Sponsorship Opportunities

DIAMOND SPONSOR – $15,000

Diamond Sponsor Standard Benefits

1. Six complimentary Conference registrations, which includes attendance at any and all additional programs such as receptions and awards ceremonies at the conference hotel, open to regular conference attendees.
2. One large (3 foot by 2 foot) individualized, and unique to the sponsor, poster at the registration desk featuring the sponsor’s logos.
3. Table top exhibit display in the Exhibit Hall (includes 60 x 20-inch table for display) with choice of table location based on availability.
4. One full-page advertisement in the Spring 2018 issue of Dispute Resolution Magazine, the quarterly magazine of the Section of Dispute Resolution, distributed to 12,000 members and subscribers.
5. A banner ad in the Conference App. In 2018, the App was used by over 500 Conference attendees. The 2018 Conference App banners had more than 66,000 impressions.
6. The option to list the sponsor’s logo alongside five or fewer concurrent conference programs within the Conference App (for programs organized by or featuring speakers affiliated with the sponsor); or, one diamond sponsor can opt to sponsor the Conference Tote bag with your logo featured on the bag (the tote bag option is available to the first committed Diamond sponsor to request this option); or one diamond sponsor can opt to sponsor the Registration Badge Lanyards with the sponsoring organization’s logo prominently displayed (the lanyard option is available to the first committed Diamond sponsor to request this option).
7. Access to preregistration list of attendees after Early Bird registration closes and again when published a week prior to the Meeting (per ABA policy, this list cannot include e-mail addresses).
8. Opportunity to work with workshop proposal drafter in selecting panelists for a select group of conference workshops to be selected solely by the Conference Program Chairs.

This opportunity is designed to offer Diamond Level sponsors more speaking opportunities at the 2019 Annual Spring Meeting. Diamond sponsors may submit up to three (3) substantive Continuing Legal Education (CLE) proposals via the online proposal submission process to be considered as their one sponsored program.

The Diamond Level Sponsorship workshop proposal process is a competitive process. The formal Call-for-Conference-Program proposals will be sent to former sponsors, section members, and interested parties.

If the organizing ABA Section of Dispute Resolution Committee selects one of the proposals as a “sponsored” program, the sponsor must become a Diamond Level sponsor to organize and present the selected CLE program.

For more information about sponsorship, advertising, and exhibiting with the Section of Dispute Resolution, contact Brandon Moore-Rhodes at 202-662-1688 or brandon.moore@americanbar.org.
All program proposals must follow the ABA Section of Dispute Resolution’s Guidelines for Proposing a Program. Sponsored programs must follow all of the Section of Dispute Resolution program guidelines, except that sponsored programs are allowed to have multiple presenters from the sponsoring organization (the proposal rules state that for non-sponsored programs no two panelists can be from the same organization).

To celebrate the Section’s 25th Anniversary and the 20th Anniversary of the Spring Conference, sponsors under $1,500 will be designated as Friends of the Conference and may show their support by donating a monetary contribution of less than $1,500. Friends of the Conference will be recognized in the Conference Program Book and on the Conference web site only. For those Friends of the Conference who sponsor above $250, sponsors will have the opportunity to provide a brief congratulations and best wishes to the Section and the Conference within the Conference Program Book.
Add-On Networking and Program Sponsorship Opportunities

(These Networking and Program sponsorship opportunities are add-on options only available to organizations that have committed to one of the standard sponsorship packages listed above).

Welcome Reception (exclusive) $7,500
1. Sponsor’s name and logo displayed on a free-standing sign at the Welcome Reception
2. Sponsor’s name and logo posted on the Conference website with a hyperlink to sponsor’s homepage
3. Acknowledgement in the On-Site Meeting App
4. Sponsor’s name and logo displayed on each bar and food station
5. Option to provide cups and napkins branded with sponsor’s name and logo
6. An opportunity to display sponsor’s promotional and informational literature at the Welcome Reception

Networking Break Sponsor ($3,000)
Extend networking time and attract attendee’s attention to sponsor’s organization and work! Includes coffee/tea/water and a snack during a 30-minute networking break. Designation as a primary sponsor of one thirty-minute coffee or networking break with appropriate signage and recognition on the Conference website with a hyperlink to sponsor’s website and acknowledgement in App; option to provide cups and napkins branded with the sponsor’s name and logo and an opportunity to display sponsor’s promotional and informational literature or information at break.

