Lewis L. Bossing currently serves as a Senior Staff Attorney for the Judge David L. Bazelon Center for Mental Health Law. There, he works on a broad array of issues affecting adults and children with mental disabilities, including community integration, special education, and criminal justice.

Before joining the Bazelon Center in October 2007, Bossing worked as a staff attorney in the Civil Rights Division at the U.S. Department of Justice, where he focused on physical access and other disability discrimination matters. Bossing also worked at the Legal Aid Society-Employment Law Center in San Francisco, representing clients in Americans with Disabilities Act litigation in employment and education settings. A former modern dancer, Bossing holds a B.S. in performance studies from Northwestern University and a J.D. from the New York University School of Law.
