About the Contributors

Brenda M. Bergeron
Brenda M. Bergeron is a Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Kappa Phi honors graduate of the University of Connecticut and the University of Connecticut School of Law. Since June 2005 she has been with the Connecticut Division of Emergency Management and Homeland Security as its legal advisor. Among other duties, she advises the Governor’s Unified Command on legal issues during emergencies at the State Emergency Operations Center in Hartford. She is also currently acting as the program coordinator for the DEMHS All-Hazards Planning Unit. For seven years, Brenda served as chair of the Legal Counsel Committee of the National Emergency Management Association.

Erin Capps
Erin Capps is a licensed attorney with expertise in Stafford Act compliance and interpreting the 44 Code of Federal Regulations. As vice president of operations at H2O Partners Inc., Erin oversees the development of FEMA Hazard Mitigation Assistance (HMA) plans and grants as well as Public Assistance (PA) recovery efforts and helps develop and manage Community Development Block Grants (CDBG). Ms. Capps provides oversight, management, technical assistance, and quality control on local, state, and national contracts. She has worked closely with cities, counties, regional groups, nonprofits, states, and federal agencies with planning and recovery efforts to help build resilient communities. Her legal background and broad experience has helped shape her understanding of compliance statutes and how they can be leveraged to maximize funding for various entities. She has developed policies for emergency management including internal procedures for contract compliance and is highly skilled in providing project management for complex technical projects.

Erin is member of the Association of State Floodplain Managers (ASFPM), the Texas Floodplain Managers Association (TFMA), and serves as vice president on the board of the Natural Hazard Mitigation Association (NHMA). Ms. Capps holds a JD from Baylor University School of Law and a BS degree in advertising with a specialization in business from the University of Texas at Austin.
Alan D. Cohn

Alan Cohn is Of Counsel to Steptoe & Johnson in its Washington, D.C. office. At Steptoe, Mr. Cohn advises clients from a range of industries on cybersecurity, blockchain, and distributed ledger technology issues, and other national security and emerging technology issues. Mr. Cohn is co-chair of the firm’s Blockchain and Digital Currency practice and serves as counsel to the Blockchain Alliance, a public-private forum formed to help combat criminal activity on the blockchain. Mr. Cohn also coordinates the Coalition for Responsible Cybersecurity.

Prior to joining the firm, Mr. Cohn served in senior policy positions at the U.S. Department of Homeland Security (DHS) for almost a decade, most recently as the assistant secretary for Strategy, Planning, Analysis & Risk and second-in-charge overall of the DHS Office of Policy. While at DHS, Mr. Cohn led strategic reviews on a variety of homeland security issues, and designed and led the first two Quadrennial Homeland Security Reviews.

Mr. Cohn was an emergency medical technician in New York City, a disaster assistance employee with FEMA’s National Urban Search & Rescue Response System, and a planning officer on the Fairfax County (VA) Urban Search & Rescue Task Force.

Wendy Huff Ellard

Wendy Huff Ellard is a shareholder at Baker, Donelson, Bearman, Caldwell & Berkowitz, PC, where she devotes her practice almost solely to issues associated with disaster response and recovery. She has extensive experience with the various issues that arise under the Stafford Act, particularly those involving FEMA’s Public Assistance and Hazard Mitigation Grant Programs. She also regularly advises public and nonprofit entities on proper procurement practices for federally funded projects, and devotes a large part of her practice to risk management and dispute resolution. Wendy received her JD from the University of Mississippi, cum laude.

Katarzyna Fertala

Katarzyna Fertala is an emergency management specialist in the Recovery Directorate at the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). Prior to that, she was a senior law and policy analyst at the University of Maryland Center for Health and Homeland Security (CHHS) where she served as an emergency management and homeland security consultant and planner for government clients in Maryland and the District of Columbia. Ms. Fertala developed the Emergency Operations Plan for Howard County, Maryland, and advised Montgomery and Prince George’s Counties, the Maryland Emergency Management Agency (MEMA), and the Maryland-National Capital Region Emergency Response System (MDERS) on emergency management issues. As a policy analyst for the D.C. Homeland Security and Emergency Management Agency (HSEMA), she staffed the D.C. Homeland Security Commission during its assessment of pandemic planning and response in the District, ultimately making policy and process improvement recommendations to the mayor. Ms. Fertala is a graduate of Cornell University and the University of Maryland, Francis King Carey School of Law, where she earned a certificate in environmental law.