Wireless Internet for Attendees
Provide wireless internet to the Spring Conference. Sponsor logo will be included on the Wi-Fi welcome page and on signage throughout the meeting venue. Sponsor will be recognized on the conference website and in the conference app and all wireless access announcements. Costs would be $8500 per day.

Key Cards
Sponsors may have the ability to customize the hotel guest room key card with their organization’s message. The key card is ever present in every hotel guest’s pocket, purse or bag during their stay. It provides an opportunity to unlock more than just a hotel room door. Costs would be $5 per key card per peak night, there are 2 key cards per room. Key Card Sleeves are $3 per packet.

Charging Station
Attendees will be bringing their various devices to the Conference so competition for access to electrical outlets will be fierce. Make it easy for Conference attendees to charge their devices and sponsor a cart or two with access to electricity at a cost of $250 per station per day.

Exhibiting Opportunities

The exhibit area is open Thursday and Friday and located to maximize exposure to attendees for all exhibitors. The welcome reception will be held in the Exhibit Hall on Thursday afternoon/evening, and all breaks will be held in the Exhibit Hall.

The Exhibit space at the Minneapolis Hyatt will be in the Nicollet Promenade and the Lakeshore Promenade, immediately adjacent to the Nicollet Promenade. Eighteen exhibit tables will be in the Nicollet Promenade; five tables will be placed in the Lakeshore Promenade. We urge you to reserve your spot today to be able to select a table in your preferred location; but please note that Diamond Sponsors will receive first option to select a table location.

Exhibiting Fee: $1,250

Exhibitor Package Includes
- One Skirted 6’ table in the Exhibit Hall
- Two Chairs
- One waste basket
- Daily Continental Breakfast
- Listing in the program book, conference web site and mobile application
- Two Exhibit-Only registrations for exhibiting staff (Exhibit-Only registration mean that the exhibiting staff will not be able to attend conference programs)
- Exhibitors may register one or two members of the exhibiting organization as Exhibitors/Attendees at the Special Discounted Conference Attendee rate. Any other attendees who are affiliated with the exhibiting organization must register at their applicable conference registration rate.

Unpaid Exhibitors will not be advertised. We will reserve the location of your choice for up to seven days following the receipt of your request for exhibit space. After seven days the space will be released and open for accommodation.

Exhibitor Move-In Schedule
Exhibitors will move in on the afternoon of Wednesday, April 10th.

Exhibition Schedule
The exhibit hall will be open on Thursday and Friday, April 11th and 12th. Exhibitors who wish to have a display table for the Symposium on ADR in the Courts on April 10th and/or the Legal Educators Colloquium on April 13th should contact Brandon Moore-Rhodes.

Exhibitor Move-Out Schedule
Exhibitors must move out of the Exhibit Hall on the evening of Friday, April 12th.

Exhibit Hall space at the Minneapolis Hyatt
The Exhibit Hall at the Minneapolis Hyatt cannot be locked during evening hours. The ABA staff will have nearby meeting rooms where exhibitors will be able to store valuable items during the evenings.

Expectations for Exhibitors
• All exhibitors MUST register at the ABA Registration Desk upon arrival. Exhibitors will only be permitted to set up and break down during the times specified above. Exhibitors must be set-up by the time the exhibit hall opens on Thursday morning.
• Exhibitors with large displays will be assigned space that does not obstruct the views or space within the Exhibit Hall.
• Mantling/dismantling of exhibits will not be permitted during Exhibition Hours.
• Exhibitors will work directly with the Hyatt conference staff to arrange for electrical, audio-visual support, and shipment of conference materials.

Cancellation and Refund Policy
Cancellations must be made in writing and received by January 26, 2019 for a total refund minus a $100.00 processing fee. No refund for exhibit space will be granted after that date except in the written case of medical emergency or extenuating circumstance approved by the Section.

Deadlines
Exhibitors must be submitted by January 26, 2019 to be guaranteed placement in conference program book and mobile app.

All names of exhibiting staff (exhibitors-only and exhibitors/attendees) must be provided to the ABA staff by March 8, 2019. Otherwise the exhibiting staff will not have conference name badges and will not be allowed access to the exhibit hall or any other conference related events.

DISPUTE RESOLUTION IN COMPLEX TIMES

Develop your skills and learn from leading experts in the field. The conference agenda includes excellent programming on mediation, arbitration, negotiation, and specialty practice areas all geared toward making you a better Dispute Resolution professional.

