HOW TO USE THIS PROGRAM

The program book is divided into three primary sections: Schedule-at-a-Glance, Program Schedule and Alpha Index. The following is a description of each of these sections:

SCHEDULE-AT-A-GLANCE (p. 7)
Lists all programs chronologically by start time, then alphabetically by committee name. Subcommittee meetings are listed under their committee. Use this guide to find programs beginning at a specific time.

Example: To find programs starting on Friday, at 8:30am, go to the Schedule-at-a-Glance section and locate the “Friday 8:30AM” programs. Here you can view the committees meeting at that time, the location, topic and the page number for the full program description in the Program Schedule.

PROGRAM SCHEDULE (p. 21)
Lists all programs chronologically by the start time, then alphabetically by committee names. Subcommittee meetings are listed under their committees. This section includes full program descriptions, speakers, locations and start and end times. The Schedule-at-a-Glance and the Alpha Index will help you locate specific programs in this section.

ALPHA INDEX (p. 70)
Lists all committee programs alphabetically by committee name. Use this section to locate all programs hosted by a specific committee.

Example: To find all programs hosted by the Administrative Practice committee, go to the Alpha Index and locate ‘Administrative Practice.’ You will find a listing of all meetings and events hosted by the Administrative Practice committee. Go to the corresponding page number(s) for more information.

12:45pm A Practical Approach to Section 199A. Over 90% of businesses in the US are organized as flow-through entities, making the 20% deduction for qualified business income under section 199A one of the most significant deductions in the Code. This panel will provide a step-by-step approach to determine whether the 20% deduction under section 199A applies to a given business. The panelists will discuss potential pitfalls and strategies to optimize the 20% deduction.

Moderator: Morgan Klinzing, Pepper Hamilton LLP, Philadelphia, PA
Panelists: Danielle M. Grimm, Special Counsel, Office of Associate Chief Counsel (Passthroughs and Special Industries), Washington, DC; Kimberly Arndt, PwC, Washington, DC; Chris Harris, Clark Hill Strasburger, Dallas, TX; David Porter, Law Offices of David B. Porter, San Francisco, CA

Attorneys may deal with IRS Appeals, Collections, and IRS Counsel at different times on behalf of the same taxpayer. What are some considerations in arranging a sustainable collection alternative bearing in mind the protections and procedures of CDP. What are a taxpayer’s options at an administrative level? What type of judicial review is available? How does the case change before the US Tax Court? A panel of CDP experts will examine the various stages of collection due process and how taxpayers may engage with them. This is a CDP Summit Initiative program.

3:00pm Cross Border Partnership Theory. Under certain provisions of the US international tax law, a partnership may be treated as an aggregate of its partners and under other provisions, a partnership may be treated as an entity. The tension between these two fundamentally different approaches has come into focus because of US tax reform. This presentation will cover the treatment of partnerships under certain key international tax provisions including GILTI, Subpart F, section 163(j), and section 864(c) (8) as well as consider collateral consequences of the aggregate theory of partnership taxation as compared to the entity theory, including structuring considerations. The panel will also discuss compliance and reporting aspects relating to the 2017 and 2018 tax years.

1:00pm
When Bankruptcy May be the Better Option. Often times clients with significant tax liabilities first consider administrative resolution with the IRS, such as an offer in compromise. However, many clients frequently find themselves saddled with additional non-tax debt that an offer simply does not resolve. Join us in exploring when bankruptcy may be a better alternative to resolve a client's collective financial difficulties. The panel will discuss the different types of bankruptcy options available, the fundamental requirements for discharge of a tax liability as well as exceptions and much more.