Angelyn Spaulding Flowers

Angelyn Spaulding Flowers is coordinator of the graduate program in Homeland Security at the University of the District of Columbia, where she also serves as co-director of the Institute for Public Safety & Justice. She has served on the academic advisory board for Weapons of Mass Destruction and Terrorism for McGraw-Hill’s Contemporary Learning Series, with research publications in the areas of cybersecurity, terrorism, and emergency management. She earned her PhD in interdisciplinary studies from Commonwealth Open University stemming from her work in developing a multi-agent model simulating the effect of enforcement mechanisms on risk-taking behavior; her JD from Georgetown University Law Center; and her BA from Howard University.

Jordan Fried

Jordan Fried has extensive experience in emergency management law having worked in the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) Office of Chief Counsel for more than 20 years. He is currently FEMA’s associate chief counsel for Federal Insurance & Mitigation. His portfolio includes advising the Federal Insurance & Mitigation administration on all aspects of the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP), including the sale and administration of flood insurance, risk mapping, floodplain management, flood-mitigation grants, and administration of the Hazard Mitigation Grant Program. He also served FEMA as the associate chief counsel for litigation, where he represented the agency in litigation, including cases arising under the Stafford Act, the National Flood Insurance Act, environmental laws, and other litigation related to the administration of a federal agency. Prior to joining FEMA, Jordan worked in private practice, and was law clerk to Justice Joseph Baca on the New Mexico Supreme Court. He is a JD graduate of the George Washington University National Law Center and Trinity College in Hartford, Connecticut.
Erin J. Greten
In her ten-year career with FEMA, Erin Greten has served as the assistant chief counsel for regulation and policy, the deputy associate chief counsel for recovery, and currently serves as the associate chief counsel for regional and field operations. Prior to her experience with FEMA, Erin served as a regulatory attorney for the U.S. Coast Guard and practiced commercial litigation for a private firm. Erin received her JD from The Catholic University of America, and her BA from Michigan State University.

Michael Greenberger
Michael Greenberger is the founder and director of the University of Maryland Center for Health and Homeland Security (CHHS) and a professor at the University of Maryland Carey School of Law. CHHS works on a broad range of homeland security, health security, and emergency response issues for federal, state, and local governmental agencies, as well as universities and public health entities. It also has a substantial cybersecurity practice. CHHS has a staff of more than 40 professionals, working on 90 contracts worldwide. Professor Greenberger and CHHS participate in senior crisis management seminars managed by CHHS with the U.S. Department of State to train high-level foreign delegations on a broad array of counterterrorism, health security, and emergency-management issues. Professor Greenberger also supervises the law school’s Masters of Science Cyber Law, Masters of Science in Crisis Management Law, and JD certificate program in cybersecurity/crisis management.

Benjamin E. Griffith
Benjamin E. Griffith is principal of Griffith Law Firm in Oxford, Mississippi. A member of the ABA Board of Governors, he is the Board’s liaison to the ABA Standing Committee on Election Law, which he chaired from 2010 to 2013. His federal civil practice is focused on defense of local governments in Voting Rights Act litigation, civil rights litigation, and general insurance defense. He earned a Juris Doctor in 1975 from the University of Mississippi School of Law, where he has served as an adjunct professor since 2014. He is editor and chapter author of America Votes! Challenges to Modern Election Law & Voting Rights (ABA 3rd ed. 2016) and serves as president of the William C. Keady Chapter of American Inns of Court.

Jo Ann Howard
Jo Ann Howard, J.D., an attorney licensed in Texas, Arkansas, and the District of Columbia, has served as a gubernatorial appointee as a state head insurance regulator in Texas, as a presidential appointee as federal insurance administrator at the Federal

---

Erin J. Greten
In her ten-year career with FEMA, Erin Greten has served as the assistant chief counsel for regulation and policy, the deputy associate chief counsel for recovery, and currently serves as the associate chief counsel for regional and field operations. Prior to her experience with FEMA, Erin served as a regulatory attorney for the U.S. Coast Guard and practiced commercial litigation for a private firm. Erin received her JD from The Catholic University of America, and her BA from Michigan State University.

Michael Greenberger
Michael Greenberger is the founder and director of the University of Maryland Center for Health and Homeland Security (CHHS) and a professor at the University of Maryland Carey School of Law. CHHS works on a broad range of homeland security, health security, and emergency response issues for federal, state, and local governmental agencies, as well as universities and public health entities. It also has a substantial cybersecurity practice. CHHS has a staff of more than 40 professionals, working on 90 contracts worldwide. Professor Greenberger and CHHS participate in senior crisis management seminars managed by CHHS with the U.S. Department of State to train high-level foreign delegations on a broad array of counterterrorism, health security, and emergency-management issues. Professor Greenberger also supervises the law school’s Masters of Science Cyber Law, Masters of Science in Crisis Management Law, and JD certificate program in cybersecurity/crisis management.