Whether you are new to dispute resolution practice or have been practicing for decades, the 2018 ABA Section of Dispute Resolution Spring Conference has something for you.
The conference events on Wednesday include the Symposium on ADR in the Courts for court ADR administrators, judges, neutrals, and researchers. Attendance at the Wednesday Symposium programs is included in the full conference registration. Those who wish to only attend the Wednesday programs should purchase a one-day Wednesday conference registration. Other Wednesday events include the ABA Law School Representation in Mediation Competition Nationals and the ABA Section of Dispute Resolution Leadership and Council Meetings.

Integrating Online Dispute Resolution into the Courts

Columbia 3 & 4 (Terrace Level)

Online Dispute Resolution (ODR) is here, and increasingly, courts and legal service providers are recognizing its potential in expanding access to justice for parties involved in low dollar value civil cases. This session will introduce a variety of ODR tools and show them in action, as well as addressing some of the potential ethical dilemmas technology can introduce. Growing out of more than two decades of real-world experience, the presenters will discuss these challenges and share ideas regarding best practices and important procedural safeguards.

Justice and the Quality of Court ADR
Columbia 11 & 12 (Terrace Level)

Providing fair and efficient justice is among the courts' most fundamental responsibilities. What, then, are courts' quality assurance obligations when administering ADR programs or referring litigants to an ADR process or practitioner? Panelists and session participants will share and receive ideas, techniques, and tools to promote and evaluate the quality of court ADR programs.

I'll Do It My Way: Differences and Their Outcomes in Federal District Court ADR 2:00 pm – 3:15 pm
Columbia 3 & 4 (Terrace Level)

The Federal Judicial Center recently completed a comprehensive study of ADR in eight federal district courts. The district courts have wide discretion to design and manage their ADR procedures as they prefer, consistent with demands of the caseload, preferences of the bar, judges’ views of the role of a court, or almost any other factor. Consequently, ADR procedures vary greatly across districts. In what way? Why? And with what consequences? Moderated by the lead researcher from the FJC, join this panel of representatives from three study courts as they discuss their courts' ADR procedures and what the FJC’s findings may suggest for ADR policy and practice in the federal courts.

Court ADR Case Management Systems - Overcoming the Obstacles  2:00 pm – 3:15 pm
Columbia 11 & 12 (Terrace Level)

Court case management systems typically lack adequate support for administering and tracking cases assigned to ADR. As a result, court ADR programs often rely on ancillary systems that require duplicate data entry. And, these ancillary systems don’t include data from the primary system that would be valuable in reporting, evaluating, and improving ADR program outcomes. Panelists, including experts in court case management systems, and session participants will share and learn from each other’s experiences addressing these challenges. They will identify approaches to establish robust systems for managing cases assigned to court ADR programs and administering and evaluating those programs.

Ethically Speaking, Can a Judge Really be a Mediator?  3:30 pm - 4:30 pm
Columbia 3 & 4 (Terrace Level)

Beyond doubt, a judge at any level of the administrative or judicial system must act in accordance with the highest expectations of ethical behavior. But current ethical standards for either mediators or judges do not plainly establish standards for uniquely situated judge-mediators. Are judge-mediators more mediator than judge, or more judge than mediator? Do the ethical duties of a judge and a mediator conflict, or are the ethical principles for both roles compatible?

Welcome and Introduction by Benjamin G. Davis, ABA Section of Dispute Resolution Chair

Presentation of the D'Alemberte Raven Award to Thomas L. Friedman

The D'Alemberte Raven Award is the highest honor given by the ABA Section of Dispute Resolution. The award recognizes outstanding service in the field of dispute resolution. The Award is named for Robert D. Raven and Talbot D'Alemberte, both of whom were ABA Presidents and Dispute Resolution Chairs who shared a commitment to fostering the American Bar Association's leadership in the area of dispute resolution. This award honors an individual or organization who has through service, research and writing significantly contributed to the ongoing effort to resolving conflicts.

This year’s award recognizes Mr. Friedman’s writings on foreign affairs and globalization that have provoked reflection and discussion. His contributions have helped us to understand how we might navigate and respond to the evolving sources of conflict in an increasingly fast-paced interdependent world.

Thomas L. Friedman has won the Pulitzer Prize three times for his work at The New York Times. His foreign affairs column in The New York Times reports on US domestic politics and foreign policy, Middle East conflicts, international economics, environment, biodiversity and energy. His sixth book, That Used to Be Us: How American Fell Behind in the World We Invented and How We Can Come Back, co-written with Michael Mandelbaum, was released in 2011. His new book, Thank you For Being Late: An Optimist's Guide to Thriving in the Age of Accelerations 2.0, was updated and released 2017.

