LETTER FROM THE CHAIR

Please join us at the American Bar Association International Law Section’s 2020 Annual Meeting • April 21-24, 2020 in New York City

The ABA International Law Section welcomes lawyers, law students, and anyone interested in international legal issues to our premier event!

The legal industry is being disrupted in unprecedented ways, including new, non-traditional players in the market, the introduction of robotics and AI, shifting client priorities, and extraordinary changes in political, economic, and social dynamics around the world.

This Meeting offers a tremendous opportunity to empower yourself, both personally and professionally, to deal successfully with the demands on our profession today. Leading experts will offer insights on cutting-edge strategies and trends across the hottest topics in both public and private international law, including dispute resolution, finance, AI, corporate governance, corporate social responsibility, M&A, FinTech, migration/immigration, white collar criminal, individual rights, cybersecurity, trade, environmental, national security, and much more. For the first time, we will also be offering a full day of soft skills programming. There will also be numerous opportunities to network and have fun.

Top reasons to attend the 2020 Annual Meeting:

- Empower yourself. Participate in self-empowerment programs, including an entire day of honing our skills in areas such as developing a personal brand, rainmaking, and financial planning for lawyers. Join a commemoration of the 19th Amendment Centennial and an interactive luncheon to explore tools to empower ourselves and others over the next century.

- Invest in your future. Hear from industry leaders on the latest in international legal and policy issues, across a wide range of subject areas. With more than 70 CLE programs, you can complete most, if not all, of your CLE reporting requirements in just a few days.

- Build connections. Programming and events throughout the course of the Meeting have been designed to facilitate networking amongst the more than 1,000 international lawyers expected to attend the Meeting. Attendees will network with lawyers from around the world from boutique firms to some of the world’s largest, most prominent firms, find business partners, build client bases, identify suppliers, expand networks, and have fun in the process.

- Be inspired. Whether it’s through new ways you discovered to empower yourself and others, substantive knowledge you gained over the course of the Meeting, or connections you’ve made, you’ll return home feeling inspired in your career and personal development.

We look forward to seeing you in New York!

8:30AM – 11:00AM
International Antitrust Speed Networking Breakfast [Non-CLE] (hosted at Cadwalader, Wickersham & Taft LLP, 200 Liberty Street)

Please join members of the New York antitrust bar for a breakfast program and speed networking event immediately preceding the ILS Annual Meeting and the SAL Spring Meeting. This program has been scheduled to permit international antitrust lawyers planning to attend the SAL in DC.

Following a short introductory presentation, attendees will participate in “speed networking” sessions with representatives of several New York antitrust practices to discuss practices and developments. Attendees will be able to meet with up to 7 different firms over the morning, with sign-ups available in advance. More than 30 prominent firms have agreed to participate.

9:00AM – 10:00AM
Money Management for Lawyers [Non-CLE]

Pursuing a career in law has its own financial challenges. From managing towering student debt to planning for retirement – not to mention the many obligations in between – there are many demands on each dollar earned. Lacking similar benefit packages and other forms of financial support, the challenges for those in solo or small-firm practices can be especially acute. Maintaining personal financial health in a world of inconsistent revenues is demanding. This panel will offer general guidance on how to manage the financial challenges of a life in law and planning for what comes after.

Program Chair/Moderator/Speaker: Joseph (Jody) Prestia, Mangrove Private Wealth Management, Knoxville, TN
Speakers: Bonnie Latreille, Director of Research and Advocacy, Student Borrower Protection Center, Washington, DC
Mitchell Stein, Senior Vice President - Wealth Advisor, Morgan Stanley, New York, NY

10:00AM – 11:00AM
Lawyer Well-Being – What Does It Mean and How Does One Get It? [Non-CLE]

Have you ever wondered how you were going to get through the day? You have worked too many nights and weekends and are exhausted or feeling down or foggy or you are unable to do your best for your client. You thought being a lawyer was your dream come true but when was the last time you felt happy or relaxed? You ask what happened to me? Who wants to live this way but what is there to do about it but slog on? You are not alone in asking these questions.

This session is devoted to answering these questions and helping you find your way to a more Zen like state, regain a sense of happiness, reduce anxiety, deal with alcohol and substance abuse in yourself or colleagues, and how to balance work and life. Well-being is not a luxury; in fact it is “an indispensable part of a lawyer’s duty of competence” according to the ABA National Task Force on Lawyer Well-Being report. This hour can be life changing. What have you got to lose?

Program Chair/Moderator/Speaker: Michele Forzley, Global Health Lawyer and Director, Forzley & Associates, Rockville, MD
Speakers: Noelle Contey, Project Happiness NYC Ambassador, New York, NY
Link Christin, Executive Director, Legal Professionals Program, Caron Foundation, PA
Eileen Travis, Director, NYC Bar Association Lawyers Assistance Program, New York, NY
11:30AM – 12:30PM
Career Transitions and Evolutions [Non-CLE]
Legal careers can follow many paths, some BigLaw, some in-house, and others as solo-practitioners. Lawyers have also successfully branched off into alternative careers, such as coaching and recruiting. If you’ve ever dreamed of what it would be like to take that left turn or exit, or if you’re just curious about what others have done and how, join us for an engaging conversation with our panelists. Our panelists will discuss their journeys after the J.D., what inspired them to switch lanes or even take an exit from the legal highway, and will offer practical tips and advice for those seeking to find a new path.
Program Chair/Speaker:  Anjli Garg, Director & Associate General Counsel, Citibank and Executive Leadership Coach, Your Coach to Soar, New York, NY
Speakers:  Demetrios Eleftheriou, Owner, Eleftheriou Law Firm PLLC, Burbank, CA
Amy Katz, Managing Director - In-House Practice Group, Major, Lindsey & Africa, Boston, MA
Anne Marie Segal, Founder and CEO, Segal Coaching LLC, Stamford, CT

12:30PM – 5:30PM
International Law Section Mock Interview Program [Non-CLE]
Are you considering applying for a new position? Interviewing will likely be an important skill for getting that new job. This program will give you an opportunity to practice and improve your interview skills with an attorney with extensive experience conducting interviews. Each participant in this program will have approximately 20 minutes for the mock interview and 10 minutes for feedback.

Space is limited, as we have capacity for only 18 interviewees, with two interviews beginning at each of the following times: 12:30PM, 1:00PM, 1:30PM, 2:00PM, 2:30PM, 3:00PM, 3:30PM, 4:00PM, 4:30PM, or 5:00PM. If you would like to participate in a mock interview, please contact Intlawmeetings@americanbar.org, indicating your preferred interview starting time.

Program Chairs/Interviewers:  Alisha McCarthy, Counsel, Phillips Nizer, LLP, New York, NY
Kenneth Rashbaum, Partner, Barton LLP, New York, NY
Steven Richman, Member, Clark Hill, P.L.C., Princeton, NJ
David Schwartz, Of Counsel, Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz, New York, NY

12:30PM – 1:30PM
Developing a Personal Brand [Non-CLE]
As Amazon founder Jeff Bezos famously once said, “Your brand is what people say about you when you’re not in the room.” Everyone has a personal brand but not everyone is in control of their personal brand. Taking control and developing an effective personal brand can be integral to your success. Whatever your career stage – whether you are seeking to build a book of business, network with your peers, advance to partnership, land a new job – effective personal branding can help you make a strong first impression and can distinguish you from the competition. During this one hour workshop, panelists will provide their best tips and tricks for developing an effective personal brand for an international practice.

Program Chair/Moderator/Speaker:  Emily Christiansen, Partner, Kessler Topaz Meltzer & Check, LLP, Radnor, PA
Speakers:  Toni Jaeger-Fine, Assistant Dean, Fordham Law School, New York, NY
Raleigh Mayer, Gravitas Guru, Raleigh Mayer Consulting, New York, NY
Terri Morrison, Speaker and Author, Philadelphia, PA

1:30PM – 3:00PM
New Approaches to Combating International Terrorism

With the rise of international terrorism, and the proliferation of organizations and hierarchies created to combat same, have we impeded our ability to integrate information and rapidly deploy assets in response to arising threats? What is required to simultaneously reduce the levels of bureaucracy involved in integrating information, as it relates to terrorist activities, and responding to same? Are existing structures adequate in addressing today’s existential threats? What type of structure, or alternatively “lack of structure,” is required to effectively meet today’s presenting threats? In addition, what privacy concerns may arise when like-minded states share information concerning citizens and their communications within participating States’ respective jurisdictions?

