Head of Employment & Pensions (UK)

Paul is a partner at Taylor Wessing LLP and head of the firm's Employment & Pensions department.

Paul's practice involves him acting for and providing advice to employers in relation to all aspects of employment and labor law, particularly in relation to the technology, media and financial services sectors. He acts for a wide client base including both UK and many US companies. He is an active member of the American Bar Association and the American Employment Law Council, a body of management-sided employment lawyers. Paul also acts for senior executives, particularly those working in financial services, the media or technology companies. He also has extensive experience in working with overseas retailers in helping them set up in the UK and successfully operate their UK stores.

Paul is ranked as a leading individual in Employment law by Chambers UK 2014.