The Detroit Bankruptcy: The Power of Mediation 10:00 am - 11:00 am
Columbia 3 (Terrace Level)

The City of Detroit has emerged from the largest municipal bankruptcy in US history as a model of urban renewal and an example of the power of mediation. The City’s bankruptcy proceedings may also be a model for municipalities in current difficulty. Retired Judges Steve Rhodes and Jerry Rosen—best known for their roles in presiding over and mediating Detroit’s 2013 bankruptcy—will explore key issues in that case together with David Heiman, lead counsel for the City, with a focus on how mediation enabled creative problem solving and resulted in an agreed upon plan of adjustment in record time.

When Healthcare Goes Badly: You Don’t Have to Litigate to Solve the Problem
10:00 am - 11:00 am
Embassy (Terrace Level)

With life, death and health in the balance, adverse experiences in healthcare can produce particularly high-stress conflicts. Although physicians and administrators often fear litigation in these situations, predispute mediation can often produce better resolutions while avoiding the high costs and prolonged antagonisms of lawsuits. This panel describes three very distinct programs sharing a common goal: using early mediation to provide patients and families with answers, even apologies, and in many cases a complete resolution. Panelists will describe the University of Pittsburgh Medical Center’s “Intermediation Program,” the Department of Defense’s “Healthcare Resolutions Program,” and the University of Florida’s mandatory mediation program.

Rethinking Mediation Advocacy: Practical Strategies Based Upon The Behavioral Sciences
Columbia 11 (Terrace Level)

10:00 am - 11:00 am

Behavioral science data points us in one direction, but modern civil mediation practice is moving us the other way. This presentation first explores current behavioral science data as to both client and counsel handicapping errors and pitfalls, then juxtaposes that data against problematic trends in mediation practice today. Based on the speaker’s experience designing and executing early dispute resolution (EDR) initiatives in his roles as a public company general counsel, the program then outlines proven strategies and specific fixes for advocates and neutrals that incorporate what the brain science reveals.

Using ADR to Resolve Intellectual Property Disputes
Gunston (Terrace Level)

Intellectual Property (IP) has gone through dramatic changes in recent years as to standards of protection eligibility, proofs, administrative agency cancellation of granted rights, the Defend Trade Secrets Act, and remedies all leading to increased uncertainties of outcome, high stakes and certainty of costs and delays. ADR (mediation, arbitration, case assessments) with an independent experienced single neutral or panel can yield quicker resolution at lower cost as well as greater confidentiality. We will explore how to reach a resolution effective between the parties and for multiple countries and multiple issues transcending national boundaries and limits of courts’ jurisdiction and tailored to parties' needs.

Is Third-Party Funding the Elephant in the Room?
Cardozo (Terrace Level)

10:00 am - 11:00 am

Third-party funding, whether for the benefit of plaintiffs, corporate defendants or contingency fee attorneys in both domestic and international disputes is on the rise. Traditionally, contingency fee attorneys have advanced litigation expenses, including their fees, which can be seen as a form of litigation funding. What effects do these practices have on decisions to settle including mediation negotiations and agreements? What can be done to ensure that the parties retain control of strategic and settlement decisions?

Beyond Smart: Lawyering with Emotional Intelligence--A Critical Edge in Challenging Times
Columbia 4 (Terrace Level)

10:00 am - 11:00 am

Emotional intelligence (EI) is the ability to recognize, understand and regulate our own and others' emotions. Industries worldwide have incorporated EI into their hiring, training and leadership programs to maximize performance. In contrast, the legal community has given little notice to the role of emotions. This newly released book from the DR Section discusses EI for the first time in the unique context of practicing law. Muir identifies the many advantages of EI to individuals and law practices in these challenging times, how to determine your emotional intelligence, and the steps that raise individual and workplace EI.

Responding to Mediator Challenges
Columbia 12 (Terrace Level)

3:30 pm - 4:30 pm

Mediator challenges happen for all mediators, whether experienced or relatively new. One participant rises and shouts. New information suddenly emerges at the end of the session, which totally changes the situation. The mediator hears something in a caucus which the participant doesn't want shared, but which is troubling. One participant isn't represented and may not be fully knowledgeable as to the consequences of the proposed agreement. These and many other challenges occur during mediations - and what should we do? This session will present a video of a mediation with challenges. At each challenge, the video will be paused and the panelists and then the participants in the room will discuss what they would do. At the end, a list of mediator responses will be provided for all participants as a tool for the future.

