About the Author

Janet S. Kole practiced law for more than 30 years before retiring to write books. This is her fifth book for young lawyers published by the ABA. Her others are: Chasing Paper, Pleading Your Case, A Brief Guide to Brief Writing, and Avoiding Bad Depositions.

She has written two mystery novels under the pen name Janet Kole (she dropped the lawyerly middle initial): Suggestion of Death and The Smell of Money.

She believes in the liberal use of humor in every situation, including teaching.

She lives in Florida with her wife, where she loves to go out on their boat and loves to play golf. Part of the year she lives on the eastern shore of the Chesapeake Bay, where she does the same things she does in Florida. She loves it when her wonderful son, Gabe, comes to stay and play, no matter where it is.
