About the Authors

General Editor

Karen F. Botterud (General Editor, Chapters 14 and 19) currently resides in Rock Island, Illinois. She graduated from Indiana University in 1976 and DePaul University College of Law in 1984. She is a multifaceted lawyer with broad legal experience in institutional and entrepreneurial, in-house and law firm, and domestic and international settings. She currently works for a multinational defense and aerospace company using her extensive experience in the idiosyncratic area of contracting with the United States and foreign governments for the sales of military and commercial products and services.

Chapter Authors

Ruth A. Bahe-Jachna (Chapters 16 and 18) received her B.A. summa cum laude from Wartburg College in Waverly, Iowa, and attended the International Christian University in Tokyo, Japan. She received her J.D. from Northwestern University School of Law, where she served as note and comment editor on the Law Review. Ms. Bahe-Jachna is admitted to practice before several federal courts and is a member of the trial bar (U.S. District Court, N.D.Ill.). She serves on the editorial board of LJN’s Product Liability Law & Strategy newsletter and writes annually for that publication. Ms. Bahe-Jachna is an active member of the American Bar Association’s Section of Litigation where she has served as co-chair of several publication committees and boards and she currently serves as co-chair of the Section’s Human Trafficking Task Force. Ms. Bahe-Jachna also served as chair of the Chicago Bar Association’s Class Litigation Committee and has written on and spoken about class actions. Her practice encompasses product-liability litigation and counseling, recalls, class actions, employment litigation, commercial litigation, and electronic discovery. In addition, she is in charge of training for attorneys in Greenberg Traurig, LLP’s national litigation practice group and develops and oversees six national skills-based trainings a year.

Darren C. Baker (Chapters 2 and 4) is a partner in the Corporate and Securities and Intellectual Property groups of Schiff Hardin LLP in Chicago. Mr. Baker concentrates his practice in the areas of commercial transactions, including all facets of purchase, sale, and distribution arrangements; intellectual property transactions and licensing; corporate M&A; and securities. He received his J.D. cum laude from Northwestern University School of Law in 1998 where he was an articles editor on the Northwestern University Law Review. He received his B.A. summa cum laude from Dury University in 1995. He joined Schiff Hardin LLP in 1998. Mr. Baker has written and spoken extensively in the areas of commercial law, intellectual property, corporate M&A, and securities law. He is a member of the American and Illinois State Bar Associations and serves on the Advisory Board of the Commercial Law WebAdvisor website.

Timothy L. Bertschy (Chapter 13) is a partner in the firm of Heyl, Royster, Voelker & Allen, P.C., in Peoria, where he concentrates his practice in commercial litigation and governmental law. He received his A.B. from the University of Illinois and his J.D. from George Washington University Law School. He is a past president of the Illinois State Bar Association and has served on the ABA Board of Governors and the Peoria County Bar Association’s Board of Directors. He is a Fellow of the Illinois State and American Bar Foundations. He is chairman of the United States District Court for the Central District of Illinois Advisory Committee on Local Rules. He is past president of the Illinois Equal Justice Foundation, the Illinois Coalition for Equal Justice, and the Lawyers Assistance Program. Mr. Bertschy was the winner of the 1983 Lincoln Writing Award and has written numerous articles on various legal topics.

Andrew D. Campbell (Chapter 11) is a partner at Novack and Macey LLP, a Chicago-based commercial litigation firm. He concentrates his practice in commercial litigation and appeals. Mr. Campbell frequently represents clients in disputes involving real estate, trade secrets, employment contracts, and veil-piercing claims. He is a magna cum laude graduate of Loyola University of Chicago School of Law and received his B.A. from the University of Michigan. Mr. Campbell is an active member of the Chicago Bar Association’s Commercial Litigation Committee as well as the American Bar Association’s Section of Business Law. In addition to being a member of the Illinois bar, he is admitted to practice before the United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit and is a member of the trial bar of the United States District Court for Northern District of Illinois.