Is There A Single Mediation Ethics for All Mediators? General, Problem-Solving, Transformative, and Narrative Approaches to Mediation Ethics in Theory and Practice
Cardozo (Terrace Level)

3:30 pm - 4:30 pm

Mediation practice is highly diversified. There are different styles or models of mediation, with mediators choosing the style or mixture of styles that suit them best. The most acknowledged styles are Problem-Solving, Transformative, and Narrative mediation.

It is generally accepted that all mediators must conduct themselves ethically, and that ethical conduct is key to the professionalization of mediation, its ability to command public trust, and to its success in providing a sustainable appropriate dispute resolution procedure. But what does ethical practice mean? Does it mean the same for problem-solving, transformative, and narrative mediators? And if not, what are the differences between these notions of ethics and do they have practical implications?

What role for dispute resolution?: Arbitration rule or rule of Arbitration? 3:30 pm - 4:30 pm

Columbia 1 & 2 (Terrace Level)

This past summer, the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau issued a rule to prohibit pre-dispute arbitration clauses in consumer financial contracts. Congress has recently passed and the President has signed into Law H.J.Res. 111 which nullifies the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau's rule prohibiting the use of a pre-dispute arbitration agreement to prevent a consumer from filing or participating in certain class action suits. During the run up to the Congressional vote, the Comptroller of the Currency - the federal bank regulator - had expressed concerns about the CFPB rule as had several banking organizations. At the same time several consumer organizations and even the American Legion weighed in against the repeal of the rule calling in vain for President Trump to not sign H.J. Res. 111. This panel will examine the arguments on all sides in this area and what is the likely impact of the nullification of the rule for dispute resolution? What role diversity? What ADR response?

4:45 pm – 5:45 pm

This program discusses an innovative claims resolution process. In the wake of Walmart, Professor Lynn Cohn faced the task of disbursing one of the largest race discrimination class action settlements in an efficient yet individualized manner. In less than one year, she disbursed claims to the 81% of class members participating. Her process included both a simple claims form with expedited disbursement and a detailed claims form and individualized interview with increased procedural justice benefits. Moderator Michael Lewis will lead a discussion among Special Master Lynn Cohn, Lead Class Counsel Linda Friedman, Mediator Linda Singer, and class representatives about the many aspects of this case including class action waivers and mandatory arbitration clauses, procedural justice, dispute resolution systems design, and the role of special master and neutrals.

Re-framing Hate: Practice-Based Ideas for Dispute Resolution’s Role Regarding Hate Incidents
Columbia 8 (Terrace Level)

4:45 pm – 5:45 pm

Not-for-profits report a surge in hate incidents across the country. Dispute Resolution practitioners have the skill-set and the opportunity to support communities responding to hate as well as those developing resilience in advance of a triggering incident. Grounded by the real-world experience of panelists, this engaging conversation will illustrate how dispute resolution practitioners can support communities in the face of hate.

Saying it's So Does Not Make It So: The Multi-party Negotiation Behind the Repeal of Don't Ask, Don't Tell

Columbia 5, 6, 7, & 8 (Terrace Level)

This panel will explore the behind the scenes multiparty negotiations that lead to the repeal of “Don’t Ask, Don’t Tell.” It took more than a directive from the President to repeal the policy. Three members of the team that helped spearhead the Pentagon’s review will reflect on the process that was created and the lessons learned for others who may need to gain wide support for change by Congress, the Executive Branch, government agencies, interest groups, and the public.

At the time the President called for the end of Don’t Ask, Don’t Tell, the team members focused on getting the review and assessment done. Only after the fact, did they realize that they had managed a large-scale, multi-party negotiation.

The panel will discuss how the Pentagon facilitated a consensus (mostly so) among military branches, key members of Congress, and outside interest groups. Their experience is an instructive case study of negotiations and consensus building on a “hot-button” issue of which many are aware but few know the behind the scene details of how the change was “negotiated.”

Teaching Negotiations in the Military: Is that an Oxymoron?
Cardozo (Terrace Level)
10:30 am – 11:30 am

This program considers lessons from the military integrating negotiations into its training across military branches. These new programs are encountering challenges similar to teaching negotiations to litigators. Both the officer and litigator that have been trained to win on the battlefield or in the courtroom need to adopt a different mindset and approach when switching to negotiating. Military officers when deployed in hostile regions also face challenges of limited time and deep distrust that offer negotiation lessons for others. This program will be based on the insights of several military leaders who are helping to spearhead from within the use of negotiation and the experiences of Professor Abramson who is spending this academic year as a visiting professor helping the US Air Force Academy build its negotiation program.

