JOSEPH ALIOTO
Alioto Law Firm

Joseph M. Alioto has tried more antitrust cases than any other attorney. He has represented plaintiffs resulting in the largest judgments in the history of the Antitrust laws since the 1890s. He has represented independent companies and corporations of all sizes, farmers, inventors, patent holders, manufacturers, suppliers, wholesalers, retailers, distributors, unions, consumers, and entrepreneurs against foreign as well as domestic corporations.

The cases the Alioto law firm has tried have involved every major industry from manufacturing to service, trading to finance, supply to retail, transportation to mining, foreign and domestic. Mr. Alioto has litigated over 350 antitrust cases and has tried approximately one hundred antitrust trials in federal and state court involving issues relating to monopolization, attempts to monopolize, conspiracies to monopolize, price fixing, group boycotts, market and customer allocations, tie-in arrangements, exclusive dealing, commercial bribery, unlawful acquisitions and mergers, discriminatory pricing, predatory pricing, interlocking directorates, and other anti-competitive conduct.

He has won many high-profile cases, including:

• bray v. Safeway stores, Inc., et al. (1975): cattlemen brought action against the three largest retail grocery chains for price-fixing, resulting in the largest judgement in the antitrust laws up to that time;
• McDonald (Stimtech) v. Johnson & Johnson (1979): entrepreneurs brought suit against Johnson & Johnson for the suppression of the tens devices to benefit Tylenol, resulting in the largest antitrust judgement up to that time;
• The Raiders v. The NFL (1983): professional football team brought suit against the NFL for impeding the team’s move from Oakland, CA, a landmark case resulting in the legality for professional sports teams to change markets; and
• TFT v. LDC Indirect Purchasers (2016): consumers brought action against Japanese, Korean, and Taiwanese companies for the pricefixing of flat panels, resulting in the largest all cash settlement in favor of consumers.

He has argued antitrust cases before the Supreme Court of The United States, the Supreme Court of the state of California, and the United States Courts of Appeal for the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth, tenth, and eleventh circuits. He has tried cases throughout the united states and has been admitted to practice in district courts from Boston to Honolulu, including Las Vegas and Reno, Nevada. He has lectured on antitrust laws, testified before committees of the United States Senate, The House of Representatives, and the senate and assembly of the state of California.

Mr. Alioto received his juris doctorate from the university of San Francisco school of law in 1968, was admitted to practice before the supreme court of California in January 1969.

FULL FACULTY LISTING
THE HONORABLE MAKAN DELRAHIM
US Department of Justice, Antitrust Division

Makan Delrahim was confirmed on September 27, 2017, as Assistant Attorney General for the Antitrust Division. Mr. Delrahim previously served as Deputy Assistant to the President and Deputy White House Counsel. Mr. Delrahim’s rich antitrust background covers the full range of industries, issues, and institutions touched upon by the work of the Antitrust Division. He is a former partner in the Los Angeles office of a national law firm. He served in the Antitrust Division from 2003 to 2005 as a Deputy Assistant Attorney General, overseeing the Appellate, International, and Policy sections. During that time, he played an integral role in building the Antitrust Division’s engagement with its international counterparts and was involved in civil and criminal matters. He has served on the Attorney General’s Task Force on Intellectual Property and as Chairman of the Merger Working Group of the International Competition Network. Mr. Delrahim also served as a Commissioner on the Antitrust Modernization Commission from 2004 to 2007. Earlier in his career, Mr. Delrahim served as antitrust counsel, and later as the Staff Director and Chief Counsel of the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee.
EDUARDO FRADE
VMCA Vinicius Marques de Carvalho Advogados

Eduardo’s practice focuses on competition and regulatory matters, mostly involving complex mergers and acquisitions transactions, cartel and abuse of dominant position defenses, compliance issues, and also negotiations and advocacy. He assists national and international companies from numerous industries, operating in different markets, such as infrastructure, energy, petrochemical, fuel, mining, construction, telecommunications, healthcare, and loyalty programs.

Eduardo served in Brazil’s federal government from 2007 to 2017. As General-Superintendent of the Administrative Council for Economic Defense (CADE), he headed the Brazilian antitrust agency’s merger reviews, as well as its cartel and unilateral conduct investigations. He also served as Deputy-Superintendent at CADE, advisor for Commissioners at CADE’s Tribunal and participated in a secondment at the Canadian Competition Bureau. Eduardo played a leading role in restructuring CADE in 2012 after the new Brazilian Competition Law entered into force. The new policies propelled the Brazilian authority into the elite international antitrust authorities, earning CADE three GCR awards of “Agency of the Year in the Americas”.

For a decade, Eduardo had a part in most of the important cases taken on by the antitrust authority, in several different markets, including over 2,000 mergers, and hundreds of investigations, both domestic and international. He also coordinated the negotiation of several merger remedies, more than 100 anticompetitive conduct settlements and nearly 40 leniency agreements. His tenure in the federal government also includes expertise in the civil aviation sector, as Eduardo headed a unit at the Regulatory Policy branch of the Brazilian Civil Aviation Secretariat, which helped design the new civil aviation regulatory policy and participated in the first round of airport concessions in Brazil. Throughout his years as a public official, Eduardo took part in the elaboration and implementation of rules, policies and regulations, and interacted intensely with several sectors of the government and private enterprises, regulatory agencies, prosecutors, foreign authorities, and other agents. He is a frequent speaker in conferences and seminars in Brazil and abroad and has published several articles and books on regulation and antitrust.

ACADEMIC BACKGROUND
Eduardo holds a Master of Laws from the University of Brasília and post-graduate degrees in Competition Policy from the Getúlio Vargas Foundation (FGV) and in Public Policy by the Brazilian National School of Public Administration. He holds bachelor degrees both in law (UniCEUB) and in international relations (University of Brasília) and took part in the George Washington University Advanced Seminar on Regulatory Policy.

ACADEMIC ACTIVITIES
Eduardo is currently a guest professor at the FGV Law Program and was a visiting scholar at the Global Antitrust Institute of the Antonin Scalia Law School at George Mason University.
