
About the Author

Craig D. Singer is a partner in the law firm of Williams & Connolly LLP in Washington, DC. Mr. Singer has represented numerous lawyers and law firms, including some of the nation's largest firms, in federal and state courts, government investigations, and arbitration proceedings in many jurisdictions around the country. He has played a significant role in developing and litigating defenses to claims commonly brought against lawyers and law firms, including defenses based on in pari delicto, elements of aiding and abetting claims, attorney-client duties, proximate causation, and damages.

This is Mr. Singer's second book. He is the co-author of a treatise, Federal Criminal Discovery, published by the American Bar Association in August 2011.

Before joining Williams & Connolly in 1996, Mr. Singer was a law clerk for Justice John Paul Stevens of the U.S. Supreme Court and for Chief Judge Abner J. Mikva of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit. Mr. Singer lives in the Maryland suburbs of Washington, DC, with his wife and two children.