Marriott Marquis
780 Mission Street, Yerba Buena Salons 12/13 (Lower B2 Level)

Our nation's major immigration initiatives have been delayed as contentious issues are debated in Congress and litigated in the judicial system. The Supreme Court's recent decision determining the fate of DAPA/expanded DACA programs and providing guidance on the scope of Executive Action has been at the forefront of this major controversy. Meanwhile, a new Administration is on the horizon, one that can potentially reverse many of the programs and policies pursued by the current Administration. A panel of distinguished experts in the field of immigration law will address these issues and more including the future of employment and business visas and the ongoing challenge of family detention at the southwest border. Come hear the latest developments and prospects for future progress from our distinguished panelists.

This is a complimentary program.

Speakers will include:
- Judge Dean Lum, King County Superior Court (Moderator)
- Thomas Saenz, MALDEF
- Denise Gilman, University of Texas School of Law
- Jennifer Shih, Simmons & Ungar LLP