Our panel will address the formation of a “coalition of the willing” of like-minded states in response to international terrorism, to both integrate information and deploy assets without encroaching upon national sovereignty in violation Article 2(4) of the UN Charter; how such coalitions may apply the reduced decision making time; and deploying assets in response to arising existential threats.

In addition, we will address the role of “Command by Negation” in creating seamless integration of information and deployment of international military forces in ungoverned regions such as the High Seas, critical in meeting today’s international security challenges.

3:00PM – 4:00PM
The Art of The Pitch [Non-CLE]

How do you deliver a message that resonates with potential clients? How do you differentiate yourself from the competition? How can you handle efficiently and effectively requests for information for your services (ranging from capability statements to RFPs)? How do you price your services so clients see the value in your work?

A strategy consultant, presentation coach, pricing consultant, procurement specialist, and seasoned attorneys will provide you with the tools for success: tips for engaging your audience, delivering an effective elevator pitch, and value-based pricing strategies as fixed budgets become the norm to help you meet the demands of a rapidly changing legal market.

Program Chair/Moderator/Speaker: Orsolya Görgényi, Partner, Szecskay, Budapest, Hungary
Speakers: Jaap Bosman, Founding Partner, TGO Consulting, The Hague, Hong Kong, New York
Nigel Haddon, Pricing Consultant, Burcher Jennings, London, UK
Lisa Ryan, Partner, Fragomen, San Francisco, CA

3:30PM – 5:00PM
Understanding China’s Efforts to Create a Digital Silk Road and US and International Responses to It

When President Xi Jinping announced that big data would be integrated into China’s Belt and Road Initiative (BRI) to create the “Digital Silk Road of the 21st century” in May 2017, few grasped the implications of this undertaking. Since that time, China has sought to build the Digital Silk Road around the world, especially in developing countries, by: (1) becoming a world leader in providing physical digital infrastructure (e.g., 5G cellular networks); (2) investing in the development of advanced technologies with important economic and strategic uses (e.g., artificial intelligence and quantum computing); and (3) creating digital free trade zones to facilitate international e-commerce. During this program, a panel of experts will discuss the accomplishments, shortcomings, and challenges of the Digital Silk Road and what actions are being taken by the US, the UK, and others to try to limit its reach and its ability to be used for nefarious purposes.

Committee Sponsors: National Security; Export Controls & Economic Sanctions; International Trade; Central/East Asia & China

Effective Networking for Business Development [Non-CLE]
We all may be familiar with the old adage “it’s not what you know, it’s who you know” yet for many people the idea of “networking” to build those relationships can be stressful and provoke anxiety. But networking does not have to be that way! There are many places and opportunities to build a network beyond the traditional cocktail mixer and many can be accomplished with only a few minutes a day. What’s most important is finding the mediums and tools that work best for you. In this panel, the speakers will discuss their ideas for unique effective networking and outline the best practices and networking gaffes to be avoided.

Program Chair/Moderator/Speaker: Emily Christiansen, Partner, Kessler Topaz Meltzer & Check, LLP, Radnor, PA
Speakers: Amanda Ellis, Senior Vice President, Parker Lynch, Dallas, TX
          Geoff Goldberg, Client Relationship Executive, Ropes & Gray, LLP, New York, NY

9/11 Memorial Museum Tour
(Westfield World Trade Center, 180 Greenwich Street)
Located at the World Trade Center in New York City, the 9/11 Memorial Museum tells the story of 9/11 through media, narratives, and a collection of monumental and authentic artifacts, presenting visitors with personal stories of loss, recovery, and hope.

There are a limited number of museum tour tickets available for purchase for meeting registrants. A registrant can purchase up to two tickets. Tickets are available on a first come/first served basis and may quickly sell out. Please email intlawmeetings@americanbar.org for more information.
9:00AM – 10:30AM

The International Refugee Crisis and the Social and Economic Impact Across the World

This program will address the international refugee crisis experienced in several parts of the world. It will focus on the areas that are in crisis and the social and economic impact that it is having worldwide. We will be discussing the impact on host countries, neighboring countries, and regions such as Europe, Africa, the Middle East, Asia, and The Americas. We will then examine international treaty and legal obligations towards refugees under international law and proposed reforms. We will evaluate statistical findings of countries around the world to analyze the refugee crisis from an economic and social perspective. Finally, this panel will discuss ideas and programs that panelists have seen work well to address both the worldwide refugee crisis and larger issues such as political conflict, climate change migration, food insecurity or famines, crime, and economic stagnation. We will focus on new ideas and ways forward from a best practices, rule of law, and international law and policy perspective.

Non-disclosure Agreements and Silencing Orders – Disempowerment in the Modern Age

It’s often said Non-disclosure agreements (NDAs) have become the legal weapon of choice for the rich and powerful; used to silence the victims of sexual harassment or abuse by a person in power.

Despite the bad press, NDAs are increasingly common in the context of divorce, pre-nuptial agreements and the exchange of confidential information between private individuals. So, do NDAs still have a place and a purpose and when does a legal instrument, designed to help both parties, become a tool for the weak to be beaten by the strong?

Our experienced panel will explore the types of NDAs individuals are being asked to sign; the ethical considerations for lawyers when drafting and advising clients on NDAs and the public view on NDAs. This session is for lawyers advising on various areas of law, especially those advising clients in the public eye.

9:00AM – 10:30AM
Navigating the Rough Seas of Foreign Legal Compliance and Accelerating Compliance Enhancement

As businesses become increasingly global, the legal landscape grows increasingly complex. Too often, local regulations conflict with those of a company’s home jurisdiction or inappropriately interfere with a foreign company’s internal affairs. Navigating these risks requires a multi-polar approach to compliance that can bridge jurisdictions and yet be nimble enough to undergo coordinated continuous improvement. This panel of in-house and outside counsel will discuss the cutting-edge issues that they encounter on a day-to-day basis and share best practices for building and enhancing international compliance, investigations, and governance programs.

Program Chair/Moderator/Speaker: Santiago Concha, Partner, C&R Law, Bogota, Colombia
Program Chair/Speaker: Brockton Bosson, Partner, Cahill Gordon & Reindel LLP, New York, NY
Speakers:
- Michael Cammarota, Managing Director - Senior Director of Legal Services, Global Transactions, Accenture, New York, NY

- Alexander Olliges, Partner, Arendt & Medernach SA, Luxembourg

9:00AM – 10:30AM
Cross-Border Election Interference, Free Speech, and Internet Governance

The anonymity of an Internet message sender or packet was one of the founding technical design decisions made without much thought by the governance body designing Internet protocols and operations (i.e., the Internet Engineering Task Force). Yet the burgeoning volume of on-line searches, transactions and social media has made vast amounts of individual’s personal information (“PI”) available and created a digital ecosystem which has enabled and fueled the ability of anonymous bad actors (and, more problematically, foreign actors) to identify and target potential voters with a certain ideological or behavioral profile with polarizing messaging campaigns and other threats to civil society norms. The First Amendment may protect such free expression and speech from governmental action, even if untrue and misleading, yet the role of private on-line platforms (whose content moderation policy is not subject to the First Amendment) has been actively engaged in restricting some speech to the consternation of sources from free speech advocates and libertarians to “dark money” communications strategists and conservative political commentators.

This panel examines the appropriateness of an open marketplace of ideas on the Internet and concerns over hate speech, “filter bubbles” and democratic processes, examining the role of legal regulation both domestically, or more problematically, across geographic borders. The panel includes a renowned ethical computer “hacker” and election security expert, a professor of journalism, the CEO of the Internet Society, and two legal scholars.

