

About the Author

Mark Shelburne is a housing policy consultant with Novogradac & Company LLP. Previously he served as an affordable housing program administrator for the state agencies in Georgia and North Carolina. In these three capacities, Mark has revised 22 qualified allocation plans, testified before Congress, provided resources to create more than 25,000 units, and led work resulting in four national awards. He learned the program, essentially from scratch, as an in-house counsel for a regional equity syndicator.
