DECEMBER 10-11, 2018
THE RITZ-CARLTON WASHINGTON, DC

EARN UP TO 12 CLE CREDITS!

Whether you are in-house counsel, in private practice, a government attorney, a consultant or just interested in health policy, the 2018 Washington Health Law Summit is the one conference you cannot afford to miss. As the future of American healthcare takes shape, it is essential that attorneys and consultants advising all segments of the healthcare industry are up-to-date on the latest legislative and policy developments and the implementation of significant healthcare initiatives emanating from HHS, CMS, DOJ, OIG and other key government agencies.

This outstanding program provides a unique opportunity for federal and state government lawyers, in-house counsel, private practitioners and consultants to learn from each other in an intimate conference setting. Year after year, attendees say the Summit is “a thought provoking and interesting two days” and “a really good way to stay up-to-date.” They also enjoy “the varied speakers from the public and private sectors.” One of last year’s attendees said the “topics about health policy were timely and informative. I like the blend of policy with the nuts and bolts of healthcare law.” Another stated, “I attend every year for the relevant, current information—it allows me to get a general sense of where state and federal legislation is headed.”

The Monday evening Welcome Reception is an excellent opportunity for networking over cocktails and hors d’oeuvres (included in your registration fee).

Join our panelists in discussing current initiatives of the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) and the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) related to the physician self-referral law (commonly referred to as the Stark Law), including (i) the recent Request for Information on modifying the Stark Law, (ii) updates on CMS’s self-referral disclosure protocol (SRDP), (iii) recent guidance from CMS, and (iv) ongoing compliance “trouble spots.”

Combatting the Opioid Crisis: Getting Telemedicine to Help
This presentation will address the opioid epidemic and policy efforts to combat it, including what role telemedicine can play in this public health emergency. Public policy responses to the issue of telemedicine and opioids have been varied. The panel will discuss federal legal issues in this area, including the SUPPORT Patients and Communities Act, as well as the Ryan Haight Act, which has long prohibited prescribing controlled substances via telemedicine except in certain situations. The panel will also discuss approaches in different states that have relaxed their restrictions on prescribing controlled substances via telemedicine, such as Connecticut and Illinois, and whether such changes are actually making it easier for providers to treat patients suffering with substance use disorder.

SPEAKERS:
William M. Lopez, MD, CPE, Cigna, Eden Prairie, MN
Jeremy D. Sherer, Hooper, Lundy & Bookman, Boston, MA
René Quashie, Consumer Technology Association, Arlington, VA

Past is Prologue: Medicaid and New Approaches to Social Determinants of Health
Healthcare and social services are expected to account for 38.3% of state budgets by 2025, causing an increasing strain on economic forecasts. Payers, providers, and policymakers are focusing more than ever on social determinants of health heading into 2019. Yet Medicaid has a history of addressing social determinants in order to reduce costs and improve health outcomes. Delivery system reform, Medicaid work and community engagement requirements, Medicare Advantage supplemental benefits, and provider initiatives are recent examples of different approaches to addressing social determinants of health. This presentation will examine Medicaid’s traditional focus on social determinants and on health present regulatory and legal issues surrounding these new approaches.

SPEAKERS:
Caroline Farrell, U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Office of the General Counsel - CMS Division, Washington, DC

With the increase in regulatory pressure on healthcare providers, the aging out of the baby-boomer generation and constant pressure on revenue collections, not all healthcare providers will survive as currently structured in the future. This session will present an overview of the bankruptcy reorganization process with an emphasis on problems that are unique to healthcare providers, including dealing with Medicare, Medicaid and private insurance payment systems, regulatory infractions, HIPAA implications and public relations pressures. The speakers will focus on using the bankruptcy process as a vehicle by which a healthcare provider can find solutions for institutions under financial and regulatory stress.

This session will explore recent government enforcement activity, including the evolution of settlement agreements (Corporate Integrity Agreements (CIAs) and Deferred-Prosecution Agreements (DPAs), which provide a perspective on the OIG’s and DOJ’s priorities for healthcare compliance program structure and content. The impacts resulting from a mandated CIA or DPA can be mitigated by an effective compliance.  |

Legislative attempts to fully repeal the Affordable Care Act (ACA) have stalled in Congress, but since President Trump took office in January 2017, the ACA has been targeted for changes. State regulators’ actions to responsibly respond to the shifting policy landscape have taken on more focus and impact. Many States have been working tirelessly to keep private insurers in their state, ameliorate the effects of rising premiums, ensure continuous coverage to individuals who need it the most, and maintain the insurance coverage gained in Medicaid expansion, if adopted. This panel will discuss State level actions to keep the ACA and Medicaid markets operating and the future of the ACA’s coverage expansion.</td>
