The recent economic downturn associated with COVID-19 is affecting businesses globally, including those in the legal practice, and lawyers individually. Join this informative one-hour non-CLE discussion about how attorneys can weather the storm and manage their personal finances and their practices financially in this new time of uncertainty. This session will also cover how those still bearing law school debt can weather this storm, and any law school debt relief available during these turbulent times.

Speakers:
- Mitchell Stein, CFP®, Senior Vice President - Wealth Advisor, Morgan Stanley. Mitchell, of the Beyer Stein Group at Morgan Stanley, has been named to Forbes' Best-in-State Wealth Advisor list (2018, 2019, 2020). Mitch is a CERTIFIED FINANCIAL PLANNER™ practitioner and heads the team’s financial planning efforts. Mitch also leverages years of experience in equity research and sales to oversee each client’s asset allocation and custom investment portfolio construction.
- Tamara Cesaretti, Counsel, Student Borrower Protection Center. SBPC is building innovative partnerships and projects across the country to lead a nationwide effort to protect student loan borrowers and halt widespread abuses by the student loan industry. Through this work, SBPC is supporting federal, state and local officials on the front lines of the crisis and driving new action on behalf of borrowers in communities, in court, and in government.

Moderator:
- Jake Heyka, Senior Associate, International Tax and Transaction Services, Ernst & Young

REGISTER HERE