EMPLOYEE MOBILITY, SECRETS AND COMPETITION:
NON-COMPETES AND MORE

The stakes have gotten higher when an employee leaves to work for a competitor. Important intellectual property has gotten easier to take, and its value can be in the multi-millions of dollars. A panel consisting of antitrust, employment, and intellectual property practitioners will examine employee mobility issues through their respective lenses. They will discuss current trends, the legal and practical protections available to manage risk, and best practices for new, current, and departing employees.

IMMIGRATION LAW AND PRO BONO

Migration has taken on an increasingly greater importance in the world dialogue, with US immigration drawing the interest of law firms of every size and discipline. This panel will examine important considerations related to pro bono engagement in immigration. In particular, the panelists will consider various types of immigration-related pro bono cases law firms gravitate to and why. The panel will provide a holistic view of these cases, including insight into a law firm's vetting process for case selection, as well as an overview of these cases, how they are processed, and best practices for successfully completing them, even for those without immigration expertise.

EQUAL PAY: TRENDS IN LITIGATION, EMERGING LEGISLATION & CORPORATE EQUITY INITIATIVES

Panelists will address trends in equal pay-related litigation, including the distinction between anti-discrimination versus equal pay claims. Can employers rely on prior salary to justify pay disparities under federal or state equal pay laws? What issues arise in equal pay cases within the legal profession? The panel will also present trends in legislation, including: pay data collection; pay transparency requirements; limits on employer inquiries and reliance on prior salary; and narrowing employer defenses. The program will examine proactive measures taken by employers to discover and remedy pay disparities and promote gender and racial equity.

KEEPING ORDER IN THE NEW PUBLIC SQUARE OF SOCIAL MEDIA:
FREEDOM OF CONTENT VS. SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITY

While social media platforms have increased connections and conversations among friends, families and professionals, they have also been used by proponents of hate speech, and foreign actors seeking to subvert democratic institutions. What obligations do or should social media platforms have to moderate their platforms, and when does editorial discretion become censorship? Attendees will obtain a better understanding of social media platforms and the issues surrounding filtering of content, and have a better understanding of the ethical issues surrounding social media.

WHAT TO DO WITH THE BOILERPLATE IN YOUR TECHNOLOGY AGREEMENTS?

With the sheer volume of technology agreements negotiated and entered into every day, boilerplate provisions are a necessary and useful, fact of life. But when push comes to shove, do you really know what those “standard” clauses mean or how they will be interpreted in court? The panel will discuss what you may not know about such provisions and how to craft them to your advantage.