Mediating Construction Defect Claims As Catharsis – Legal And Therapeutic
Columbia 3 (Terrace Level)
10:30 am – 11:30 am

Constructive Defect Claims are incredibly complex, expensive, unwieldy and exasperating types of litigation. Numerous parties, extensive documentation, numerous depositions and competing experts, along with underlying insurance coverage disputes and parallel declaratory judgment actions, cumulatively present the toughest legal and emotional challenges of the litigation process. Often these claims involve the emotional trauma of families and pets being displaced from their homes for long periods of time during long-running and contentious litigation. Clients’ anxiety levels are high.

This program addresses the alternative route of mediation as a cost-effective means to resolve these issues quicker with the mediation as catharsis –legal and therapeutic approach.

#StayWoke: Lessons from Birmingham, Implementing Critical Cultural Competency in Mediation Practice  10:30 am – 11:30 am
_Columbia 10 (Terrace Level)_

All eyes were watching: 1963, Birmingham, Alabama - The radical enforcement of racial segregation garnered national and international attention, bringing the brutality and inhumanity of America’s racial order to the forefront of global citizens’ minds. Though significant racial progress has been made throughout Alabama over the past 50 years, the influence of Jim Crow on cultural biases persist in myriad contexts. Drawing upon the experiences of two award-winning mediators in Birmingham, this presentation demonstrates how mediators become aware of and competent in managing historical and contemporary dynamics of race, gender, class and other identity constructs in mediation practice.

The Model Standards: Are They Appropriately Guiding the Practice of Mediation

This informative, entertaining, and interactive session will take a deep look at brainstorming and other techniques used by mediators to elicit solutions. Research shows that when people generate their own ideas for resolving conflict, they’re more likely to reach lasting agreements. There have been numerous studies on effective team work, creativity in solution generation, and optimum techniques for brainstorming, all of which may help people not in conflict. But when participants are entrenched in conflict, the challenge to find solutions is even tougher. Mandatory Pre-Dispute Arbitration Agreements - the Pro se Litigant v. the Experienced Lawyer - Can We "Level the Playing Field?"
Fairchild (Terrace Level)

11:45 am - 12:45 pm

When arbitration is required by mandatory pre-dispute agreements, consumers, employees, and other citizens sometimes represent themselves, pro se, and must interact with experienced lawyers. Many pro se litigants lack an understanding of arbitration and do not represent themselves effectively during in-person hearings. Conversely, many consumers resolve their disputes through digital computer-based methods. Can the arbitrator ensure fairness? Is digital on-line dispute resolution a means to resolve disputes more effectively with better outcomes? Democracy and Conflict Over Policy: The State, Local Participation, and People

11:45 am - 12:45 pm

All over the world, democracies face new threats as dialogue about public policy has become increasingly adversarial and positional. Moreover, people can participate in democracy face-to-face in their communities, but the local, state, and national governments can make decisions that shape what people can do about policy challenges. What can dispute resolvers do to foster democratic dialogue? What skills and capacities can we bring to bear as lawyers, facilitators, and mediators? This session will examine how law shapes and limits dialogue and levels of participation over policy, and how we can design effective processes and systems given these challenges.

What Happens When You Lose Data that You Thought Was Secret and Money that You Thought Was Secure – Mediating and Arbitrating Cybersecurity Disputes

Columbia 9 (Terrace Level)

11:45 am - 12:45 pm

As the last year has shown, protecting data from hackers has become a serious challenge. When data is stolen, there can be devastating impacts on individuals, companies and even electoral politics. As these disputes percolate into the public realm, and where legal principles affecting rights and responsibilities may be ambiguous, mediation and arbitration may be a better way to restore order. Participants in this program will learn about the emerging issues in this new field of law and the parameters of how issues are being resolved. Insurance to protect parties that might be affected by cybersecurity will be discussed. Efforts to mediate and arbitrate cybersecurity issues will be highlighted. For mediators looking for a niche practice that may blossom in the future, cybersecurity may be a fertile place to look.

How the Preference for Third Party Decision Making and Substantive Expertise in "Major" Cases Fosters Bias in Neutral and Process Selection

Shifting Conflict Stories-creating and Claiming More Meaning
Fairchild (Terrace Level)

This session will assist ADR-Professionals to listen even more deeply to conflict stories, to recognize power-words and limiting beliefs, to liberate emotions, and to facilitate the parties' more active participation in ADR processes. The panel, experienced mediators and coaches, will demonstrate how conflict conversations subtly evince recurring themes, reinforce unstated values, and open-up energy and space to re-envision a positive way-forward. These dialogues can be fused with increased possibilities when interrupted, challenged, or displaced by the disputant. This session provides techniques to do so. Participants will learn methods to assist parties to use their stories to deepen self-understanding and create a greater commitment to bringing their best selves to resolving their disputes.

