Persons with disabilities continue to encounter significant barriers in obtaining an education and getting a job. The unemployment rate of people with disabilities is almost double that of people who do not have disabilities, and students with disabilities graduate high school and college at significantly lower rates than the general population. Our experts will discuss current initiatives, policy development, and enforcement efforts by federal agencies in the areas of employment and education as they relate to individuals with disabilities.

2 TRACKS RUNNING SIMULTANEOUSLY

Our panel will provide an overview of the protections for employees under the ADA and its regulations and the PHRA; review EEOC guidance and recent case law; and provide helpful tips about conducting an individualized assessment, obtaining and evaluating medical evidence of direct threat, avoiding common pitfalls, and evaluating reasonable accommodations to address the potential threat.

Developing an IEP is essential to ensuring equal access to education and successful learning outcomes for children with disabilities. Our panel will first provide a brief overview of the required content of an IEP under the IDEA in light of the Endrew F. decision. The panelists will then offer tips on working with experts to develop goal-oriented IEP content and strategies for handling difficult issues.

Moderator: William F. Culleton, Jr., Special Education Hearing Officer, Office of Dispute Resolution, Pennsylvania Department of Education, Harrisburg, PA
When parents and schools disagree over the scope and implementation of a child’s IEP, an IDEA due process hearing is sometimes the only way to resolve the dispute and determine whether the child has received a FAPE. Our esteemed panel of experts will provide a brief overview of the relevant IDEA provisions, provide strategies for finding experts, and offer techniques for preparing them for direct and cross-examination.

12:00-1:00 pm
Networking Lunch

1:00-2:00 pm
Representing Students with Disabilities Facing Both School Discipline and Juvenile Justice Involvement
Robert M. Tudisco, Senior Counsel, Barger & Gaines, Tarrytown, NY
Nakisha Sharpe Winston, Staff Attorney, The Public Defender Service for the District of Columbia, Washington, DC
Moderator: Michael D. Raffael, Esq., Managing Attorney, Frankel & Kershenbaum, LLC, Bryn Mawr, PA
Students with disabilities are suspended or expelled from school at disproportionate rates compared to their non-disabled peers, and are at a higher risk for involvement in the juvenile justice system. Failure by schools to identify and accommodate students with disabilities is often a strong risk factor for such involvement. Our panel of experts will provide a brief overview of the IDEA's requirements regarding the discipline of students with disabilities, and offer strategies for ensuring that their disabilities are adequately addressed by the school system.

| 3:15-4:15 pm  | At some point in their careers, most lawyers will encounter a client with developmental, intellectual, or psychiatric disabilities. Representing these clients raises a number of ethical questions. These clients may have a limited ability to communicate information and desires, to understand information communicated by the attorney, and to understand choices, and they may voice desires that do not appear to be in their best interest. Our panel of experts will discuss an attorney’s ethical obligations as set forth in the ABA Model Rules of Professional Responsibility. Hypotheticals will be discussed to illustrate how these rules function in day-to-day practice. |