Richard G. Douglass (Chapter 8) is a commercial litigation and trial attorney representing a variety of clients in disputes in state and federal courts in Illinois and throughout the nation. Mr. Douglass devotes about half of his practice to the litigation and trial of energy disputes on behalf of electricity and natural gas wholesalers and retailers, oil and gas partnerships, energy commodity and derivatives traders, and Independent System Operators. The remainder of his practice includes real estate and construction disputes, employment-related issues, partnership disputes, contractual disputes, and other general commercial litigation. Mr. Douglass has also successfully litigated claims involving federal causes of action, including civil RICO, ERISA, and employment discrimination. His practice is based in Chicago, but tends to be geographically varied. For instance, he has represented clients in disputes located in Connecticut, Florida, Indiana, Missouri, New York, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Texas, and other locales. He is a member of the American Bar Association Sections of Litigation and Energy. He is also a member of the Advisory Board and Technology Committee of The Institute for Energy Law. Mr. Douglass received his B.A. magna cum laude from the University of Pittsburgh in 1998 and his J.D. magna cum laude, Order of the Coif, from the University of Georgia School of Law in 2002. He was an articles editor for the University of Georgia Law Review. His bar admissions include: Illinois, Georgia, the United States Court of Appeals for the Eleventh Circuit, the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, the United States District Courts for the Northern and Middle Districts of Georgia, and the United States Tax Court.

Shelby L. Drury (Chapter 11) is of counsel with Novack and Macey LLP in Chicago and has over 14 years’ experience representing both plaintiffs and defendants in a variety of business and commercial litigation matters. In addition to coauthoring this publication, Ms. Drury has previously coauthored a chapter for IICLE® and published an article in the CBA Record. Ms. Drury is a member of the Chicago Bar Association. She received her B.S. with highest honors and the Bronze Tablet distinction (top three percent of her class) from the University of Illinois and her J.D. cum laude from Northwestern University School of Law.

Christopher R. Dunsing (Chapter 10) is an attorney at Langhenry, Gillen, Lundquist & Johnson, LLC, practicing out of their Wheaton office. He received his B.A. in political science and sociology from Santa Clara University and his J.D. from DePaul University College of Law. He is admitted to practice at both the state and federal levels in the state of Illinois and a member of several bar associations. Mr. Dunsing has successful trial verdicts in a number of areas, including employment issues, consumer fraud, breaches of contract, collections, the Uniform Commercial Code, and general business litigation. He currently focuses his practice in the following areas: insurance defense, personal injury defense, professional liability, insurance coverage, construction accident, construction contracts, lemon law and consumer fraud defense and subrogation.

William J. Factor (Chapter 15) of William Factor Bankruptcy & Commercial Law was a partner in the Bankruptcy, Workouts and Business Reorganization Group at Seyfarth Shaw LLP, a Chicago-based law firm with more than 600 attorneys. He is admitted to the Illinois Bar, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, and the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Illinois. Mr. Factor is a member of the American, Illinois State, and Chicago Bar (past vice chair, Judicial Evaluation Committee; past co-chair, Client Development Committee) Associations, the Turnaround Management Association, the Commercial Law League of America, and the American Bankruptcy Institute. He received his A.B. from the University of Chicago and his J.D. with honors, Order of the Coif from DePaul University in 1990.

Joseph G. Feehan (Chapter 6) is a partner with Heyl, Royster, Voelker & Allen, P.C.’s Peoria office. Mr. Feehan concentrates his practice in all areas of insurance defense, including product liability, sexual torts, premises liability, auto, and commercial litigation. He is a member of the Illinois Association of Defense Trial Counsel, where he previously served as the executive editor of the IDC Quarterly and writes the IDC Quarterly’s Evidence and Practice Tips column. He served as co-chair of the IDC’s Young Lawyer Committee. He is currently a member of IDC’s Board of Directors. Mr. Feehan is a member of the Peoria County Bar Association (Courts and Procedures, Continuing Legal Education, and Civil Practice Committees), the Illinois State Bar Association Tort Law Section Council, and the National Association of Diocesan Attorneys. He is a frequent speaker at continuing legal education seminars concerning civil litigation, including such topics as effective trial techniques, expert witnesses, and evidentiary issues. He graduated from Illinois State University and received his J.D. cum laude from Northern Illinois University College of Law.

Joseph E. Gumina (Chapter 7) has extensive experience representing management in a vast array of employment and labor law matters. He graduated from William Mitchell College of Law in St. Paul, Minnesota. Mr. Gumina is a shareholder with O’Neil, Cannon, Hollman, DeJong & Laing S.C. and leads the firm’s labor and employment law practice. He is licensed to practice law in the states of Illinois and Wisconsin and has successfully represented clients in litigation matters in both state and federal courts. He is also a member of the trial bar of the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Illinois. Mr. Gumina represents clients in matters involving employment discrimination claims asserted under Title VII, the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, and the Americans with Disabilities Act. He also represents clients in litigation involving noncompetition agreements and trade secrets, ERISA, occupational safety and health matters, contract matters, wage and hour claims, and traditional labor law issues. He is also a frequent speaker before employer groups and attorneys on topics relating to employment and labor law matters.

