Secondary Trauma and Compassion Fatigue Among Family Law Attorneys: How to Recognize and Prevent It

Mental Illness Awareness Credit
Pacific Ballroom A (2nd Floor)

Attorneys practicing in the area of family law are at particular risk for secondary trauma and compassion fatigue. The nature of the issues litigated in family law are highly emotionally charged. Attorneys experience a myriad of emotions from their clients and their opponents ranging from rage and anger to incredible sadness. This panel will aid practitioners in identifying the signs and symptoms of secondary trauma and compassion fatigue and will provide them with ways to protect themselves from becoming victim to these phenomena.

Can ART Survive Death and Divorce?

Pacific Ballroom B (2nd Floor)

ART is an expanding field whose consequences directly impact family law and estate planning. This program explores and highlights the ART issues which arise in traditional family law cases, such as divorce, custody, and support cases, and in estate planning. Faculty will provide tips and guidelines to family law practitioners and estate planning practitioners who do not deal with ART issues on a day-to-day basis, but who may be confronted with them on a case-by-case basis.

Cryptocurrency and How to Find It and Track It in Divorce Litigation

Pacific Ballroom D (2nd Floor)

In the past few years, Bitcoin and cryptocurrency popularity has grown exponentially. The semi-anonymous nature of cryptocurrency makes it a useful tool for individuals attempting to hide assets. Unscrupulous spouses can purchase cryptocurrency for cash, hold or transfer it without the need for a financial institution, and do it all without a paper trail. Attorneys attending this session will learn about cryptocurrency, how it works, and the investigative techniques that can benefit their clients.

The Icky Shuffle (of Assets): Recouping Marital Assets Transferred to Third Parties
Pacific Ballroom B (2nd Floor)

In family law cases, the impulse to protect property can lead parties to transfer assets to lovers, children, business partners, or other third parties. When that happens, what options are available to recover those assets? Can the non-transferring spouse seek relief directly from the third party or only from the transferring spouse? What procedures are available in family court (or outside of family court) to make the non-transferring spouse whole? Learn the answers to these important questions and more.