Questioning Ourselves: How to Become A Mediator Who Asks "Game-Changing" Questions

Columbia 1 & 2 (Terrace Level)

New research shows a direct link between asking elicitive questions and reaching settlement in mediation. This highly interactive session prepares mediators – and their trainers – to harness the power of effective questioning in mediation. Presenters will lead session participants through a series of drills, games, and mediation simulation exercises designed to demonstrate the diversity of question types, their (mis)uses, and techniques for better question construction. In addition, participants will tackle a question-framing exercise designed to promote option generation. Session participants will also be encouraged to share their own, favorite tools for teaching questioning in mediation.

Arbitration Activism: A close look at arbitration agreements in consumer finance and their effect on the minority consumer
Columbia 12 (Terrace Level)

In July 2017, the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau issued a rule prohibiting certain consumer financial product and service providers from using arbitration clauses in contracts to bar the consumer from participating in any class action regarding the product or service. While the Rule itself was ultimately disapproved, the issue of the impact of arbitration, as well as class action litigation, on minority communities in particular, which have been found to be disproportionately targeted by consumer financial products and services (e.g., home mortgage loans), remains relevant and concerning. This program seeks to examine the impact of arbitration in consumer finance litigation, and, specifically, its impact on minority communities.

FOIA and Mediation: Together at Last
Cardozo (Terrace Level)

The year 2016 marked the 50th anniversary of the Freedom of Information Act and saw both houses of Congress unanimously pass, and the President sign into law, significant amendments that bolster the use of dispute resolution in every federal agency’s FOIA process. With 700,000+ requests annually, disputes regularly arise between the public and federal agencies. Improving communications and resolving disputes save administrative resources and avoid costly litigation. The amendments also give the Office of Government Information Services (OGIS)--the FOIA Ombudsman--additional authority and institutional independence. What led to these changes and how are they improving our original Open Government law?

FRIDAY AFTERNOON EVENT

Living Room Conversations 3:30 pm – 5:00 pm

Columbia 1 & 2 (Terrace Level)

Dialogue in Complex Times: We have invited Living Room Conversations, an organization providing tools for the public to engage in friendly yet meaningful conversations with those with whom they may disagree, to introduce their model and lead attendees in dialogue. Living Room Conversations strives to increase understanding, reveal common ground and allow people to discuss possible solutions. When people of all walks of life connect, they can begin to bridge the divides that cause separation. Living Room Conversations co-founder, Joan Blades, will join in conversation with Section Chair, Ben Davis, to introduce the living room conversation model, which is based on a simple dialogue structure that does not require a trained facilitator. Following their conversation, the audience will engage in their own conversation. This special Friday afternoon session will provide an opportunity for attendees to reflect on their conference experience around the theme Dispute Resolution in Complex Times and discuss topics such as Power & Gender Equity, Money & Values, and American Culture.

Center(s) of Attention: The Past, Present & Future of Law School Dispute Resolution Centers
Columbia 3 & 4 (Terrace Level)

8:30 am - 9:30 am

One of the most interesting developments in legal education over the last forty years has been the proliferation of academic centers, including dispute resolution centers. DR Centers have become core structures in the production of DR scholarship, teaching, and training. Yet, little is generally known about the origins, development, and current practices of these organizations. This panel brings together directors from several DR centers to explore issues such as: What factors led to the creation of the center? What has worked? What has not worked? What does the future hold as these centers become mature organizations?

Help Desk: Using Technology in the Classroom
Columbia 6 (Terrace Level)

Do you want to try new technology in the classroom but are afraid? Join Northwestern Law professor Alyson Carrel and Noah Martin, learning engineer from Georgetown University, to explore innovative ways to incorporate technology in your courses. Come with your curricular and classroom management challenges and meet one on one with Alyson and Noah to brainstorm tech-based solutions. Technology doesn’t have to be a distraction or decrease student understanding of the subject, in fact it has the capability to greatly increase student engagement with the professor, each other, and the material if thoughtfully incorporated into the curriculum. Aiding Adjuncts: Supporting, Developing and Retaining Quality DR Adjunct Faculty in Tight-Budget Times
Columbia 3 & 4 (Terrace Level)

Many, if not most, law schools rely on adjunct faculty to expand and enhance their DR programs and stretch their DR budgets. This interactive workshop explores ways to attract, develop, and retain adjunct faculty. We will examine various adjunct faculty organizational models, as well as ways to create a cohesive teaching team and faculty learning community. We will also explore opportunities and challenges of being and working with adjuncts and exchange (and imagine) methods to inspire and support excellence for our programs and professional fulfillment for our adjuncts.