Benjamin E. Griffith
Benjamin E. Griffith is principal of Griffith Law Firm in Oxford, Mississippi. A member of the ABA Board of Governors, he is the Board’s liaison to the ABA Standing Committee on Election Law, which he chaired from 2010 to 2013. His federal civil practice is focused on defense of local governments in Voting Rights Act litigation, civil rights litigation, and general insurance defense. He earned a Juris Doctor in 1975 from the University of Mississippi School of Law, where he has served as an adjunct professor since 2014. He is editor and chapter author of America Votes! Challenges to Modern Election Law & Voting Rights (ABA 3rd ed. 2016) and serves as president of the William C. Keady Chapter of American Inns of Court.

Jo Ann Howard
Jo Ann Howard, J.D., an attorney licensed in Texas, Arkansas, and the District of Columbia, has served as a gubernatorial appointee as a state head insurance regulator in Texas, as a presidential appointee as federal insurance administrator at the Federal Emergency Management Agency, and is currently president of H2O Partners, Inc., a woman-owned disaster consulting firm. She holds a BS in education, an MA in public administration, and a JD degree. Jo Ann is a fellow of the American Bar Foundation, an executive member of the State Association of Floodplain Managers Foundation, and named as one of Business Insurance’s 2017 Elite Women in Insurance. She is currently serving on the National Academy of Science and Engineering’s Urban Flooding study committee. H2O Partners works for the federal government, state governments, and local governments in both pre- and post-disaster planning and recovery by developing and delivering insurance education for agents and claims adjusters nationwide, with post-disaster work on public assistance grants, hazard mitigation planning, community block grant development, grants accounting, and private insurance insolvencies and liquidations, among other areas.

George B. Huff Jr.

George is the founder and director of consulting at The Continuity Project, LLC, in Alexandria, Virginia. He holds an undergraduate degree with honors from Hanover College, and attended the Graduate School in Forensics Studies at Indiana University and the College of Law at Northern Illinois University. A qualified U.S. Army airborne-ranger, George earned the Green Beret. George served for 32 years as an attorney–advisor with the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts. He serves currently as a special advisor to the American Bar Association’s Standing Committee on Disaster Response and Preparedness.

Jessica Kirschbraun

Jessica Kirschbraun specialized in legal matters related to emergency management and homeland security while serving as counsel for the California Governor’s Office of Emergency Services. Jessica focused on homeland security issues relevant to the collection and protection of critical infrastructure information, intelligence gathering and retention, information disclosures, bond law, grant administration, information sharing environments and networks, and privacy. With regard to emergency management, Jessica focused on the Stafford Act, the California Emergency Services Act, the California Disaster Assistance Act, and cross-border memorandums of understanding. Jessica also conducted numerous presentations with state and local government officials and community members to raise awareness about Americans with Disabilities Act Title II legal developments involving emergency management. In 2016, Jessica moved to the Bay Area to work for Apple. Jessica earned her master’s degree from the Naval Post Graduate School’s Center for Homeland Defense and Security in September 2014, where she received the Outstanding Thesis Award. She earned her JD from Loyola Law School, Los Angeles, and she has degrees in political science and communications from the University of California, Berkeley.

Ted Lotchin

Ted Lotchin is a partner in the Research Triangle and Washington, D.C. offices of K&L Gates LLP. He counsels a broad range of clients, including health systems and academic medical centers, physician practices, ambulatory service providers, manufacturers, and suppliers on regulatory and compliance matters, as well as on internal investigations, self-disclosures, overpayments, and False Claims Act litigation. Mr. Lotchin has extensive experience representing health care companies on Medicare and Medicaid fraud and abuse issues. He previously served as in-house counsel to a major academic medical center, where he advised deans, department chairs, and other senior executives on network development strategies.

Quin Lucie

Quin Lucie is currently serving as a visiting professor at the U.S. Army War College on detail from the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). At FEMA, he is a member of the Office of Chief Counsel (OCC), Response Division. His duties include serving as the primary legal advisor and Senior OCC Watch Officer to the FEMA National Response Coordination Center and the primary legal advisor to the FEMA Urban Search & Rescue System. He is also a member of the United States Coast Guard Board for Correction of Military Records. Quin received his JD from Southern Illinois University and his MA from the Center for Homeland Defense and Security, Naval Postgraduate School. He is a former Marine Corps Judge Advocate and adjunct lecturer at George Washington University.