Mark D. Hansen (Chapter 3) is a partner in the firm of Heyl, Royster, Voelker & Allen, P.C., in Peoria, where he concentrates his practice in commercial litigation, professional liability, and other areas of civil litigation. Mr. Hansen has served on the Civil Practice and Procedure Section Council of the Illinois State Bar Association and as chair of the Illinois Association of Defense Trial Counsel Spring Defense Tactics Seminar. He is a co-editor of Trial Briefs, the newsletter of the Civil Practice and Procedure Section of the Illinois State Bar Association. He is a graduate of the International Association of Defense Counsel Trial Academy. He is a member of the American, Illinois State, and Peoria County Bar Associations, the Illinois Association of Defense Trial Counsel, and the Defense Research Institute. Mr. Hansen received his B.S. from Northern Illinois University and his J.D. from the University of Illinois College of Law.

William N. Howard (Chapter 1) is an equity partner in the law firm of Freeborn & Peters LLP. He is a past chair of the firm’s Executive Committee and is serving his third term as a member of that committee, which is responsible for devising and executing the firm’s strategic vision. His practice includes the representation of a diverse array of clients from individual entrepreneurs to Fortune 500 corporations in matters involving six-figure controversies to one-half billion dollar disputes. He has experience in all aspects of complex commercial, business, shareholder, trademark, trade secret, non-compete, franchise and product-liability litigation. He also has extensive experience with pre-litigation planning and strategy, litigation avoidance strategies, auditing of business practices, arbitration, mediation, administrative hearings, temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction hearings, and bench and jury trials. Mr. Howard has significant first-chair trial experience. He also has general counsel experience, having served as outside general counsel for various companies. Mr. Howard’s 28 years of business litigation, trial and business counseling experience and expertise, along with his accounting background and general counsel experience, provide him with a unique and unparalleled perspective amongst litigators, trial lawyers, and business advisors. Mr. Howard’s experiences, spanning from doing battle in the courtroom trenches to strategizing and tackling real world issues in the boardroom, provide his clients with an uncommon resource and a savvy, empirical perspective. His ability to combine and provide a pragmatic business and legal view to his clients’ needs and issues provide a foundation for his work as a trusted legal advisor to both private and publicly held businesses. Mr. Howard is also an instructor for the National Institute for Trial Advocacy and an adjunct professor at Chicago-Kent and has taught Advanced Evidence 673 and International Commercial Litigation and Arbitration.

Shermin Kruse (Chapter 12) is a litigation partner who concentrates her practice on intellectual property disputes, antitrust litigation, and general complex commercial contract and tort disputes for a wide variety of domestic and international corporations. Her practice extends to federal, state, and appellate courts throughout the country. She is a columnist for the Chicago Lawyer Magazine, advising younger attorneys on how to find the right work-life balance and succeed in a large law firm environment. In addition, she works with a number of nonprofit entities on a pro bono basis in both civil and criminal cases, has received an award for her pro bono efforts from Illinois Legal Aid Online, serves on several nonprofit boards, and has formed her own nonprofit entities. She has also published creative writing pieces in several national anthologies.

Mitchell L. Marinello (Chapter 17), a partner with Novack and Macey LLP in Chicago, has more than 25 years’ experience in commercial litigation and arbitration and has tried cases in a number of state and federal courts. Mr. Marinello writes frequently on issues of civil procedure, commercial law, and arbitration including articles and/or book chapters for IICLE®, the American Bar Association, the CBA Record, the Illinois Bar Journal, the Trial Lawyers Guide, and the ABA Dispute Resolution Magazine. Mr. Marinello received his B.A. magna cum laude and with honors from Wesleyan University in Middletown, Conn., was a fellow of the Thomas J. Watson Foundation studying labor policy in London, England, and received his J.D. from New York University School of Law, where he was senior writing editor for the Moot Court Board.