Teaching Negotiation Micro-skills: New Videos and Other Options 9:45 am - 11:00 am
Columbia 6 (Terrace Level)

How to gather information effectively, before making an offer? How to make a good offer and support it well, or get past an extreme position, or deal with a stonewaller? Skills like these are crucial to good negotiation but it’s hard to teach them. We’ve created vignettes to role play these skills, as well as videos, available for downloading from the Section’s website, to show lawyers dealing with these challenges. This session will show examples of new video and other materials, then invite our expert audience to contribute their own teaching ideas and comments.

Advancing Social Justice Through ADR 11:15 am - 12:30 pm
Columbia 6 (Terrace Level)

Black Lives Matter. ICE raids. Muslim ban. Racism. Income disparity. LGBTQ rights. What does ADR have to do with societal issues of the day? Is it merely transactional, a way to cut a deal or settle a case? In this highly interactive session, panelists ask: "How Does ADR Advance Social Justice?" How do we engage our students in thinking about ADR’s relationship to social justice (SJ)? The panel will facilitate a discussion on the relationship between SJ and ADR and share pedagogy for bringing SJ into ADR courses. Participants are encouraged to contribute exercises and teaching techniques they have developed.

The Case Conundrum: Keeping Mediation Clinic Students Engaged Beyond Just Small Claims Cases
Columbia 3 & 4 (Terrace Level)

This session will explore the experiences of faculty who are involved with mediation clinics. The voluntary nature of most mediation programs, inconsistent case referrals, increased numbers of "competitor" volunteer mediators and declining court caseloads create a challenging environment for faculty seeking to ensure mediation opportunities for students. Historically clinics have developed relationships with small claims or family courts. With declining case numbers, what can be done to ensure that students have a valuable experience while also fulfilling the clinical hour requirements? What are some creative partnerships or new fieldwork sources that clinics can develop while still meeting the ABA requirements? Can the role of faculty in case work be re-thought to help in meeting these goals? Panelists will explore unique opportunities for students and how clinic faculty can work to enhance learning in the clinical environment. Both in-class and out-of-class experiential opportunities will be addressed. Finally, the panel will also show how the opportunities discussed can enhance experiential opportunities in doctrinal ADR courses.

ADR in the International Setting: The Howard Law School World Bank Group ADR Initiative & the Dominican Republic Human Rights Investigation

Columbia 6 (Terrace Level)

2:00 pm - 3:15 pm

This workshop provides an interactive overview of two unique international experiential learning initiatives in ADR developed by the Howard University School of Law. One program is a collaboration between the Howard University Law School and the Internal Justice Services of the World Bank Group (the “WBG”). The other is the fact-finding mission in Haiti based on an integrated stakeholder model for human rights investigations. The development of both programs will be presented by the panelists along with input from current and past students. The workshop will explore the program development, the learning goals, and the lessons learned. Participants will learn the challenges and successes created by collaborations with international partners in the resolution of workplace disputes and human rights investigations.

Toward Integrating ADR Teaching, Writing, Theory, and Practice
Columbia 3 & 4 (Terrace Level)
2:00 pm - 3:15 pm

During this highly interactive session, attendees will learn cutting-edge ideas on how to more effectively integrate ADR teaching, writing, theory and practice. The panel will explore (1) Ideas on how to more effectively integrate our own (and others’) scholarship into the classroom, especially in role play debriefs; (2) To what extent can we use role plays and other exercises that are good at integrating legal substance, theory, skills, and practice; and (3) What are some teaching ideas and experiences that inform and inspire our scholarly research, and vice versa.

Are Neutrals Born or Made?

Columbia 6 (Terrace Level) 3:30 pm - 5:00 pm

Many law schools today provide experiential and clinical opportunities for students to advocate in ADR settings through FINRA Clinics, and the VIS and ABA Arbitration and Representation in Mediation Competitions. This program will examine whether there is utility in training law students to be neutrals through law faculty, student, practitioners’ lenses. Should legal education train law students to be mediators and arbitrators? Law faculty, practitioners, and former students will discuss whether neutrals are born or made!
