B. Work-Product Privilege ................................ 542
Contents xix

C. Waiver ................................................ 543
   1. Attorney-Client Privilege ............................. 543
   2. Work-Product Privilege .............................. 545
D. The Use of a Confidentiality Clause as a Precautionary Measure ............................... 547
E. The Crime-Fraud Exception .............................. 548

IV. Issues Concerning Insurance Coverage Groups .......... 548
   A. The Privileged Nature of Communications
      Shared with Insurer .................................. 548
   B. Privileges Afforded Plaintiffs in Joint Prosecution against Insurer ....................................... 551

V. Tips on Drafting Agreements ................................ 552

VI. Conclusion ................................................ 552

Notes ..................................................... 552

Chapter 19
The Scope and Use of the Attorney-Client Privilege in the United States and Its Applicability to Communications
in the United States and Abroad .............................. 559

Christopher Scott D’Angelo

I. Definitions ................................................ 560
   A. What the Privilege Is ................................... 560
   B. What the Privilege Is Not ................................ 560

II. Sources ................................................... 560

III. Scope and Limits of the Privilege; Waiver .............. 561
   A. Corporate Clients ....................................... 561
   B. Waiver ................................................ 563

IV. In-House Lawyers ......................................... 566

V. Prospective Government Action ............................. 566

Notes ..................................................... 568

Chapter 20
Privilege, Public Relations Firms, and Protecting Confidential
Communications from Disclosure ............................. 581

Mike A. Orlando Jr.

I. The Attorney-Client Privilege and Third Parties .......... 582

II. Did the PR Firm Enable the Giving of Legal Advice? ........................................... 582

III. Was the PR Firm the Functional Equivalent of a Client Employee? ................................. 586

IV. Protecting Communications and the Client .............. 588

Notes ..................................................... 589