Lisa A. Petrilli (Chapter 5) is a senior associate at Sorling, Northrup, Hanna, Cullen & Cochran, Ltd., in Springfield. She received her B.A. cum laude from the University of Illinois at Springfield and her J.D. cum laude from The John Marshall Law School, where she was admitted to the Order of John Marshall. Ms. Petrilli served as a member of The John Marshall Law Review and Jessup International Moot Court Team and has authored a law review article on Illinois Pattern Instructions for Juries in medical malpractice actions published in the fall 2003 edition of The John Marshall Law Review. Ms. Petrilli is a past president of the Central Illinois Women’s Bar Association and is a member of the American, Illinois State, Sangamon County, and Central Illinois Women’s Bar Associations.

Brandon Prosansky (Chapter 12) is an associate with the law firm of Barack Ferrazzano Kirschbaum & Nagelberg LLP in Chicago, where he concentrates his practice in commercial litigation and motor vehicle franchise-related litigation and counseling. After graduating from Miami University in 2001 with a B.S. in business and a B.A., summa cum laude, he worked as a finance and accounting analyst for Procter & Gamble until 2004. He received his J.D. cum laude from Northwestern University School of Law. His professional memberships include the American and Chicago Bar Associations. He also is actively involved in the community. Locally, he serves on both the Board of Directors of the Young Leadership Division and the Executive Committee of the Young Lawyers Group of the JUF/Jewish Federation of Metropolitan Chicago. He also is a member of the Chicago Young Leadership Council for the American Israel Public Affairs Committee. Nationally, he is a member of the National Young Leadership Cabinet of the Jewish Federations of North America.

Gregory J. Rastatter (Chapter 3) is a graduate of the University of Illinois College of Law and an associate at the law firm Heyl, Royster, Voelker & Allen, P.C., in Peoria. He focuses his practice in the areas of commercial litigation and defense of civil litigation.

John M. Redlingshafer (Chapter 6) is an associate with Heyl, Royster, Voelker & Allen, P.C., where he concentrates his practice in government law, representing townships, fire districts, road districts, and other governmental entities in a broad range of issues. He also represents various corporations in contractual negotiations and litigation. He is the immediate past president of the Illinois Township Attorneys Association. He has served on the Board of Directors of the Peoria County Bar Association and is also a member of the Tazewell County Bar Association. Mr. Redlingshafer is a barrister in the Abraham Lincoln Inn of Court and serves on the Local Government Law Section Council of the Illinois State Bar Association. He graduated magna cum laude from Bradley University in Peoria and received his J.D. from DePaul University College of Law.

Gabriel Reilly-Bates (Chapter 9) has practiced in the litigation department of Shefsky & Froelich, Ltd., since 2005. He practiced at Jenner & Block LLP following his graduation from law school. He received his bachelor’s degree with honors in history from the University of Chicago and his J.D. from the Northwestern University School of Law.

Daniel R. Saeedi (Chapter 9) is currently an associate at Shefsky & Froelich Ltd., in its litigation department. In 2008, he graduated magna cum laude from The John Marshall Law School. He received his B.A. from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. Mr. Saeedi was previously employed with the Chicago Corporation Counsel and also served as a judicial extern for Chief Justice Thomas R. Fitzgerald of the Illinois Supreme Court and Judge Ronald A. Guzman of the Northern District of Illinois. His principal areas of practice are: commercial litigation, consumer fraud, fiduciary duties, constitutional law, appellate practice, and injunctive remedies. Mr. Saeedi was admitted to the Illinois bar in 2008 and the Northern District of Illinois bar in 2009. He currently chairs the Illinois State Bar Association Racial and Ethnic Minorities and the Law Committee.

Jessica Perez Simmons (Chapter 12) is a litigation partner with the law firm of Barack Ferrazzano Kirschbaum & Nagelberg LLP, and concentrates her practice in complex commercial litigation and intellectual property law. She graduated from the University of Illinois College of Law. Her undergraduate degree is from the University of Notre Dame, with a Bachelor in Business Administration.

Christopher N. Stanton (Chapter 17) is a commercial litigation associate with Novack and Macey LLP in Chicago. He received his J.D. from the University of Chicago Law School, where he was a member of the law school’s Federal Criminal Justice Project.

Thomas R. Stilp (Chapter 10) received his B.A. and M.M./M.B.A. from Northwestern’s Graduate School of Management, his J.D. from Loyola University Chicago School of Law, where he was on the Law Review, and his LL.M. from The John Marshall Law School. Mr. Stilp has conducted over 150 trials, is admitted to practice before several federal courts, and is a member of various trade, manufacturing, real estate, and bar organizations. He has written several articles on real estate and business litigation used by bar organizations and law schools throughout the country. Having represented banks, title insurers, Fortune 100 companies, developers, and property owners, Mr. Stilp’s practice concentrates in business litigation, debtor-creditor, and commercial real estate.

