REPORT

I. Background on the Development of ABA Model Regulatory Objectives for the Provision of Legal Services

The American Bar Association's Commission on the Future of Legal Services was created in August 2014 to examine how legal services are delivered in the U.S. and other countries and to recommend innovations that improve the delivery of, and the public's access to, those services.¹ As one part of its work, the Commission engaged in extensive research about regulatory innovations in the U.S. and abroad. The Commission found that U.S. jurisdictions are considering the adoption of regulatory objectives to serve as a framework for the development of standards in response to a changing legal profession and legal services landscape. Moreover, numerous countries already have adopted their own regulatory objectives.

The Commission concluded that the development of regulatory objectives is a useful initial step to guide supreme courts and bar authorities when they assess their existing regulatory framework and any other regulations they may choose to develop concerning non-traditional legal service providers. Given that supreme courts in the U.S. are beginning to consider the adoption of regulatory objectives and given that providers of legal assistance other than lawyers are already actively serving the American public, it is especially timely and important for the ABA to offer guidance in this area.

This Report discusses why the Commission urges the House of Delegates to adopt the accompanying Resolution.

II. The Purpose of Model Regulatory Objectives for the Provision of Legal Services

The Commission believes that the articulation of regulatory objectives serves many valuable purposes. One recent article cites five such benefits:

First, the inclusion of regulatory objectives definitively sets out the purpose of lawyer regulation and its parameters. Regulatory objectives thus serve as a guide to assist those regulating the legal profession and those being regulated. Second, regulatory objectives identify, for those affected by the particular regulation, the purpose of that regulation and why it is enforced. Third, regulatory objectives assist in ensuring that the function and purpose of the particular [regulation] is transparent. Thus, when the regulatory body administering the [regulation] is questioned—for example, about its interpretation of the [regulation]—the regulatory body can point to the regulatory objectives to demonstrate compliance with function and purpose. Fourth, regulatory objectives can help define the parameters of the [regulation] and of public debate about proposed [regulation]. Finally, regulatory objectives may help the legal profession when it is called upon to negotiate with governmental and nongovernmental entities about regulations affecting legal practice.²

In addition to these benefits, the Commission believes Model Regulatory Objectives for the Provision of Legal Services will be useful to guide the regulation of an increasingly wide array of already existing and possible future legal services providers.³ The legal landscape is changing at an unprecedented rate. In 2012, investors put $66 million dollars into legal service technology companies. By 2013, that figure was $458 million.⁴ One source indicates that there are well over a thousand legal tech startup companies currently in existence.⁵ Given that these services are already being offered to the public, the Model Regulatory Objectives for the Provision of Legal Services will serve as a useful tool for state supreme courts as they consider how to respond to these changes.

A number of U.S. jurisdictions have articulated specific regulatory objectives for the lawyer disciplinary function.⁶ At least one U.S. jurisdiction (Colorado) is considering the adoption of regulatory objectives that are intended to have broader application similar to the proposed ABA Model Regulatory Objectives for the Provision of Legal Services.⁷ In addition, the development and adoption of regulatory objectives with broad application has become increasingly common around the world. Nearly two dozen jurisdictions outside the U.S. have adopted them in the past decade or have proposals pending. Australia, Denmark, England, India, Ireland, New Zealand, Scotland, Wales, and several Canadian provinces are examples.⁸

The original quote refers to “legislation” rather than “regulation,” but regulatory objectives serve the same purpose in both cases.

⁸ For a more extensive history of the “regulatory objectives movement,” see Laurel Terry, Why Your Jurisdiction Should Jump on the Regulatory Objectives Bandwagon, THE PROFESSIONAL LAWYER (2013), available at http://www.personal.psu.edu/faculty/l/s/lst3/Terry_Regulatory_Objectives_Bandwagon_2013.pdf.

These Model Regulatory Objectives for the Provision of Legal Services are intended to stand on their own. Regulators should be able to identify the goals they seek to achieve through existing and new regulations. Having explicit regulatory objectives ensures credibility and transparency, thus enhancing public trust as well as the confidence of those who are regulated.⁹

From the outset, the Commission has been transparent about the broad array of issues it is studying and evaluating, including those legal services developments that are viewed by some as controversial, threatening, or undesirable (e.g., alternative business structures). The adoption of this Resolution, however, does not predetermine or even imply a position on those issues by the ABA. If and when any other issues come to the floor of the House of Delegates, the Association can and should have a full and informed debate about them.

The Commission intends for these Model Regulatory Objectives for the Provision of Legal Services to be used by supreme courts and their regulatory agencies. As noted in the Further Resolved Clause of this Resolution, the Objectives are offered as a guide to supreme courts. They can serve as such for new regulations and the interpretation of existing regulations,¹⁰ even in the absence of formal adoption. As with any ABA model, a supreme court may choose which, if any, provisions to be guided by, and which, if any, to adopt.