Program Chair/Moderator/Speaker: Daniel McGlynn, SolAero Technologies Corp., Albuquerque, NM
Moderator/Speaker: Andrew Sullivan, President and CEO, The Internet Society, Washington, DC
Speakers:
- Farzanah Badiei, Research Scholar, Yale Law School, New Haven, CT
- Emma Briant, Visiting Research Associate, Bard College, Annandale-on-Hudson, NY
- Harri Hursti, New York, NY
- Susan McGregor, Assistant Professor, Columbia School of Journalism, New York, NY
9:00AM – 10:30AM
The 1782 Conundrum: The American Dream or a Global Nightmare?
28 U.S.C. § 1782 is a powerful litigation tool that empowers US federal courts to assist litigants in discovery for use in a proceeding before “a foreign or international tribunal.” In recent years, there has been much debate as to whether § 1782 applies to international arbitration. Because parties can even obtain § 1782 discovery orders on an ex parte basis, litigants in international arbitrations should be cognizant of its potential effects. This discussion will explore several aspects of § 1782, including: (i) the ability to obtain § 1782 discovery in international arbitrations; (ii) whether such discovery should be allowed on an ex parte basis without notice to the other side; (iii) ethically, whether attorneys should anticipate § 1782 proceedings when counseling clients in international arbitrations; and (iv) foreign litigants' expectations for, and reservations with, utilizing § 1782.

Antitrust in 2020 and Beyond: Is it up to the Task?
Antitrust is hitting the headlines again! There is an increasing focus on utilizing antitrust laws to rein in big tech and other industries, and antitrust has become a key talking point in political elections, with questions about whether our current paradigms for antitrust enforcement are sufficient to address today’s problems. This program will discuss a number of issues in antitrust today, including:
• The current debate around competition standards (the “New Brandeisian” movement)
• When a monopolist attracts antitrust attention – how far can or should antitrust go?
• Stopping the big from getting bigger – addressing “killer acquisitions” and other acquisitions of startups in M&A
• What happens when an antitrust violation is a crime – jail time and compliance programs

The Changing Landscape of the Modern Global Workforce
A panel discussion on the modern workforce and resulting compliance issues for an increasingly integrated and non-traditional workforce. Advising multinational corporations on complex modern employment structures regarding employer compliance issues has never been a greater challenge for lawyers. The exponential proliferation of rules for immigration and employment throughout the world is unprecedented. At the same time, employers looking to attract top talent are moving towards flexible working conditions among other benefits. This panel of international legal experts will address the main obstacles to international compliance in immigration and employment and will provide guidance on establishing an internal corporate compliance system.

The Child’s Voice in Adult Disputes: Are We Listening
This prominent panel of international specialists will look at how we hear a child’s “authentic voice” in litigated disputes about: sexual abuse of or by a child; domestic violence of which a child was a witness, victim or suspect; jihad/radicalization cases; religious belief cases e.g. a child refusing treatment on faith grounds; international relocation of children, wrongful and lawful; risk of harm cases (including parental alienation); force marriage. which touches families from royalty to those on the edge of society. In such cases, how does the court hear a child’s evidence? How can children be empowered to speak out? Are the child’s expressed feelings real or “coached”? What if the child is aligned with one parent against the other, or even with the person who poses greatest danger to her?

Legislation of Data Privacy – from the CCPA and GDPR to the Uniform Law Commission

The California Consumer Privacy Act (“CCPA”) came into effect on January 1, 2020, with enforcement deferred until July 1, 2020. The CCPA mimics some of the provisions of the European Union’s General Date Protection Regulation (“GDPR”) with respect to the protection of an individual’s privacy and data protection rights. A number of other states have passed or have introduced privacy legislation similar to the CCPA, and the Uniform Law Commission (ULC) has approved a drafting committee to develop a comprehensive uniform privacy law for the states. The American Law Institute recently completed a project on Data Privacy. Our panelists include attorneys concerned with CCPA and GDPR compliance, a former FTC official now affiliated with Facebook, and a privacy attorney from Brazil to contrast US, European and Brazilian privacy law and assess the prospects for future international, federal or state legislation.

Third Party Funding in International Arbitration and Cross-Border Litigation: The Current State of Play

Third-Party funding has become commonplace in international arbitration and cross-border litigation. This panel will examine the practical, legal and ethical considerations that parties, counsel and arbitrators must consider when engaging with third-party funders in international commercial arbitrations, investor-state arbitrations, general cross-border litigation, and litigation related to arbitrations, such as litigation in aid of arbitration and award enforcement proceedings. Panelists will explore the topics not just from the point of view of claimants or plaintiffs that are engaging third-party funders, but also from the perspective of respondents and defendants, arbitrators, and the funders themselves.

The Future of the International Legal Profession, Legal Education and the Nature of Practice:
A Critical Conversation with Law School Deans

Globalization has changed client expectations and the day-to-day experience of most lawyers. Technology, capital, people and ideas, and certainly goods and services, cross national borders at unprecedented rates. Lawyers who counsel clients navigating these issues must be prepared to address the complex web of laws and regulations that are applicable to the client’s multijurisdictional situation, and do so competently. Can U.S. law schools afford to prepare their students for that practice environment? Can they afford not to? How are our colleagues abroad coping with these pressures and changing times?

Bringing together law school deans from the U.S. and abroad, this program explores international programs, experiential opportunities and curricular foci to discuss critical legal education preparing students for transnational law practice while considering law school budgets, students’ career planning needs, and the expectations of the practicing international bar.

The Impact of Immigration on the Family Unit

New York, and the US as a whole, is international and transitional. For those coming from another country, either posted by their employer, looking at setting up a business or making a new start, immigration is a key part of the process particularly when family members are involved. Our panel of experts will explore the immigration rules and restrictions when relocating the family unit to the US, including whether non traditional family units are recognized and the impact that may have on the LGBTQ community. The panel will highlight key issues and provide tips and guidance on how to overcome these, and will discuss changes that need to be made for the future. The panel will also compare to the rules in the UK and whether this could be an alternative and/or preferable location for some families.

The “Clash” Between Freedom from Discrimination and Freedoms of Religion and Speech

Those opposing prohibitions of discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation and transgender status have argued that such prohibitions discriminate against THEM, impinging on their right – based in religion or other conviction – to refuse to serve or to associate with persons whom they judge to be sinners or deviants. This “clash” of rights has been argued in recent court cases in the US and Canada and has been raised in numerous other jurisdictions around the world, including in opposition to same-sex marriage and to justify the arrest and prosecution of LGBTQI activists for offending local religious sensibilities. The panelists will provide an update on recent cases and events and discuss historic parallels such as opposition to expansion of women’s rights.

Stronger Bonds than Marriage – Governance and Exit Structures for International Joint Ventures

Joint ventures are an attractive form of sharing resources to make better use of technology, financing and market access. Investments, risks and costs are shared. Close integration, as well as joint venture parties’ freedom to design their desired terms, brings along complexity for governance and separation. By focusing the discussion on these aspects, the session will allow attendants to take away practical guidance assisting them how to avoid complexity overcoming the benefits of a joint venture. Emphasis will be on concepts preventing disputes and, if that is not possible, resolving them efficiently.

The panel is composed of eminent specialists from different representative jurisdictions around the world allowing all attendants to finish the session with concrete recommendations based on best practice standards.

Not in my Backyard (or Driveway). The Drones Are Coming!

Will package delivery and other drones literally be flying in your backyard or driveway a few years from now? If they do, can you tell who owns or operates them? With more than three million drones expected to be operated in the US, should current FAA regulations on large passenger-carrying aircraft apply to small drones operated by hobbyists? Although technological advances like drones open new markets and beneficial services for many, their operational requirements often outpace the existing legal and regulatory framework relating to personal privacy and the traditional real property law of trespass and nuisance. The Federal Aviation Administration has recently released a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking on the remote identification of unmanned aircraft systems, and the European Union already has issued detailed rules on drone operations.

Paradise Recouped? Impact of Helms-Burton Title III Activation on Expropriated Cuban Property

On April 17, 2019, the United States made the historic decision to cease suspension of Title III of the Cuba Liberty and Democratic Solidarity (LIBERTAD) Act of 1996 (commonly referred to as the Helms Burton Act). This act, among other things, provided in Title III rights of action for US nationals who have had claims with respect to property allegedly confiscated by the Cuban government verified and certified by agencies of the US government, such as the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission. Title III of Helms-Burton established as US government policy the intent to provide a mechanism to potentially compensate US nationals for property lost as a result of the Cuban Revolution of 1959.

