

About the Authors

Shinsuke Ohnuki

Shinsuke Ohnuki is a highly experienced Japanese patent attorney (since 1984) and intellectual property litigation attorney (since 2004) who serves as special counsel at the Itoh International Patent Office in Tokyo after retiring as an executive vice president and the head of the incoming department at that firm. Shinsuke has a bachelor's degree in physical engineering from the University of Electro-Communications and he studied at the George Mason University School of Law, Law and Economics Center. He worked for Motorola Japan as the general manager of the Intellectual Property Department for 12 years. Fluent in Japanese, Chinese, and English, his practice covers patent application prosecution, oppositions, invalidation trials, legal opinions, and litigation in the patent and trademark fields.

Mr. Ohnuki is the author or coauthor of a number of Japanese books, including How to Draft Patent Specifications; Basics of Patent Prosecutions; Casebook of Intellectual Property Rights (1–4); Intellectual Property Key-word Dictionary; and Research Report on Desired Patent Specifications.

Steven G. Parmelee

Steven G. Parmelee is a patent attorney with over 40 years of experience assisting clients with global patent portfolio management, freedom-to-operate issues, complex IP litigation, and transactions. Steve is a partner with Fitch, Even, Tabin & Flannery LLP, where he presently focuses his practice on complex patent preparation and prosecution in the United States and abroad, including administrative and judicial appellate work and post-grant reexamination work.

Previously, Steve worked in-house at Motorola, Inc., serving as vice president and director of Portfolio Management. He gives regular CLE presentations on various patent application preparation and prosecution topics and is the author or coauthor of several publications, including Business Power: Creating New Wealth from IP Assets and Global Innovation Science Handbook.

Hideko Yamamoto

Hideko Yamamoto is a patent attorney registered to practice in Japan, Australia, and New Zealand. She started her career in 2000 as an in-house patent attorney at Hitachi Ltd in Tokyo. She relocated to Sydney, Australia, and has been practicing in Australia since 2006. She holds a master's degree in mechanical engineering from Tokyo University and a master's degree in Intellectual Property from University of Technology Sydney.