
CONTENTS

Foreword	xi
Author Bio	xv
Introduction	xvii
Chapter 1
Parental Alienation: An Introduction	1
Parental Alienation: Old Wine in a New Bottle	2
Alienation versus Estrangement	8
Parental Alienation versus "Parental Alienation Syndrome"	12
Parental Alienation and DSM-5	14
Chapter 2
Admissibility of Expert Testimony on Parental Alienation	17
Admissibility Standards	19
Admissibility of Parental Alienation Evidence Under the Frye Test	25
Admissibility of Parental Alienation under the Daubert Test	29
The Road Ahead	47
Chapter 3
Interventions in Parental Alienation Cases	49
Courts Intervene to Check the Emotional Abuse of Parental Alienation	51
Recognizing Available Interventions	53
Early Intervention and Prevention	56

Traditional Therapy Does Not Work in Resolving Parental Alienation	59
Reunification, Not Therapy	61
Specialized Intensive Treatment Programs: The SWAT Teams to Combat Severe Parental Alienation	64
Separating Children from an Alienating Parent Is Not Traumatic	67
Modification of the Custodial Environment	69
Case Examples	71
Conclusion	76
Chapter 4
Presenting a Case of Parental Alienation in Court	77
Expert Testimony: One Tool in the Litigator’s Toolbox	78
Best Interest Factors—Totality of Circumstances	81
The Five-Factor Model	83
Factor One: Child Resists a Relationship with a Parent	84
Factor Two: Prior Positive Relationship with the Rejected Parent	84
Factor Three: Lack of Abuse by Rejected Parent	86
Factor Four: The Alienating Behaviors by the Preferred Parent	89
Factor Five: Children Exhibit Alienation Behaviors	101
Programming / Brainwashing Techniques Used by Alienating Parents	104
Single Factor Model versus Multi-Factor Models	109
Conclusion	110
Chapter 5
The Role of Guardian ad Litem and Child Representative	111
GALs and Child Representatives: Experts by Default?	113
Parental Alienation and the Child’s Preference	117
Parental Alienation, Diminished Capacity, and a Child’s Best Interests	119
Making the “Call”: Determining Whether the Child Has Diminished Capacity	122
Guardians and Immunity	124
A Suggested Checklist of Best Practices	126

Chapter 6
Fallacies, False Positives, and Fake News: Misinformation about Parental Alienation	135
1. Parental Alienation Does Not Exist	137
2. Parental Alienation Syndrome Is “Junk Science”	140
3. Parental Alienation Has Been “Debunked”	143
4. Domestic Violence or Abuse Must Be Ruled Out before Considering Parental Alienation	147
5. It Is Not Possible to Distinguish Alienation from Estrangement	149
6. Parental Alienation Cannot Be Diagnosed or Identified Because It Is Not in DSM-5	150
7. Parental Alienation Is Not Supported by Empirical Research	152
8. Parental Alienation Does Not Pass the Daubert/Frye Gatekeeping	154
9. Men Do Not Alienate; Only Women Do (Or Vice Versa)	156
10. Bad Behavior Equals Parental Alienation: The Risk of False Positives	158
11. Professional or Clinical Intuition Is Sufficient to Resolve Parental Alienation	160
Chapter 7
Parental Alienation and Domestic Violence	165
Applying the Tools: Using the Five-Factor Model to Rule Out Abuse	166
Counterintuitive Feature of Abused Children: They Want a Relationship with the Abuser	181
Parental Alienation Is Family Violence	182
Outcomes of Family Violence	190
Agenda of the Advocacy Groups	194
Chapter 8
Parental Alienation Around the World	197
The Common Law System	199
The Civil Law System	206
Conclusion	226

Chapter 9
Litigating Parental Alienation: Tips for Practitioners	229
1. One of the oldest heuristics in medicine is primum non nocere : “First, to do no harm.”	232
2. Check for and challenge your biases.	233
3. Keep yourself abreast of the latest research, publications, and peer-reviewed literature.	235
4. Frame the case properly.	237
5. Get ready to debunk the most commonly held fallacy of parental alienation cases—the “high conflict” model.	238
6. Don’t use the term “parental alienation” lightly.	239
7. Parental alienation cases are “won” (if that’s the right word for these heart-wrenching cases) through meticulous and careful preparation.	240
8. Build a detailed chronology.	242
9. Learn to manage the clients.	243
10. Think about using a parenting coach to help the client.	244
11. Select the right expert.	247
12. Consider the necessity and helpfulness of a forensic evaluation.	250
13. Prepare the client for the forensic evaluation.	252
14. Help the client prepare a package of well-organized documents for the evaluator’s review.	256
15. Counsel the client to follow court orders and show respect towards the court and the legal process.	258
16. Understand that time is the enemy.	259
17. Be mindful of the unjust criticism of the judiciary in cases involving parental alienation.	262
APPENDIX A
Bibliography	267
APPENDIX B
Examples of Cases Documenting Alienating Strategies	271

APPENDIX C
Examples of Cases Documenting Signs of Alienation in Children	283
APPENDIX D
Admissibility of Expert Evidence in Different States	289
APPENDIX E
Statutes and Cases Regarding Minors' Counsel	299
Table of Cases	307
Index	319