Ethics and Non-Lawyer Ownership... Non-Lawyer Ownership of US Law Firms: A Train that Can’t Be Stopped? [ETHICS]

For years, only Washington, DC permitted non-lawyer ownership of US law firms. With increased attention focusing on the justice gap and the advent of new technology, and the integration of global law firms, traditional ideas regarding the justification of non-lawyer ownership has come under challenge. Other jurisdictions, most notably the United Kingdom, have adopted alternative business structures. The original underlying rationale has been lawyer independence. Recently, however, Utah has moved forward towards recommending non-lawyer ownership, and other jurisdictions, such as California, have been studying the issue. If the changes are made, what are the practical and ethical considerations for the practice of law? Are we facing a sea-change or just an evolutionary adaptation to the current realities? How should lawyers (and clients) prepare themselves?

Investing in Legal Cannabis
It has already been called the next gold rush. While we are witnessing changes in public policies in various countries worldwide, many investors dream of striking it rich in the cannabis industry. The market for cannabis as pharmaceutical, wellbeing and lifestyle products is growing rapidly. However, since the laws and provisions regulating the cannabis market worldwide vary substantially, the risk for foreign investors are often complex and not always easy to identify. Experts from the EU, Canada and the US will provide insights into the market for legal cannabis, clear up some common misconceptions and give tips and insights on how international investors are conducting cross-border transactions, especially with regard to drafting appropriate clauses to address some of the major risks.

Thinking Big After the Singapore Convention: The Growing Promise of Cross-Border Mediation

On August 7, 2019, 51 countries, including the United States, China, India and South Korea signed the United Nations Convention on International Settlement Agreements for Mediation in Singapore. The promise of the Singapore Convention is profound, allowing the enforcement of mediated settlements between signatory states and reinforcing the use of mediation in resolving complex cross-border disputes. The backdrop to the Singapore Convention is one of growing political and socio-economic uncertainty, coupled with a slowdown in cross-border trade and a downward trend in foreign direct investment. Disputes will arise and international mediation may be the right tool at the right time. The panel will review the immediate and potential longer-term impacts of the Singapore Convention from multiple perspectives, both private and public, governmental and commercial. Our experts will speculate about whether mediation post-Singapore will become as prominent on the international stage as did arbitration following the New York Convention.

Shareholder Activism: America’s Latest Export
Shareholder activism has become a ubiquitous phenomenon that every public company CEO, Board member and General Counsel must consider and prepare to navigate. Long-term shareholders are also having to grapple with the demands of activist investors. While activist investors originally launched aggressive private and public campaigns mainly at American companies, activism – and short-termism – has spread worldwide and continues to evolve. Activists increasingly develop and deploy increasingly complex strategies to drive change across industries and market capitalizations, whether relating to M&A, board change, CEO removal, strategy and business demands, or governance actions. Join lead advisors from around the world to discuss recent high profile cases, trends and legal developments, new areas of vulnerability for companies and offensive and defensive best practices.

Will Automation Empower or Disempower Lawyers?
Among the various disruptions to the legal market, automation presents both powerful opportunities and challenges since it enables automated legal drafting, document review, and other important legal tasks. How can this transformative disruption be leveraged so it brings benefit and value for law firms and lawyers, as well as the legal services they provide their clients. What initiatives have been taken by law firms and corporate clients over the past few years in terms of automation? How can your law firm, legal practice, or corporate legal department implement automation and manage the related changes and transformations for lawyers and non-lawyers? What early lessons are available from law firms—from small and mid-sized practices to large global firms—so you can benefit from automation and get productivity and quality gains? Nowhere to Hide: Exercising Universal Jurisdiction over Human Rights Perpetrators

A global panel of extraordinary experts will explore current practices and avenues to accountability for perpetrators of human rights atrocities. The panel includes a torture survivor and now advocate, a former U.S. Ambassador for global criminal justice, an International Tribunal Judge, and the highest level Registry official from the international tribunals for Yugoslavia and Lebanon. They will discuss legal tools, procedures, and alternative fora for bringing human rights abusers to justice. Panel members will discuss the strengths and weaknesses of various approaches under domestic and international rules of law. The panel will be moderated by an expert in the field whose Ph.D. includes a focus on universal jurisdiction. Where are the gaps in accountability under domestic law, and what can be done to ensure that there truly is “Nowhere to Hide” for those charged with committing the most egregious and serious crimes? Are the international courts the answer? What are the strengths and weaknesses of the various systems of justice? We will look at the Canadian legislative model and discuss the troubling issue of immunity for these crimes. Do the U.S. and Canada currently have a valid claim to complementarity as defined in the Rome Statute for the International Criminal Court, and if not, what is necessary to achieve systems of accountability that can truly hold perpetrators to account?

The Greening of Wall Street: Climate Finance and the Just Transition

According to the World Bank’s latest report on Climate Finance, “the financing required for an orderly transition to a low carbon, resilient global economy must be counted in the trillions, not billions.” Public and private resources need to be mobilized at both the national and international levels. But the financial sector is more than just a source of development funds—it is itself at the threshold of a far-reaching social and environmental realignment. A key catalyst is the urgent need to address climate change. Mitigation and adaptation strategies offer significant opportunities for investment in infrastructure and green technologies. Innovative frameworks are being developed for impact assessment and risk management. New multi-stakeholder partnerships are being forged across the UN and other international agencies. This panel explores the evolving connections between the financial sector and climate change, offering expert insights for the legal profession with a view to the just transition.

Final FIRRMA Rules and Their Implications for Cross-Border M&A

Around the world, countries are implementing stricter national security-based reviews of cross-border investments. The Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States (CFIUS), often viewed as a model for other countries’ regimes, is no exception. Final regulations fully implementing the Foreign Investment Risk Review Modernization Act of 2018 (FIRRMA) recently took effect, dramatically changing CFIUS's impact on cross-border M&A and even non-controlling inbound foreign investment. The panel, comprising representatives of CFIUS agencies as well as foreign investment practitioners, will discuss key elements of the new rules and how they will expand reviews of cross-border investments, shift regulatory risk between the parties to M&A transactions, and affect the certainty and timing of closing.

Difficulties, Traps and Pitfalls of Cross-Border Dealmaking

As the volume of cross-border M&A continues to rise, deal participants, counsel and other advisors are being asked for ever more familiarity with legal roadblocks from around the globe. While every deal presents own unique issues, there is real value to being able to see around the corner to head off problems before they become urgent, or at least prepare stakeholders for key concerns. In this program, experts from across the M&A spectrum will provide a collaborative look at the latest and most prevalent issues presented by cross-border deals, along with strategies for minimizing or responding to those challenges, with particular emphasis on jurisdictions that may be considered difficult or perhaps even dangerous from various vantage points. Key issues to be considered will include not only the typically-negotiated transaction agreement provisions but other difficult issues such as physical security, government stability and predictability, potential corruption, lack of regularity clarity, unknown timetables and complicated workforce issues. Panelists will also address cultural and practical issues that affect both deal-making and post-transaction integration and how these issues impact board and management decision-making.

11:00AM – 12:30PM

This Ethics CLE presentation will begin with a brief overview of an approach to AI and related technologies that is workable for practitioners, with a focus on certain types of Machine Learning Algorithms. The program will then detail and use a particular ML Algorithm (the Dimensionality Reduction Algorithm) as the context to evaluate a variety of proposed and implemented international legal and ethical frameworks, including ABA Resolution 112 on the Usage of AI; the European Commission’s High-Level Expert Group on AI – Ethics Guidelines for Trustworthy Artificial Intelligence; and the IEEE Global Initiative on Ethics of Autonomous and Intelligent Systems. The program will conclude by evaluating current uses of AI in US Courts and the Justice System, including case law addressing this area as well as regulations and governmental actions considering AI generally. The panel will include a law firm partner, in-house counsel, a technologist, and a professional ethicist.

“Beware the Fine Print,” 5 Years Later – Does Arbitration Disempower Consumers from Bringing Class Actions in the US and Other Countries?

In 2015, the New York Times ran a three-part special report, entitled “Beware the Fine Print,” on the increasing proliferation of arbitration clauses in commercial contracts. The special report decried the use of arbitration clauses to stem potential consumer class actions. However, this issue is not just being litigated in the United States, but also in Canada, Mexico and Europe. This panel will look at the issues raised in the clash between arbitration and class actions in these different jurisdictions, such as what constitutes contractual consent and whether arbitration clauses hinder access to justice, and how this conflict could affect private international law.