Todd M. Turner (Chapter 5) is a shareholder at Sorling, Northrup, Hanna, Cullen & Cochran, Ltd., in Springfield. He concentrates his practice in contract law, banking, real estate, state sales and excise tax, and general commercial law. He represents businesses and individuals in many different contractual negotiations and disputes. He has successfully represented individuals in promissory estoppel cases against government entities in cases in which miscalculations of retirement benefits in early retirement incentive plans resulted in lower retirement benefits than otherwise projected. He has also represented clients in a number of matters involving quasi-contract theories. Mr. Turner received his B.A. summa cum laude in history from Western Illinois University and his J.D. magna cum laude from the University of Illinois College of Law. Before entering law school, he served as a judicial intern at the United States Supreme Court, where he worked for Chief Justice William Rehnquist and Justice Sandra Day O’Connor. Mr. Turner has served as an adjunct faculty member at the University of Illinois at Springfield, where he taught real estate law. He has been an author of previous IICLE® publications and has lectured and written continuing education materials on contract law, real estate law, and commercial lending.

Daniel J. Voelker (Chapter 1) is the founder of Voelker Litigation Group in Chicago, where he concentrates his practice in the areas of complex commercial and business litigation and corporate and business consulting. He has authored several chapters for IICLE® publications. He is a member of the faculty for the National Institute for Trial Advocacy, where he teaches trial advocacy and deposition skills. Mr. Voelker is admitted to the Illinois Bar, the United States District Court, for the Northern District of Illinois (Trial Bar), the United States Court of Appeals, for the Seventh Circuit, and the United States Supreme Court. He has served on many committees of the Illinois State Bar Association, including the Supreme Court Rules Committee, the Judicial Evaluation Committee, the Continuing Legal Education Committee, and the Attorney Registration and Disciplinary Commission Committee. He also has served twice as a member of the Illinois Bar Journal Editorial Board. Mr. Voelker received his B.S. in accounting from the University of Illinois and his J.D. with high honors from IIT Chicago-Kent College of Law. He is a CPA and an adjunct professor of law at IIT Chicago-Kent College of Law, where he teaches international commercial litigation and arbitration. Mr. Voelker has been named a Leading Lawyer and a Super Lawyer, and has achieved an AV peer rating from Martindale-Hubbell, reflecting “very high to preeminent legal ability.”

Michael A. Weinberg (Chapter 8) is a commercial litigator with more than 35 years of experience and is a partner with Novack and Macey LLP, where he has practiced since 1989. Before joining Novack and Macey, he was a partner with Kadish and Weinberg, and an associate with Levy and Erens and the Chicago office of Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom LLP. In addition, he spent time in the early 1980s serving as in-house counsel for several commodity futures brokerage firms. Mr. Weinberg represents a broad spectrum of clients, ranging from individual entrepreneurs to large publicly traded corporations, and the scope of his nationwide but Chicago-based practice is equally diverse, encompassing, among other things, disputes involving lender liability, family business succession, breach of contract, real estate and construction, securities and futures, business torts, and employment. He is a member of the American Bar Association and the Chicago Bar Association. Mr. Weinberg received his A.B. with honors and distinction at Vassar College in 1973. He received his J.D. from the University of Michigan Law School in 1976, where he was the note editor for the University of Michigan Law Review. His bar admissions include: Illinois, United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit, United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, and the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois (member of the Trial Bar). Mr. Weinberg is the co-author of If the Supreme Court Does Not Imply a Private Judicial Cause of Action Under the Commodity Exchange Act, 1 (supp.) Journal of Futures Markets 519 (1981).

Collin B. Williams (Chapter 18) is an associate with Greenberg Traurig, LLP in Chicago. He focuses his practice on labor and employment matters and commercial and products liability litigation in both state and federal court. He received his B.A. from Middlebury College and his J.D. cum laude from Tulane University Law School in 2003. He is a member of the Defense Research Institute and the Mississippi, Illinois State, and Chicago Bar Associations.

Garry L. Wills (Chapter 1) is a partner at the law firm of Freeborn & Peters LLP in Chicago. He received his B.A. from Yale University and his J.D. from Northwestern University School of Law. He concentrates his practice on commercial litigation. His experience includes trial and appellate work on behalf of both plaintiffs and defendants in a wide range of state and federal commercial matters.