Although regulatory objectives have been adopted by legislatures of other countries due to the manner in which their governments operate, they are equally useful in the context of the judicially-based system of legal services regulation in the U.S., which has been long supported by the ABA.

Regulatory objectives can serve a purpose that is similar to the Preamble to the Model Rules of Professional Conduct. In jurisdictions that have formally adopted the Preamble, the Rules provide mandatory authority, and the Preamble offers guidance regarding the foundation of the black letter law and the context within which the Rules operate. In much the same way, regulatory objectives are intended to offer guidance to U.S. jurisdictions with regard to the foundation of existing legal services regulations (e.g., unauthorized practice restrictions) and the purpose of and context within which any new regulations should be developed and enforced in the legal services context.

III. Relationship to the Legal Profession's Core Values

Regulatory objectives are different from the legal profession's core values in at least two respects. First, the core values of the legal profession are (as the name suggests) directed at the

⁹ As Professor Laurel Terry states in comments she submitted in response to the Commission's circulation of a draft of these Regulatory Objectives, if "a regulator can say what it is trying to achieve, its response to a particular issue – whatever that response is – should be more thoughtful and should have more credibility. It seems to me that this is in everyone's interest."

“legal profession.”¹¹ By contrast, regulatory objectives are intended to guide the creation and interpretation of a wider array of legal services regulations, such as regulations covering new categories of legal services providers. For this reason, some duties that already exist in the Model Rules of Professional Conduct (e.g., the duty of confidentiality) are restated in the Model Regulatory Objectives for the Provision of Legal Services to emphasize their importance and relevance when developing regulations for legal services providers who are not lawyers. Second, while the core values of the legal profession remain at the center of attorney conduct rules, they offer only limited, though still essential, guidance in the context of regulating the legal profession. A more complete set of regulatory objectives can offer U.S. jurisdictions clearer regulatory guidance than the core values typically provide.¹²

The differing functions served by regulatory objectives and core values mean that some core values are articulated differently in the context of regulatory objectives. For example, the concept of client loyalty is an oft-stated and important core value, but in the context of regulatory objectives, client loyalty is expressed in more specific and concrete terms through independence of professional judgment, competence, and confidentiality.

IV. Recommended ABA Model Regulatory Objectives for the Provision of Legal Services

The Commission developed the Model Regulatory Objectives for the Provision of Legal Services by drawing on the expertise of its own members,¹³ discussing multiple drafts of regulatory objectives at Commission meetings, reviewing regulatory objectives in nearly two dozen jurisdictions, and reading the work of several scholars and resource experts.¹⁴ The Commission also sought input and incorporated suggestions from individuals and other entities, including the

¹³ The Commission includes representatives from the judiciary and regulatory bodies, academics, and practitioners.

1. Summary of Resolution(s).

The Commission on the Future of Legal Services seeks adoption of ABA Model Regulatory Objectives for the Provision of Legal Services by the House of Delegates. The Commission further requests that the House recommend that each state's highest court, and those of each territory and tribe, be guided by clearly identified regulatory objectives such as those contained in the proposed ABA Model Regulatory Objectives for the Provision of Legal Services. Given that supreme courts in the U.S. are beginning to consider the adoption of regulatory objectives and given that providers of legal assistance other than lawyers are already actively serving the American public, it is especially timely and important for the ABA to offer guidance in this area.

It is important for regulators to be able to easily identify the goals they seek to achieve through existing and new regulations. The adoption of ABA Model Regulatory Objectives for the Provision of Legal Services would create a valuable framework to guide the courts in the face of the burgeoning access to justice crisis and fast paced change affecting the delivery of legal services in order that the courts can assess their existing regulatory framework and any other regulations they may choose to develop concerning non-traditional legal service providers. Use of ABA Model Regulatory Objectives for the Provision of Legal Services also will help courts continue to ensure credibility and transparency in the regulatory process, which enhances not only the public's trust in judicial regulation, but also the confidence of those who are regulated.

2. Approval by Submitting Entity.

The Commission on the Future of Legal Services approved the filing of this Resolution at its meeting on September 25 and 26, 2015.

3. Has this or a similar resolution been submitted to the House or Board previously?

No

4. What existing Association policies are relevant to this Resolution and how would they be affected by its adoption?

This Resolution is consistent with existing and longstanding ABA policies supporting state-based judicial regulation and does not affect them.

5. If this is a late report, what urgency exists which requires action at this meeting of the House? N/A

6. Status of Legislation. (If applicable) N/A
7. Brief explanation regarding plans for implementation of the policy, if adopted by the House of Delegates.