Rising Tides of Protectionism? Foreign Direct Investment Regulations Across the Globe

The Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States has captured the attention of foreign investors and US companies as its jurisdiction has expanded through the Foreign Investment Review Modernization Act of 2018. Countries around the world have been reevaluating, and often tightening, their own foreign investment oversight regimes, while others are considering new national security regimes in response to FIRRMA. Importantly, foreign investment controls vary significantly by jurisdiction, and this panel will provide a comparative review of foreign direct investment regulations in the US, France, Germany, Canada and China. Our panel will also explore the interrelationships among these national security regimes and how counsel might advise clients to respond to the requirements of potential national security reviews in order obtain clearance for those transactions to proceed.

Debate in the States on the 19th Amendment: Universal Suffrage 100 Years later? [Non-CLE]

Until Mr. Burn’s mother prevailed, the vote of the Tennessee legislature was deadlocked: would the 19th Amendment ever be ratified? For the first part of the program, a mock debate between Susan B. Anthony and Josephine Dodge, founder of the National Association Opposed to Women’s Suffrage, will be presented: Should women have the right to vote? The second part of the program will examine current issues relating to voting rights in the United States with a comparison with one emerging African nation and a European nation which granted women the right to vote, well before the United States. Topics will include universality of suffrage and limitations on and challenges to voting rights and universal participation in the political sphere.

The Missing Link: In House Counsel, Corporate Social Responsibility: Winning Case Studies in Achieving the UN Sustainability Goals

The UN has declared that the deadline for SDG global implementation is 2030. Leading corporations are launching new global initiatives though their Corporate Social Responsibility programs, programs which resonate not only within the companies but also with millennials, financial institutions, investors and the UN. The UN in particular has been on the forefront of establishing public-private sustainability partnerships as well. This program will highlight and build on the project being pursued by the ABA UN committee and discuss the identification of highest priority SGDs for success, the implementation of sustainability practices, how to secure internal engagement and support of cross-functional team as well as funding and the pro bono component of sustainability efforts in multinational companies of both legal and non-legal departments within the companies.

Empowerment Luncheon: Empowering the Next 100 Years
Sponsored by: haynesboone

100 years ago we could not have imagined the strides made in technology, communications, travel, health and mental wellbeing, and voting rights. In 1920 The League of Nations had its first council meeting, and in the United States alcohol was prohibited, many women gained the right to vote, and station KDKA made the nation’s first commercial broadcast on election day. Every day since individuals, communities, corporations, and governments have made strides in technology, communications, travel, health and mental wellbeing, and voting rights. What will the next 100 years look like? How will you empower yourself and your community? Join us for an interactive lunch where we explore tools for self-empowerment and how to use our voices as lawyers to empower others into the next century and beyond.

Seller be Empowered! How to Protect M&A Sellers from Buyers' Excessive Risk Aversion... or Greed?

M&A buyers’ contractual weapons are many and powerful. All-encompassing reps and warranties, indemnities, long-lasting escrows, MAE/MAC clauses, open-ended conditions precedent, earn-outs, non-competes, non-solicitations, post-completion price adjustments, and the like. Yet sellers are not defenseless. In addition to an effective negotiation, they may resort to other tools to limit their exposure: liability exclusions, caps, deductibles, de minimus and baskets, time limits, well-crafted disclosure schedules, anti-sandbagging provisions, etc. Our expert panelists will discuss varied safeguards and best practices—while sharing their own experience and insights—to empower and better protect sellers in M&A transactions. This interactive panel will also analyze pros and cons and market trends of a few M&A tools and mechanisms, such as reps and warranties insurance and locked box v. closing accounts, among others.

Artificial Intelligence, Predictive Analytics, and Unlawful Discrimination

Artificial intelligence is increasingly being used to extract data about individuals from social media and other sources, allowing it to be cross-correlated with other data sets and statistical inferences drawn about specific individuals. These predictive analytics include behavioral predictions which are of interest to a wide variety of organizations in evaluating the background of individuals for different reasons. Predictive analytics companies market their software and services in making automated and purportedly more cost-effective and even-handed recommendations relating to an individual’s health or financial condition, insurance coverage, employment or educational aptitudes, credit or other financial opportunities, access to government benefits, medical insurance reimbursement, or community policing and criminal justice decision-making, among other transactions. But such data analytics software/services are often provided without disclosing the choice of input data sets, choice of training data, and the algorithm design used in analytics. If such profiling and exclusionary or discriminatory practices affect marginalized communities, then they elude the application of antidiscrimination laws because the data analytics use is generally undisclosed. Proprietary models and algorithms also affect groups who fall outside of currently protected classes. A panel of computer scientists, academics, and attorneys will examine the concerning issues of this emerging use of AI.

Enforcement of ISDS Awards Against Sovereigns

The Investor-State Dispute Settlement (“ISDS”) system has grown over the last several years. Join us as experts in the field discuss the use of investor-state arbitration procedures, and the associated challenges of enforcing arbitral awards against sovereigns. Our panel of seasoned practitioners, in-house counsel and a leading academic on the subject of sovereign immunity from execution will examine key court decisions, discuss practical aspects and identify pitfalls for the unwary in the enforcement process. Key questions to be addressed include: What are the special rules for enforcing ICSID awards? How are ad-hoc UNCITAL cases different? Where is venue proper? How is service effected? Which assets are immune and which are available for execution?

Bobbing, Ducking and Weaving: The Impact of Trade Wars and Increasing Enforcement Measures on Global Supply Chains

The past 3 years has seen greatly increased government regulation, trade barriers and enforcement measures, all of which have had an impact on global supply chains. Tariffs – whether they are related to national and economic security, retaliation or anti-dumping – have once again become important to client strategic decisions. More aggressive enforcement of intellectual property rights is now a reality for some supply chain participants. Many jurisdictions have strengthened labor regulation to address forced labor and human trafficking, requiring more diligence by downstream buyers. This panel provides real examples of client reactions to the rapidly changing trade regulation environment, so you can help your clients adapt to, and get ahead of, these developing issues.

Impact of Governmental Policy on Pricing and Access to Prescription Medical Products in the US and International Marketplace

The cost of prescription drugs and medical devices is a fundamental issue to consumers in this country and in other parts of the world. US consumers continue purchasing prescription drugs from other countries; does this practice impact drug availability (supply) in those countries? Are there similarities between prescription drug and medical device pricing?

This panel will highlight stakeholder’s debate on how different jurisdictions address consumers’ demand for affordability and the resulting impact on the global pharmaceutical/medical device industries.

• Is there any consensus among the stakeholders who are impacted by US and other nations’ policies on drug and device pricing: patients, governments, life sciences manufactures’ and health care providers?
• Who is disproportionately impacted?
• What effect does US and China tariff standoff have on the cost and availability of high-quality medical products in the US, EU and elsewhere?

Warranties & Indemnities Insurance: A Behind the Scenes Look at a Popular Product that has Changed the Way M&A Deals Are Done
This program focuses on the rise of Warranties & Indemnities Insurance in M&A practices in Europe, Asia, North America and Latin America. The desire for a “clean exit” was once a requirement of Private Equity sellers who sought to achieve a higher IRR, but now with a decrease in premiums and increase in number of insurers offering this product, more and more sellers are demanding a “clean exit” for a variety of reasons. This program discusses the benefits and increased use of W&I Insurance use beyond Private Equity, such as in competitive auctions, management buy outs, family business sales, multiple sellers, or distressed M&A. The widespread use is attributed to increased coverage (there are fewer exclusions), lower premiums, none or low retention, coverage available for large and small deals and the availability of attractive policy enhancements (such as disapplication of data room disclosure, “scrape” of knowledge qualifiers and applicability to purchase price adjustments) which can mean the difference between a deal stalling and getting across the finish line. Finally, we look at buy-side policies, sell-side policies and discuss with two W&I underwriters who will describe their experiences and recent developments in W&I Insurance.

When Machines Create: AI Generated Works and the Future of IP

Advances in AI pose new challenges to IP systems designed to protect acts of human intellectual creativity. In 2019, the first patent applications were filed on inventions created without a human inventor, the US Patent and Trademark Office requested comments on AI-generated works for a potential new guidance, and Christie’s became the first auction house to sell AI generated artwork. These developments will require us to reconsider existing black-letter law and how we can better accommodate AI-generated works.

