Shiel Sexton has over 50 years’ experience in providing the highest quality general contracting and construction management services available nationwide. Shiel Sexton serves the commercial, life sciences, government services, hospitality and higher education building sectors throughout the country. With regional offices in Indianapolis, IN and Charlotte, NC, Shiel Sexton has more than 300 employees and is consistently ranked among the nation’s top 400 constructions firms according to Engineering News Record. In 2012, Shiel Sexton became a partial ESOP and a 100% ESOP as of October, 2016. Also, in 2012, Shiel Sexton created a wholly owned subsidiary, Anova, LLC, that provides quality management and safety and technical services. In 2015, Anova opened a Brazilian subsidiary in São Paulo.

Kris joined Shiel Sexton in 1999 after working with the Indianapolis firm of Ice Miller where she represented owners, architects and contractors. Kris is the first person to carry the title of General Counsel for Shiel Sexton Company. Additionally, Kris is the first female executive of the firm. Her skills and talent derived from 28 years’ experience in construction law and business litigation have equipped Kris to effectively manage risk and counsel on a myriad of legal issues related to operating a large general contracting firm.

Kris is very active in the community having served on numerous boards, including of the Methodist Health Foundation, Indiana Repertory Theatre, and the 500 Festival, among others.

Kris has two children, Jack, 25 and Kathleen, 22, and is married to Hon. Robert Altice, Indiana Court of Appeals.
