November 15-16, 2019
South Texas College of Law Houston
Houston, TX

This two-day interactive Institute features opportunities to learn from some of the leading mediators and advocates in North America by bringing you “into the room” via video. Advocates and mediators alike shouldn’t miss this opportunity to learn what their constituents find works well, and not so well, in direct negotiations and mediated settlement discussions!

ambar.org/med2019
This year’s Institute will provide an overview of seminal findings and take-aways from key research studies in the field including by the ABA, AAA and others. The program will encompass a discussion of seven specific mediator techniques that parties and advocates find both appealing and unappealing, effective and less effective, as identified and informed by these cutting-edge studies.

Through unique videos created by Suffolk University Law Professor Dwight Golann, you’ll see a diverse group of seasoned neutrals and advocates demonstrate techniques for breaking impasse and facilitating agreement. You’ll observe the neutrals confront common issues, sometimes using controversial techniques; we’ll then ask you to discuss how one might respond, and invite you to critique what they did.

Plenary sessions will be followed by small group discussions led by experts in the field. These discussions provide an opportunity for mediators and advocates to interact in small facilitated groups and create a unique environment to enhance your skill, knowledge and understanding of direct negotiation and third-party mediation processes.

Mediator Techniques & Emotions Plenary

BEHAVIORS STUDIED

- Addressing disputants’ emotions, relationships or hostility
- Working to build rapport and trust, expressing empathy, structuring the agenda, or other “process” styles and actions

PRESENTATION/DISCUSSION

- “Humanizing” the disputing parties one to another by diffusing hostilities and negative emotions from the outset can inevitably make for a much more satisfying and productive mediation experience for all. Thus, the topics highlighted in Plenary #1 should arguably be “Job 1” for any serious mediator and for insightful counsel in best representing the interests of their principals...not only substantively, but emotionally and attitudinally as well. Similarly, a mediator’s primary focus from the outset (pre-mediation and beyond) must be to build rapport and genuine trust with the parties.

MODERATOR

- Susan Guthrie, Breaking Free Mediation, Inc.

PRESENTERS:

- Kathleen Coble, Coble Law and Mediation
- Dr. Debra Dupree, Relationships At Work Inc
- Lori LaConta, LaConta ADR

10:20am – 11:35am
Small Group Discussions on Mediator Techniques and Emotions in Mediation

Mediations are often highly charged emotional experiences for the principals and learning to manage those emotions and to create empathy and trust can be powerful tools for the mediator and advocate alike. Discuss how you address disputant emotions, create trust and show empathy and the outcome of each with your group. How do you find this helpful or no so helpful? Groups will have tracks such as Family, Young Lawyers, and Litigation.

Eliciting Disputant Suggestion and Caucusing Plenary

BEHAVIORS STUDIED
- Eliciting disputants’ suggestions or solutions
- Using pre-mediation caucuses
- Using caucuses during mediation

PRESENTATION/DISCUSSION
This plenary focus explores effective techniques by which skillful mediators and advocates draw parties/participants into the process willingly and cause them to take greater ownership of the problem by eliciting suggestions/solutions through: (1) pre-mediation caucusing (largely for purposes of trust building and process design); (2) course of mediation caucusing (largely for options generation and problem solving); and even (3) post-mediation caucusing (largely for maintaining momentum, continued problem solving, and ultimately for purposes of “conflict containment”, should a complete resolution of the issues not be in sight at that stage of the conflict management continuum.)

Negotiating / Mediating Effectively AND Ethically

This plenary will include a much needed focus on relevant lawyer ethical canons of the Model Rules of Professional Conduct (ABA, 2018) and the Model Standards of Conduct for Mediators (2005) concerning: (1) the ethical boundaries of “puffing,” nondisclosure and deception within the framework of lawyer negotiations; and (2) how mediators are charged with being the principal guardians of process safety – physical, psychological and emotional, for the wellbeing of all participants. Mediators should be attitudinally and emotionally attuned to the spirit and mechanics underlying this ethical precept, applicable to all mediation types and settings.

Saturday, November 16th

7:15am – 8:30am
Continental Breakfast & Networking

8:30am – 9:30am
Pressing/Directive Mediator Actions and Mediator Recommendations /Opinions Plenary

Behaviors Studied

- Pressing or directive actions or approaches
- Offering recommendations, suggestion, evaluations, or opinions

Presentation/Discussion
This plenary turns to the more conventional impasse-breaking approaches used by some mediators and advocates, but bordering on the unethical in some cases, in their zeal to “seal the deal.” The exploration would focus on when and how effective yet ethical mediators and counsel navigate among facilitative, evaluative, transformative and yes...even directive models in varying degrees, but, significantly, always in manners respectful of party self-determination. Techniques will be demonstrated and “unpacked” for how a seasoned/ circumspect mediator might offer recommendations, suggestions, evaluations or opinions in a “self-determined” manner (even when operating primarily in a facilitative mode) and how counsel can work most effectively in partnership with mediators to achieve these outcomes.

The Rise of International Mediation: the Singapore Convention

Why has mediation been the lagging sidekick to arbitration in the world of international conflict resolution? We all know the myriad advantages that mediation has over arbitration; why is mediation not being embraced as enthusiastically as arbitration?

This session will address this question through the lens of a potentially paradigm shifting event: the August 7th signing of UNCITRAL’s “The Singapore Mediation Convention”, on the Enforcement of International Settlement Agreements. This agreement provides an enforcement mechanism for mediated settlements similar to that promulgated in 1958 for arbitration awards. The arbitration agreement, known as the “New York Convention”, shook the world, and put arbitration on the map, for having married the impartial dispute resolution methodology of arbitration (in distinction to litigation held in potentially biased local courts) with transnational enforcement mechanism.

Will the Singapore convention put some extra vitamins in Robin’s Wheaties, bringing him out of Batman’s shadow to perhaps create a new co-equal or even superior superhero? Our panel will discuss the mechanics and potential impact of the Singapore Convention, just a short few months after its initial signing.