The panel will address the following issues:
• IP rights
• Authorship/Inventorship/Ownership
• How AI will change legal standards
• How disputes may be resolved.

Ethics and Advocacy in Cross Border Disputes: Navigating the Clash of Legal Cultures

As businesses globalize, so do the legal challenges they face: the decisions of domestic courts can have global reach, critical legal decisions are increasingly rendered by international tribunals, and cross-border investigations are on the rise as regulators from various jurisdictions cooperate to prosecute claims based on the same underlying conduct. Experts in the field discuss the unique ethical issues arising from cross-border disputes and investigations, including the challenges in effective advocacy in light of jurisdictions’ differing guidelines concerning witness preparation and courtroom conduct; protecting attorney-client privilege across jurisdictions; and cross-border discovery and data privacy.

One Belt, One Road: The Next Front Line for the US

At latest count, China’s Belt and Road Initiative (BRI) includes nearly 70 official partner countries, and growing. At this stage, the initiative is truly global, as China builds partnerships with governments and international organizations throughout Asia, Europe, Africa, the Middle East, the island countries of the Pacific, and the Americas (Central and South). On this scale, the initiative’s impacts touch almost every country participating in the global market, even those not directly involved in BRI. And the BRI’s diversity of projects matches its geographical diversity, encompassing projects ranging from physical infrastructure such as railways, ports and roads to digital network development of telecommunication equipment and fiber-optic cables.

This program will briefly update attendees on the fundamentals of the BRI, and then turn to aspects of the initiative that are less widely understood, including addressing the legal implications for international trade, the effects on the national security of the United States and other countries, including those now or soon to be BRI partners, and how the BRI plays a part in the economic shifts caused by US/China trade war, resulting economic decoupling, and changes in FDI patterns between the US & China and the new FDI options in the BRI countries.

What is the US doing in response? An important aspect of this program is then to examine what the US options for and limit to a US response, and the key related legal aspects. The discussion will include: potential use of various US enforcement tools such as trade and economic sanctions, export controls and anti-corruption laws, the new IDFC, the new UNCITRAL private/public partnership model legislative provisions, the FDI capital flow modifications imposed by the enactment of FIRRMA amendments to CFIUS (together with China’s own capital outflow restrictions)—all of these impact the opportunities that may be presented to lawyers and clients in BRI jurisdictions.

Following the Money to Combat Human Trafficking

Human trafficking is a transnational threat that harms every sector of our global economy, our security, and our society. This session is an opportunity to bring the financial components of the global threat of human trafficking to the forefront of international discourse. 2020 is the 20th anniversary of the adoption of the Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children, supplementing the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime, criminalizing human trafficking and the laundering of the proceeds of human trafficking offenses. To effectively combat human trafficking, it is necessary to address the economic underpinning of those facilitating human trafficking and eliminate economic incentives for trafficking, given that it is a financially motivated crime. As a result, the international community has been called on to develop and implement new and creative approaches to countering the financial operations of human trafficking networks. This panel will explore ways the legal community can better combat human trafficking through an understanding of economic and illicit finance tools.

The Anti-Corruption Revolution in Latin America: the Beginning of the End, or the End of the Beginning?
Latin America has lived through nothing short of a revolution in anti-corruption enforcement over the past 5 years. The panel will provide an overview of the major changes in the area of the law since the Lava Jato became a global scandal (2014). The panel will have a regional perspective, but discuss certain key jurisdictions and futures trends. Some of the questions that the panel intends to discuss:

• Can any policy or institutional changes explain these scandals?
• How are companies and investors responding?
• Have ongoing anti-corruption efforts had a positive or negative impact on investment and the country’s citizens?
• What are the trends for the next 5 years and beyond?

Protection of Cultural and Historical Sites Around the World: Challenges and Opportunities
With the disturbing rise of terrorist groups such as the so-called Islamic State group, Al Qaeda in the Islamic Maghreb (AQIM) and Boko Haram destroying culturally, historically and religiously significant sites and landmarks both on the UNESCO list and not, the international community has rightly focused on the need to protect such sites from human destruction. The international legal community has taken a hopeful step in creating a deterrent with the successful prosecution at the International Criminal Court of an individual for war crimes in the destruction of ancient Islamic structures in Mali. Nevertheless, many sites of world historical and cultural significance, around the globe, remain in grave danger of destruction from both human activity (especially armed conflict, environmental degradation, etc.) and environmental factors such as global climate change.

Emerging Companies: Cutting Teeth on Global Regulation
Tech and innovation continue to outpace the global regulatory regime. Shifts in enforcement closely trail the latest hot media story, while legislators struggle to catch up. As a result, “next-gen” companies with business plans in A.I., A.V., Fintech, and other emerging areas, face mission critical questions:
• What is (and isn’t) the “law”?
• How do we smartly push the envelope?
• How can we collaborate with and educate regulators and advocate for innovation-friendly policy?
• How do we assess and mitigate risk?

Our panel will tackle these topics from the perspective of the global fintech explosion; the expanding “gig” economy; “contentious” cyber-privacy risk; crossing borders for sensitive internal investigations; and betting big on artificial intelligence.

The Seat Matters: The Expansion and Evolution of International Commercial Courts and Global Arbitration Centers
The last 15 years have seen a proliferation of ICCs, meant to draw high-profile international litigation to a previously mostly national jurisdiction. It has also seen a number of states join on to the New York Convention on the Recognition and Enforcement of Foreign Arbitral Awards and the United Nations Convention on International Settlement Agreements Resulting from Mediation—and a corresponding increase in the number of international, national, and regional centers hosting and administering arbitrations and mediations. Join our experts for a discussion that addresses the differences between the various seats of dispute resolution, including key information surrounding the presiding authorities, jurisdictional rules, procedural rules, and implication for the enforcement of any awards.

New Sheriff in Town: The US Department of Justice’s Increased Enforcement of the Foreign Agents Registration Act
Due to recent high-profile criminal prosecutions and other enforcement actions, the Foreign Agents Registration Act (“FARA”) is more prominent today than at any point during its 81-year history. The U.S. Department of Justice has announced that it is shifting “from treating FARA as an administrative…and regulatory obligation to one that is increasingly an enforcement priority.” Law firms, as well as lobbyist shops, public relations firms, and other business entities must now take additional care to ensure they are in compliance with FARA and do not become the focus of a government investigation. A panel of experienced FARA practitioners, including an attorney who previously oversaw the Justice Department’s enforcement of FARA, will help you to understand the basics of FARA and how you and your clients can protect against FARA-related risk, including administrative enforcement inquiries, reputational harm, and even criminal liability.

Impact Investing for Gender Equality and Women’s Empowerment
Leading private funders, corporations, and financial institutions are launching impact investment initiatives to advance women’s economic rights, participation in the workforce, and access to entrepreneurship and financing opportunities. These financial justice initiatives support the international investment priorities supporting the UN Sustainable Development Goals and operate by or through microfinance programs, contracts, and corporate policies and practices. With legal and regulatory reforms trying to keep pace with innovation in financial mechanisms for women’s economic empowerment, particular attention will be given to recent lessons for corporate policies and practices, including accountability of and safe harbor protections for financial flows and the collection and handling of data, particularly across borders. Panelists will also share insights from gender lens investing, including supply chain management and human rights implications, and what actions should be incorporated into investment diligence and risk management practices.

Reviewing Capitalism: The Future is Here – Investors Look to Impact Investing To Do Good While Doing Well

The idea that businesses exist only to make profits for shareholders is being questioned as never before. Increasingly, investors and entrepreneurs are making direct investments in private companies whose primary objective is social impact, such as environmental sustainability, poverty reduction, education, health and housing, while also making profits. “Impact investing” or “double bottom line investing” has resulted in a new class of investors and social entrepreneurs, as well as new legal structures such as “benefit corporations” that permit officers and directors to take actions resulting in a social good but not the highest financial reward. Foreign aid, too, is seeking private sector solutions to problems in the developing world. Established financial institutions and law firms see a good business opportunity with this new class of investor. The panel discusses this trend and the legal and other implications.

Climate Action: Where is the Action?

In the absence of international or national climate change laws, some states and provinces within countries are pushing ahead on their own. For example, in the US, New York recently enacted ambitious climate change legislation that sets it apart from all other states, and in Germany, several states have adopted their own climate protection acts. Our panel will discuss how different regional laws attacking a global issue impact cross-border business and investment activities.

