Cassandra Jones Havard

Cassandra Jones Havard, an expert in financial services regulation, teaches banking regulation, venture capital financing and other corporate and commercial law courses. After receiving a J.D. from the University of Pennsylvania, Professor Jones Havard clerked for the late Hon. A. Leon Higginbotham on the U. S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit and served as a trial attorney in the Tax Division of the U.S. Department of Justice and as a senior counsel at the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation in Washington, D.C., At the University of Baltimore, she is also the Director of the Charles Hamilton Houston Scholars Program, a pipeline program for undergraduates who are members of groups under-represented in the legal profession.