Moderator: Lawrence J. Yumkas, Yumkas Vidmar Sweeney & Mulrenin LLC, Columbia, MD

8:15am
Do We Really Need Subchapter S and Subchapter K? The federal income tax has two systems for taxing the income of a business entity to the entity’s owners: Subchapter S based in part on the corporate income tax structure of Subchapter C, and Subchapter K, a different system that passes all income, deductions and credits of a “partnership” to its partners. In many cases, particularly with entities that are LLCs under applicable state law, the entity may be able to choose either pass-through taxation system. The issues that may affect the choice are numerous. The two pass-through systems are not the same. Subchapter S includes a number of rules that limit the eligibility of certain corporations for its benefits and a series of detailed rules for electing or terminating the application of Subchapter S. Subchapter K, however, allows partners to be allocated basis in their partnership interests for certain indebtedness of the partnership; shareholders of an S corporation cannot receive such basis credit for the corporation’s indebtedness. Other differences arise out of special characterization rules applicable under Subchapter K to certain transactions involving partners and partnerships. By contrast, shareholder employees of a Subchapter S corporation may be able to avoid Social Security, Medicare, and other payroll taxes by not having all of their income from the corporation paid as ‘salaries.’ Partnerships generally cannot use this avoidance technique because partners may not be ‘employees’ of partnerships. However, Subchapter K, by far a more flexible system, offers a number of benefits not available to S corporations. Generally, Subchapter K allows partnerships more tax treatment flexibility in the form of provisions permitting planning options including special allocations, tax-free contributions to the partnership, and various basis adjustments under Sections 734(b), 743(b) and 754. One result of this flexibility is a special post-filing structure for auditing partnerships and their partners, perhaps partly because, unlike S corporations, partnerships can have an unlimited number of partners. Leaving aside issues such as S corporation penalty taxes applicable to S corporations that were formerly C corporations, the question remains whether there is any sound justification for having two separate pass-through systems for taxing members of business entities. The speakers will discuss the benefits that eliminating one system might yield, argue the plusses and minuses of both systems, consider how a single system might include elements drawn from both current systems, and perhaps address what a change to a single system would require by way of transition.

10:00am Tax Reform, Past & Future: TCJA, OECD, Digital Taxes, & the Tech Industry. The Tax Cuts and Jobs Act (TCJA) of 2017 represents the most significant business tax reform in more than 30 years. Its provisions were designed to bring jobs back to the US, stimulate investment, and encourage companies to keep intellectual property in the US. With competing objectives, the TCJA sought to increase American competitiveness by reducing the corporate rate of tax, but was also designed to subject foreign earnings from intangibles to potential US tax. Now, further changes on are on the horizon, with the introduction of digital taxes by certain counties, and continuing efforts by the OECD to reach agreement on modified global tax provisions (such as perhaps new profit allocation mechanisms and a GILTI-like minimum tax). Our panel will discuss the TCJA and these new changes as they relate to the Silicon Valley and how companies are responding.

Retirement: Can Current Policies Afford You One? Legislative Efforts to Alleviate the Gap in Retirement Savings.

About one-half of the households in the United States will not have enough retirement income to maintain their pre-retirement standard of living. Approximately one-third of the workforce in the private sector lacks access to employer-sponsored retirement and savings plans, and about one-half of retirement-age households will rely almost exclusively on Social Security and Medicare to pay for retirement. The Pension Protection Act of 2006 was the last substantial piece of federal retirement legislation. However, efforts to address retirement savings are gaining momentum, with state and local governments enacting legislation requiring automatic enrollment in individual retirement accounts, the Senate introducing the Retirement Enhancement and Savings Act, and the House Ways and Means Committee passing the Setting Every Community Up for Retirement Enhancement Act. But what implications do these efforts have on households already struggling to achieve financial security while working? The panel will discuss the history of retirement policy in the United States, recent federal, state, and local legislative efforts to increase retirement savings, and the implications of retirement policy efforts on middle to low income households.