Revitalizing MERCOSUR Through Its Association Agreement With The European Union

After two decades of intermittent negotiations, the European Union-MERCOSUR Association Agreement finally concluded in Brussels on June 28, 2019. The Agreement, which includes a trade pact as well as a framework for cross-Atlantic political dialogue and cooperation, now faces a long ratification process. This panel will feature lawyers and an economist who have followed the negotiations since its inception to discuss the factors that culminated in a successful outcome and analyze prospects for ratification. The panelists will offer analyses of major provisions, including those focused on sustainable development and climate change that obligate Brazil to prevent illegal deforestation in the Amazon. The panel will also examine provisions that require MERCOSUR to overcome bottlenecks that have long undermined its own customs union such as non-tariff barriers as well as the non-implementation of prior agreements on cross-border investment, trade in services, and government procurement. Given the growing importance of China in South America’s Southern Cone, the panel will discuss the potential impact of the EU agreement on future trade, investment, and lending patterns for the region.

Global Conspiracies and Their Implications
Criminal conspiracies are increasingly global in nature. Enforcement activities also frequently span multiple jurisdictions as governments cooperate across borders. This panel will feature a discussion from leading experts concerning the laws surrounding the formation and dissipation of conspiracies, including how they differ across jurisdictions. We will also discuss different countries’ leniency programs and how those impact the incentives to timely report (and withdraw) from conspiracies, how such withdrawals impact global enforcement efforts, and how in-house counsel can effectively navigate the challenges of dealing with regulators from multiple jurisdictions who are conducting coordinated investigations.

The Business Case for Strengthening Rule-of-Law Across the Globe
As members of significant corporate enterprises, we know that the Rule of Law is the foundation on which economic activity and growth are built. Rule of Law eludes many countries and regions, including well-developed jurisdictions. The business community can and should have a seat at the table and engage in public-private sector partnerships. So, several corporations, law firms, and NGOs have come together to form the “Private Sector Partnership for the Rule of Law”, to coordinate the private sector’s promotion, advancement and protection of the Rule of Law. The “Partnership” will provide forward-looking businesses with opportunities to engage in rule of law initiatives around the world, and ultimately to speak with a unified voice on issues essential to stable legal and regulatory regimes. The Partnership intends to collaborate with the United Nations. Join us for a discussion on the importance of the rule of law to the business community, the efforts of several individual corporations in support of the Rule of Law, and the coordinated private sector venture the Partnership is seeking to achieve.

Dealing with the Asia Pacific Ring of Trade Fire

The suggestion that the trade crisis between the US and China is almost over may be premature. However, the relationship between the US and the China is far from the only issue making life complicated for those in trade in the Asia Pacific region. The region is already home to a number of major multilateral and bilateral trade agreements together with other government relationships such as ASEAN and APEC. There are also a number of less developed economies in the region and many MSMEs are struggling to enter the market and gain the benefits of these trade deals, or the other benefits of trade facilitation and modernization promised by the WTO Trade Facilitation Agreement. A panel drawn from the corporate world, private practice, NGOs and international aid agencies will provide their views together with proposals for improvement.

Keynote Luncheon: Dialogue with Izumi Nakamitsu, United Nations Under-Secretary-General & High Representative for Disarmament Affairs and Jonathan Granoff (moderator)

Sponsored by: Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz

Ms. Izumi Nakamitsu assumed her position as Under-Secretary-General and High Representative for Disarmament Affairs on 1 May 2017. Prior to taking on this post, Ms. Nakamitsu served as Assistant Administrator of the Crisis Response Unit at the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) since 2014.

She has many years of experience within and outside the United Nations system, most recently as Special Adviser Ad Interim on Follow-up to the Summit on Addressing Large Movements of Refugees and Migrants between 2016 and 2017. She was previously Director of the Asia and the Middle East Division of the United Nations Department of Peacekeeping Operations between 2012 and 2014, and Director of the Department's Division of Policy, Evaluation and Training, from 2008 to 2012.

Between 2005 and 2008, Ms. Nakamitsu was Professor of International Relations at Hitotsubashi University in Tokyo, where she also served as a member of the Foreign Exchange Council to Japan's Foreign Minister, and as a visiting senior adviser on peacebuilding at the Japan International Cooperation Agency. Between 1998 and 2004, she was the Chef de Cabinet and Director of Planning and Coordination at the International Institute for Democracy and Electoral Assistance, based in Stockholm, Sweden.

Earlier in her career, Ms. Nakamitsu was a member of the United Nations Reform Team of former Secretary-General Kofi Annan. She also held positions with the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), including within the office of Assistant High Commissioner for Policy and Operations Sergio Vieira de Mello, and in UNHCR field operations in the former Yugoslavia, Turkey and northern Iraq.

Born in 1963, Ms. Nakamitsu holds a Master of Science degree in Foreign Service from Georgetown University in Washington, DC, and a Bachelor of Law degree from Waseda University in Tokyo.

She is married and has two daughters.

Cryptocurrency Opportunities and Perils: Promoting Responsible Innovation
Proponents promote cryptocurrency as a means of empowerment: claims to empower individuals beholden to unreliable governments and financial institutions after the financial crises (e.g., the Bitcoin Network) and to benefit the unbanked and underbanked (e.g., Facebook’s Libra). However, cryptocurrencies also have empowered criminal actors that threaten international stability and national security. Bitcoin is the payment method of choice on the dark web, and billions of dollars have been lost to hacking, crypto-mining malware, and other malfeasance. The panel will explore the role of corporate social responsibility and anti-money laundering compliance in fostering responsible innovation in this rapidly evolving financial market and the challenges that regulatory uncertainty poses to continued growth in the cryptocurrency space.

Managing Uncertainty: Brexit and New Norms in the Context of Legal Services
London is a pivotal international legal market for US-based and global law firms alike. But it is roiled by the Brexit controversy, which poses unprecedented uncertainty for lawyers, law firms and their clients. While lawyers are experts in managing uncertainty for clients, Brexit and other contexts in which uncertainty reigns require us to internalize and adapt this expertise for ourselves and our firms. This program will address the far-reaching legal, regulatory, geopolitical and business implications for the practice of law during extended periods of uncertainty. It will address the current state of Brexit negotiations (or agreement, as the case may be). Panelists also will consider the relevance of lessons from Brexit as they pertain to other hubs (e.g., Hong Kong) for the global legal market experiencing threats to stability and predictability.

Issues in Cross-Border and Multi-Jurisdictional White Collar Investigations

Regulators and prosecutors in other countries increasingly are focusing their investigative and regulatory efforts on multi-national companies and allegations of financial fraud, corruption, sanctions, tax evasion, and money laundering. Simultaneously, there is a marked increase in cooperation among regulators and prosecutors both cross-border and across jurisdictions within the United States. Accordingly, internal and government facing investigations now pose a host of complicated risks for multinational companies. This panel will explore those risks as well as best practices for how to balance the multi-national regulators and prosecutors expectations and local law obligations, which often are in conflict, as well as significant legal and regulatory developments affecting cross-border and multi-jurisdictional investigations. The panel would include representatives of government enforcement agencies in the United States and abroad, and in-house and outside counsel for corporations from multiple countries.

Commemorating the 400th Anniversary of the Trans-Atlantic Slave Trade in the English Colonies: Why Does Slavery Still Exist 400 Years Later?

Four hundred years after the inauguration of the trans-Atlantic slave trade in the English colonies in North America, and almost 200 years after the abolition of slavery in much of Europe and North America, tens of millions of people are trapped in various forms of slavery around the world, including an estimated 10 million children.

Forms of modern slavery include forced labor, debt bondage, human trafficking, sexual exploitation and descent-based slavery. What legal and economic tools are available to identify and combat modern slavery? US federal law provides restitution remedies for trafficking victims – but few restitution orders are issued. How do other countries combat modern slavery? How can companies and consumers ensure their supply chains are free of this modern scourge.

Identifying the Ultimate Beneficial Owners of Business Organizations: Exposing Kleptocrats and Terrorists Behind Shell Companies – Or Just Another Compliance Burden?