The Policy Implementation Committee of the Center for Professional Responsibility has in place the procedures and infrastructure to successfully implement any policies relating to the regulation of the legal profession that are adopted by the House of Delegates. The Policy Implementation Committee works with the Conference of Chief Justices as part of its process. The Commission on the Future of Legal Services has been in communication with Center for Professional Responsibility volunteer leadership and the Center Director in anticipation of the implementation effort. The Policy Implementation Committee has been responsible for the successful implementation of the recommendations of the ABA Commission on Ethics 20/20, Ethics 2000 Commission, the Commission on Multijurisdictional Practice and the Commission to Evaluate the Model Code of Judicial Conduct. The Commission will also engage the ABA Legal Services Division regarding the implementation effort should the House adopt the Resolution.

8. Cost to the Association. (Both direct and indirect costs)

None

9. Disclosure of Interest. (If applicable)

10. Referrals.

On September 29, 2015 the Commission released for comment to all ABA entities, state and local bar associations, and affiliated entities a draft of this Resolution and the accompanying draft Report. In addition, the Commission consulted with the ABA Standing Committee on Professional Discipline and Standing Committee on Ethics and Professional Responsibility at an earlier stage during its study of regulatory objectives. The Commission carefully considered the feedback from those entities in the development of this Resolution.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

1. Summary of the Resolution

The Commission on the Future of Legal Services is proposing for House of Delegates adoption ABA Model Regulatory Objectives for the Provision of Legal Services. The Commission also requests that the House adopt the part of the Resolution that recommends that each state's highest court, and those of each territory and tribe, be guided by clearly identified regulatory objectives such as those contained in the proposed ABA Model Regulatory Objectives for the Provision of Legal Services.

The adoption of ABA Model Regulatory Objectives for the Provision of Legal Services would create a valuable framework to guide the courts as they, in the face of the burgeoning access to justice crisis and fast paced change affecting the delivery of legal services assess their existing regulatory framework and any other regulations they may choose to develop concerning non-traditional legal service providers. Use of ABA Model Regulatory Objectives for the Provision of Legal Services would also help courts continue to ensure credibility and transparency in the regulatory process, and that enhances not only the public's trust in judicial regulation, but also the confidence of those who are regulated.

2. Summary of the Issue that the Resolution Addresses

The ABA Commission on the Future of Legal Services was created in August 2014 to examine how legal services are delivered in the U.S. and other countries and to recommend innovations that improve the delivery of, and the public's access to, those services. As one part of its multifaceted work, the Commission engaged in extensive research about regulatory developments in the U.S. and abroad. The ABA has long supported state-based judicial regulation; its policies doing so do not, however, set forth a centralized framework of broad and explicit regulatory objectives to serve as a guide for such regulation. This Resolution, if adopted, would fill this policy void and serve as a useful tool to help courts easily identify the explicit goals they seek to achieve when they assess their existing regulatory framework and any other regulations they may choose to develop concerning non-traditional legal service providers. Given that supreme courts in the U.S. are beginning to consider the adoption of broad regulatory objectives, and given that providers of legal assistance other than lawyers are already actively serving the American public, the Commission believes that it is timely and important for the ABA to offer guidance in this area.

3. Please Explain How the Proposed Policy Position will address the issue

The adoption of ABA Model Regulatory Objectives for the Provision of Legal Services would create the valuable and needed framework to help courts as they, in the face of the burgeoning access to justice crisis and fast paced change affecting the delivery of legal services: (1) assess their existing regulatory framework and (2) identify and implement regulations related to legal services beyond the traditional regulation of the legal profession. While allowing for jurisdictional flexibility, the centralized framework set forth in the ABA Model Regulatory Objectives for the Provision of Legal Services would also facilitate jurisdictional consistency.

Use of ABA Model Regulatory Objectives for the Provision of Legal Services would also help courts continue to ensure credibility and transparency in the regulatory process, which enhances not only the public's trust in judicial regulation, but also the confidence of those who are regulated.

4. Summary of Minority Views

From the outset, the Commission on the Future of Legal Services has been committed to and implemented a process that is transparent and open. The Commission has engaged in broad outreach and provided full opportunity for input into its work. Inherent in any undertaking of this scope and complexity is the recognition that there will be disagreements about the approach to issues as well as the substance of proposals.

On September 29, 2015 the Commission released for comment to all ABA entities, state and local bar associations, and affiliated entities a draft of this Resolution and the accompanying draft Report. At the time this Executive Summary was filed with the House of Delegates, the Commission was aware only that the following disagree with the Resolution:

The New Jersey State Bar Association has expressed its belief that the Resolution is contrary to the profession's core values and promotes a tiered system of justice.

Larry Fox filed comment in opposition in his individual capacity.