3:20pm  Private Causes of Action Under the Code. There are several sections of the Internal Revenue Code that create private causes of action and/or defenses to liability. For example, 26 U.S.C. § 7431 provides a penalty for sales with the intent to evade tax. The panel will review when the courts will use a violation of a representation or warranty as to taxes, or the failure to file a bulk sale notice, as a defense to the purchase money note. Also of interest are attempts to include the government as a party under 28 U.S.C. §2410 and the government’s right to remove under 26 U.S.C. § 7424. The panel will also discuss the Right of Contribution under 26 U.S.C. § 6672(d)

2:30pm  Basics of Renewable Energy Tax Equity. To overcome some of the financing cost of developing solar and wind energy projects, developers may form joint ventures and similar arrangements with so-called “tax equity” investors. This panel will introduce the most common structures for solar and wind energy tax equity partnerships, discuss the basic tax and business considerations, and explore issues related to the future of tax incentives for renewable energy.

The qualified opportunity zone rules, the application of section 163(j)’s limitation on the deduction for business interest expense and the GILTI regime may result in aggregate outside bases of a partnership’s partners not equaling the aggregate tax basis of the partnership’s assets (i.e., an inside-outside basis disparity). Transfer Pricing XXX
Chair: Jana S. Lessne, KPMG LLP, Washington, DC

2:30pm Remaking Transfer Pricing for the Digital Age Part One. The tax challenges of digitalization have been a focus of tax policy discussion at the OECD and elsewhere since before BEPS. Will all of this talk soon lead to action? A sweepingly ambitious and fast-moving G20-sponsored and OECD-led work program has coalesced around three broad proposals for rewriting longstanding profit attribution rules. A comprehensive economic impact assessment is expected this fall, along with narrowing consensus on a particular policy option and, in 2020, a fully fleshed out technical proposal. All options on the table would diverge from the arm’s length standard. This panel will update the audience on the policy proposals currently under discussion and critically analyze them from theoretical, technical, and practical perspectives. In particular, the panel will examine the various proposals’ potential implications for US companies and for fundamental transfer pricing principles.

3:30pm Remaking Transfer Pricing for the Digital Age Part Two. Companies of all sizes and across all sectors are already confronting the challenges of transfer pricing in the digital age: applying long-standing principles to the pricing of digital economy transactions, deciphering the details of various forthcoming or proposed digital services taxes, and adapting legacy systems to capture new types of data on a transaction-by-transaction basis. This panel will focus on how MNEs are planning for, and actively responding to, the compliance demands of digitalization, the new digital services taxes, and the various new OECD guidelines and tax proposals.

3:00pm  Technology-Driven Trends in Tax Law Training. This panel explores the changing ways in which lawyers can, and are expected to, train themselves to excel in tax practice in an age of pervasive technology. Formal law firm training of associates is less common than before the Great Recession. Clients no longer are willing to subsidize the training of new associates. Tax associates must arrange to train themselves, outside their full-time, billable work obligations. The panel will discuss various training options (including residential and online LLM programs, online courses, webinars, podcasts, and mixed programs) by which tax lawyers can create a solid foundation for their tax practice and expand their knowledge into new tax subspecialties. These training options employ a range of pedagogical approaches, reflecting ongoing study and experimentation in online learning. The panel will highlight educational best practices, based on learning theory. In addition, the Panel will explore parameters by which lawyer-consumers of such training and employer-firms can assess the success of various training options.

4:00pm  California’s New Rules of Professional Conduct. In 2018, the California Supreme Court approved a comprehensive re-write of its rules of professional conduct. California has now joined the other 49 states in adopting ethics rules patterned after the ABA Model Rules of Professional Conduct, effective November 1, 2018. The rules are binding on all attorneys licensed by the California State Bar and, importantly, may apply to non-California lawyers who practice in the state. Our panel will discuss the new rules, including how they apply to tax practice, where they may conflict with Circular 230, and where they differ from the ABA rules. The discussion will emphasize how the ethical standards that apply to California attorneys has changed.

8:00am  Prior Opportunities to Dispute Liability in Collection Due Process: An Oversized Reaction to Insufficient Action.  What constitutes a “prior opportunity” to dispute a liability within the context of Collection Due Process (CDP)? When is a taxpayer precluded from having a CDP hearing on the basis that she already had a right to a hearing that constituted a prior opportunity? What are the consequences of losing a CDP hearing right? Is this loss mitigated through “equivalent hearings” or do equivalent hearings simply confuse taxpayers and impose excessive burdens on the Service? This panel will explore the consequences of when taxpayers are determined to have had a “prior opportunity” to participate in a CDP procedure and are precluded from CDP hearings and judicial review of their outcomes. This is a CDP Summit initiative program.