Dwight H. Merriam

Dwight H. Merriam, FAICP, of the law firm of Robinson & Cole LLP, is a fellow and past president of the American Institute of Certified Planners, and past chair of the ABA Section of State and Local Government Law. He chairs the Connecticut Bar Foundation’s Cooper Fellows. He has taught land use law at Vermont Law School and UConn Law School, and presently teaches at the Quinnipiac University School of Law. He has published over 200 articles and 13 books, including serving as co-editor of the leading treatise in the field, Rathkopf’s Zoning and Planning Law, and lead author of the casebook, Planning and Control of Land Development. He received his BA from UMass (cum laude), his MRP from the University of North Carolina, and his JD from Yale.
James C. Nicholas

James Nicholas is emeritus professor of urban and regional planning and emeritus professor of law at the University of Florida. Professor Nicholas has written widely on the subject of land, environmental and growth management. He has authored eight books, three monographs, and over 60 articles in the professional literature dealing primarily with growth and local governmental finance of infrastructure. In addition to his academic duties, he has worked with many national, state, and regional governments. He has developed growth management and infrastructure funding programs for over 100 local governments in Maine, Massachusetts, Maryland, Virginia, Georgia, Florida, Illinois, Iowa, New Mexico, Colorado, Nevada, California, and Hawaii. He received a doctorate in economics from the University of Illinois in 1970 and has over 45 years experience in economics and issues of public finance.

Seth M. M. Stodder

Seth M. M. Stodder is a lawyer in Los Angeles and Washington, D.C., and teaches national security law and policy at the University of Southern California Law School. He served in the Obama administration as assistant secretary of Homeland Security for Border, Immigration & Trade Policy, and previously as assistant secretary of Homeland Security for Threat Prevention & Security Policy. He previously served in the George W. Bush administration as director of Policy and Planning for U.S. Customs and Border Protection and as counselor/senior policy advisor to CBP Commissioner Robert C. Bonner for the three years following the 9/11 terrorist attacks.

Lucy L. Thomson

Lucy L. Thomson, CISSP, CIPP/US/G, is founding principal of Livingston PLLC, a Washington, D.C., law firm that advises government and private sector clients on legal and technology issues related to cybersecurity, global data privacy, compliance, and risk management. The 2012–13 chair of the American Bar Association (ABA) Section of Science & Technology Law and a member of the Cybersecurity Legal Task Force, she is the editor of the ABA Data Breach and Encryption Handbook (2011), which provides a roadmap through the security failures that lead to massive data breaches and demystifies encryption. She is also a contributing author to the ABA Cybersecurity Handbook. A career federal criminal prosecutor at the U.S. Department of Justice and a former senior engineer at CSC, a global technology company, she was appointed Consumer Privacy Ombudsman in 18 federal bankruptcy cases and has overseen the disposition of 230 million electronic records. She earned a master’s degree from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute (RPI) in 2001, and received her JD degree from the Georgetown University Law Center in 1973.
James W. Williams
Jim is currently the firmwide business continuity manager at Sidley Austin LLP. His most recent accomplishment was achieving certification for Sidley to the ISO-22301:2012 standard. Jim is a retired U.S. Air Force officer, and in addition to being a B-52 and C-130 crewmember his roles included Aircraft Accident Response and Recovery, flight test and weapon test engineer, and various command positions. He has a BSc in mechanical and aerospace engineering from the Illinois Institute of Technology, and an MSc in threat and response management from the University of Chicago.

David Zocchetti
David Zocchetti was chief counsel and deputy director of the California Department of General Services until 2015. As its chief lawyer, he led the department’s 20-person legal office and was responsible for providing a variety of legal services to state agencies, including procurement and acquisition solutions ranging from aircraft to information technology. He also provided legal advice for real estate management and design, environmentally responsible transportation, and he advised numerous boards and commissions, including those responsible for California’s building standards and public school design. He also established the first state office responsible for coordinating the protection of intellectual property throughout state government. Mr. Zocchetti also served as chief counsel, chief of planning, and lead for audits and legislative advocacy for the California Office of Emergency Services, where he helped establish the Standardized Emergency Management System and regulation of hazardous chemicals. He also served as the senior consultant to the bipartisan State Assembly Select Committee on Hazardous Materials, Pipeline, Chemical Plant and Refinery Safety. He holds both bachelor and masters’ degrees in environmental planning from California State University, Sacramento, and a JD from the University of the Pacific, McGeorge School of Law.