Legislation making its way through Congress would conform the US to best international practice, including obligations on companies to identify their ultimate beneficial owners and report that ownership to a confidential government database. The ABA has historically opposed such legislation, in part, due to concerns about imposing gatekeeper obligations on the legal profession. Panelists will discuss issues including:

• Should companies be required to identify their ultimate beneficial owners?
• Should companies be required to report their ownership to a national database?
• What has been the experience in the EU and elsewhere with such disclosure? Are compliance burdens manageable?
• Should lawyers have gatekeeper responsibilities to report suspicious transactions? How different would it be from the ABA’s current Voluntary Good Practices Guidance to detect money laundering and terrorist financing? What are the implications for attorney/client privilege and client confidentiality?

Global Sanctions Compliance – A Lose-Lose Situation for Multi-National Companies?

Sanctions laws worldwide create challenges for multi-national companies. They do not only vary considerably in scope, but often also contradict each other, creating criminal or administrative offense liability risks as well as monetary risks as e.g., damages claims, often in several jurisdictions at the same time.

The US based headquarters of a group of companies e.g. may be forced to require that subsidiaries and joint venture companies fully comply with US sanctions. The group companies, however, may in turn be in conflict with local laws or unable to legally terminate contracts or to request sanctions compliance from its business partners. We will show how to navigate the multifaceted and often contradictory sanctions regimes, give valuable insights and present integrated solutions to cope with those situations.

Shifting International Approaches to Corporate Cooperation, Self-Reporting, and DPA Resolutions in White-Collar Cases

The panel will address the increasing international use of law enforcement and statutory authorities to incentivize corporations to self-report potential criminal misconduct and cooperate with government investigations. The panel, which will include representatives of government enforcement agencies in the US and abroad, and in-house and outside counsel for multinational corporations, would compare the approach to self-disclosure and corporate cooperation in multiple countries and address the increasing use of negotiated corporate resolutions, such as deferred prosecution agreements (DPAs), across the globe. The panel would discuss the challenges of simultaneously cooperating with governmental authorities in different countries and the availability of judicial oversight of governmental demands on corporations in different countries. Don’t Shoot the Messenger: Journalists Under Siege Around the Globe

As 2018’s “Person of The Year,” Time magazine chose Jamal Khashoggi and other journalists targeted for their work. The timing is apt. With the global trend toward authoritarian/autocratic regimes, journalists are increasingly subject to harassment, assault, arrest, prosecution, conviction, and imprisonment, and torture – even death. As 2019 drew to a close, a record 250+ journalists were in jail, not including the scores of the disappeared and captives of non-state actors. China and Turkey are the top jailers of journalists. And, with Egypt, they account for 50% of journalists behind bars. Moreover, those in prison are the “lucky” ones. On average, one to two journalists are assassinated every week, typically with impunity. With despotism on the rise, it has never been more dangerous to be a journalist than it is today. Nor has journalism ever been more important – to truth, democracy, and the rule of law. Join us for this engaging, highly-interactive, multi-media exploration of relevant international law, norms, and standards, and what we can do to defend those who “speak truth to power.”

The Sun Never Sets . . . or Does It? The Impact of Brexit on Critical Legal Sectors

In June 2016, following a close referendum, the United Kingdom (UK) voted to leave the European Union (EU) in what is ubiquitously described as “Brexit,” which will likely have far reaching implications that cannot be fully assessed today. From a legal perspective, the UK has played a very important role and has been the global focal point for several practice areas. This panel seeks to bring together a wide range of legal experts in different practice areas that can analyze and critique the potential impact of Brexit on that practice area. This panel will have speakers from several different practice groups: Dispute Resolution, Trade, Mergers & Acquisitions, Banking & Finance, and Competition Law. Each speaker will analyze the impact of Brexit on that practice group both from a UK perspective as well as a global/non-UK perspective. Further, there will be “rapid fire” questions presented to each of the speaker, where they are allowed quick, brief responses.

GROUP DISCOUNT | LAW STUDENT RATES

For information on group discounts or law student rates, contact intlawmeetings@americanbar.org.

REFUND POLICY

Cancellations must be made in writing and received by the Section office by April 10, 2020 for a full refund of fees, less a $250.00 administrative fee. The Section will accept substitutions for registrants unable to attend. All substitution and cancellation requests should be sent to intlawmeetings@americanbar.org. No refund of registration or fee for a ticketed event will be granted after that date except in the case of medical emergency or similarly extenuating circumstances approved by the Section in its sole discretion.

At this point the Section has had to guarantee guest number and total fee to the caterer/event venue. Individuals are, however, afforded the opportunity to try to re-sell their purchased tickets/registration to other meeting attendees.

When a completed registration form and payment have been submitted to the Section office either by mail, fax, e-mail or through our online registration system, the registration is a firm commitment and you will be expected to pay the registration and any ticketed event fees, unless a written cancellation is received as set forth above.

Any refunds issued will be processed to the credit card on file for individuals who made the payment via credit card.
GENERAL INFORMATION

TICKETED EVENTS
To purchase tickets to any Section sponsored ticketed events you must be registered for the meeting. Tickets to events that are not included in your registration fee can be purchased on the registration form, online, or onsite the day before each event. We must guarantee our final numbers with the hotel and venues the day before, therefore we cannot sell same-day tickets to events. There will, however, be a bulletin board at registration where meeting attendees can exchange and gift tickets.

CLE INFORMATION
The ABA will seek 24.50 hours of CLE credit, in 60-minute states, and 29.40 hours of CLE credit for this program in 50-minute states. Credit hours are estimated and are subject to each state’s approval and credit rounding rules. Please visit the program website at www.americanbar.org/groups/international_law/events_cle/2020-annual-meeting/ for program CLE details or visit www.americanbar.org/mcle for general information on CLE at the ABA.

SCHOLARSHIP INFORMATION
A limited number of registration fee reductions are available for this program upon application. The fee-reductions will be determined on a one-time only, case-by-case, first-come first-serve basis. Requests must be received at least three weeks before the program start date. You will be notified prior to the program if your application is approved. A minimal fee may be charged on all approved applications to defray expenses. For programs with tuition costs of $500 or more, qualifying attorneys will receive at least a 50% reduction in the course fee(s) only. To apply, send a letter outlining the basis for your request of a fee reduction to intlawmeetings@americanbar.org.

DRESS CODE
For the 2020 Annual Meeting, business attire is appropriate for the meetings, planned social/networking events with the exception of the Chair’s Closing Reception on Friday, where casual attire is acceptable.

EXHIBITION AREA
The Exhibitor and Sponsor exhibition area will be open from Wednesday, April 22 through Friday, April 24 at the New York Downtown Marriott.

Representatives from a variety of companies and organizations that cater to the legal community will showcase their latest products and services to aid you in your practice. All meeting attendees are encouraged to visit the Section’s partner exhibitions and displays throughout the meeting and in particular during the am/pm networking breaks.

If you are interested in getting your company or organization in front of meeting registrants and having an opportunity to demonstrate what your organization does and the value you can bring to registrants and their respective firms/organizations, please contact Jenny Abreu, CMP, Director of Meetings at (202) 662-1671.

20% MEETING DISCOUNT ON SECTION PUBLICATIONS
Stop by the Section Membership and Publications exhibit table to preview the most popular Section titles and receive a 20% discount on all publication orders. Refer to page 64 for details.

MEETING APP
The 2020 Annual Meeting app serves as your all-in-one event guide by putting everything you need to know right onto your mobile device. Customize your meeting experience by creating your schedule in advance, communicating with other attendees during the event, download hand-outs and material. The meeting app will be available for free in the app Store for iOS devices and in Google Play for Android devices.

Download yours today! Search “ABA International Law Section Events” in the App Store and Google Play, or download it directly at https://intlaw2020annualmeeting.pathable.co/.
CLE MATERIALS

CAREERS IN INTERNATIONAL LAW
Edited by Marcelo E. Bombau

Careers in International Law has become a best-selling classic for law students and attorneys interested in starting an international legal practice - as a private practitioner, as in-house counsel, in the public sector, or working at an NGO. This Fifth Edition presents a broad lineup of diverse contributors, who share their experiences of how they transitioned into international legal practice.

Fifteen authors detail their goals, their paths, and how their professional lives have evolved. Some authors found themselves in the international arena almost by chance or led by client needs, while others created a strategy for developing an international practice. While the diversity of the contributors enlightens the richness of their experiences, each personal story has a take-away message for all.