10:30am Free File: A Failed Public-Private Partnership? In 2002, the IRS entered into an agreement with a consortium of tax software companies, known as Free File, under which the companies would provide free tax return software to a certain percentage of US taxpayers, and in exchange, the IRS would not compete with these companies by providing its own software to taxpayers.

An original version of the Taxpayer First Act would have made permanent the Free File deal between the IRS and software companies. The provision was dropped following articles and reports that have identified numerous problems, including allegations that some of the software providers have improperly steered eligible taxpayers away from Free File, ineffective IRS oversight and marketing of the services, and a failure to connect the services to English as Second Language taxpayers. This panel will consider Free File from the following perspectives: a former industry insider who was present when the IRS and software providers established Free File, a tax administration and tax filing scholar whose writings on Free File highlight many of the program’s problems, and a leading authority on consumer practices and the tax system.

8:30am  Section 163(j) and Partnerships.
This program will discuss section 163(j)’s application to partnerships. Section 163(j), unusually, requires the limit on deductible interest to be calculated at the partnership level. But, any carryforwards occur at the partner level. Proposed Regulations provide that section 163(j) does not affect the section 704(b) allocations or capital accounts, as such. Thus, the Proposed Regulations do not purport to change allocations of business interest expense (BIE). But, in a highly complex way, using “11 steps,” the Proposed Regulations do determine who may deduct BIE currently, who may carry forward any disallowed deduction, and who may be allocated excess taxable income (ETI). The program will review how section 163(j) applies to partnerships in light of the Proposed Regulations and discuss problems with the statute and the proposed regulatory approach.

10:45am Dealing with the New and Lingering Tax Issues of Cryptocurrency.

While Notice 2014-21 provided a framework for taxing certain sales and exchanges and uses of convertible virtual currency, it left many questions unanswered, particularly as new types of virtual currencies and transactions emerged. In May, the IRS promised additional guidance. This presentation will focus on the tax issues raised by various business transactions involving virtual currency that may or may not be classified as convertible virtual currency. This includes questions about whether all or some of these transactions should be considered taxable sales or exchanges, taxation of sales of newly created crypto, dealer status, IRS audit and collection approaches, reporting requirements and more. Issues of basis tracking, crypto exchanges and swaps, the character of gain or loss, forks and airdrops will also be covered. In addition, this presentation will consider the factors that inform the classification of a given cryptocurrency or “security token” as a convertible virtual currency versus some other type of property using some new examples including Facebook’s Libra coin.

Moderator: Professor Roberta F. Mann, University of Oregon, Eugene, OR

The Evil that Men Do Lives After Them: When is an Executor or Fiduciary Personally Liable for Taxes of Another? An executor must file a decedent’s missing tax returns and pay any liabilities owed to the United States. The Federal Priority Act (31 U.S.C. § 3713) mandates that federal government claims receive first priority for payment. If the executor transfers funds to other creditors or beneficiaries and leaves federal claims unpaid, the executor can be personally liable to the extent of those transfers. This panel will explore the obligations of executors and fiduciaries where a decedent or incapacitated taxpayer failed to satisfy or took willful steps to evade their federal tax obligations, the impact of the Federal Priority Act, the statutory provisions through which fiduciaries can limit their personal exposure, potential landmines including transferee liabilities, and some areas in need of administrative guidance or legislative action.

This panel will provide the IRS perspective on digital currency enforcement efforts from examination and collection to criminal investigation. The discussion will include a review of issues arising in audits involving digital currencies, use of the information obtained from the Coinbase summons enforcement proceedings, impact of digital currencies on Collection Information Statements (Forms 433), seizures of digital keys, and investigations into those seeking to evade the assessment or payment of tax through the use of digital currencies.
