2018 Meet the Freshmen: Both House and Senate

Biographical, electoral, and district data for all new members to the 116th Congress

January 15, 2019
Roadmap

- Senate
- House
Sen. Kyrsten Sinema (D-AZ)

Background

Sinema represented Arizona’s 9th district in the House from 2012-2019. In 2018, she was elected US Senator for Arizona for the first time. Prior to her public-service career, she worked as a social worker, attorney, professor, and instructor at the Center for Progressive Leadership, a Washington-based institute that trains activists in progressive policies. In 2010, she was elected to the Arizona State Senate, where she sponsored several bills aimed at curbing Maricopa County Sheriff Joe Arpaio’s immigration policies, including targeted documentation checks. In Congress, Sinema was a member of the Blue Dog Coalition, comprising conservative Democrats, and the bipartisan Problem Solvers Caucus. She has a center-left voting record. In 2015 and 2016, she did not vote for Nancy Pelosi for majority leader. She has voted with her party 73 percent of the time. In 2017, she voted with President Trump’s position roughly half of the time. She is the first openly bisexual Congress member.

Sen. Martha McSally (R-AZ)

Background

A Rhode Island native, McSally came to Arizona in the early 1990s when she was assigned to Davis-Monthan Air Force Base in Tucson. Two years after graduating from the US Air Force Academy, she received her MPP from Harvard. In 1999, McSally was selected for a Washington, D.C.-based fellowship program, where she served as a national security adviser to then-Sen. Jon Kyl (R-AZ). She served multiple tours in the Middle East and supervised an air campaign in Saudi Arabia for Operation Iraqi Freedom. She drew national attention after she filed—and won—a 2001 lawsuit against the Defense Department to overturn a policy that required US servicewomen based in Saudi Arabia to wear a body-covering Muslim abaya and headscarf. After retiring from the Air Force she ran unsuccessfully in 2012 to replace retiring-Rep. Gabrielle Giffords (D), but won in her second attempt in the 2014 general election by 167 votes. She announced in January 2018 that she would run to replace retiring Sen. Jeff Flake (R) and faced fellow Rep. Kyrsten Sinema (D-AZ-09) in the general election. She lost the general election, but Gov. Ducey (R-AZ) announced in late December 2018 that she would fill the vacant seat left by Sen. Jon Kyl (R), who had himself been appointed by Gov. Ducey to fill John McCain’s vacant seat.

Sen. Rick Scott (R-FL)

Background

Scott enlisted in the US Navy after graduating high school, then attended college using the GI Bill. He had a 30-year career in business, first in the healthcare industry and then as a venture capitalist. After being elected governor in 2010, Scott focused primarily on the economy and jobs, with a campaign promise to create 700,000 jobs in the state. During his race for Senate against incumbent Bill Nelson, Scott made his record on job creation and tax cuts a key part of his platform. His 2018 senate run garnered national attention, as the race was too close to call up until the day of the election.

Sen. Mike Braun (R-IN)

Prior to his 2018 election to federal office, Braun was a member of the Indiana House of Representatives from 2014 to 2017, when he resigned to focus on his Senate campaign. A lifelong Hoosier, Braun grew up in Jasper and attended Wabash College, then Harvard Business School. He is president and CEO of Meyer Distributing, an aftermarket vehicle parts distributor which he joined in 1981 and eventually bought. In his campaign, Braun highlighted his opposition to gun control and promised to push for an economic agenda of regulatory tailoring and tax simplification.

Sen. Josh Hawley (R-MO)

Background

Hawley was born in Lexington, Missouri and attended high school in Kansas City. He went on to attend Stanford University and Yale Law School. Following law school, Hawley clerked for the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals and then the US Supreme Court. In 2008, Hawley joined Hogan Lovells, LLC as an attorney, and worked there for three years. As a litigator, Hawley argued before the Supreme Court as one of the lead attorneys in the Hobby Lobby case. He later went on to become an associate professor at the University of Missouri School of Law, where he has continued to teach. Hawley is also the founder and president of the Missouri Liberty Project, an organization that aims to defend the US Constitution and fight government overreach. In 2017, Hawley became the attorney general of Missouri.

Sen. Kevin Cramer (R-ND)

Background

Cramer, a native of Kindred, North Dakota, was elected chairman of the North Dakota Republican Party in 1991, making him the youngest member of the Republican National Committee. During the 1990s, he worked for Gov. Ed Schafer as state tourism director and then state economic development and finance director. In 2003, Gov. John Hoeven appointed Cramer to the Public Service Commission, and he was elected to the position in 2004. In 2012, he was elected to the House, where he has served on the Energy and Commerce Committee and various subcommittees. He has expressed skepticism of climate change and thinks the Environmental Protection Agency often overreaches its authority. Cramer has voted against his party only 2.9 percent of the time, less often than House Republicans’ average of 6.5 percent.

Rosen was the first in her family to graduate from college, after which she worked as a computer programmer for several companies, including Southwest Gas Company, Citibank, and Summa Corporation. She and her husband went on to start a consulting firm. She was president of Congregation Ner Tamid, Nevada’s largest synagogue. Her 2016 House race was one of the closest and most expensive House races that year; she won by just 1 percentage point. In Congress, Rosen was part of the Armed Services and Science, Space, and Technology Committees. She was a member of the Congressional Arts, Asian Pacific American Caucus and Caucus for Women’s Issues. Rosen lives in Henderson with her husband and daughter.
Sen. Marsha Blackburn (R-TN)

Background

Blackburn was born in Laurel, Mississippi, and graduated from Mississippi State University with a BS in home economics. After graduation, she worked as a sales manager at Southwestern Company. In 1987, she became the owner of Marketing Strategies, a promotion-event management and consulting firm. Her first foray into politics was in 1998, when she ran for office and won a seat in Tennessee's State Senate. In 2002, she was elected to the US House of Representatives to represent Tennessee's 7th district with 70% of the vote. In 2004, she ran for reelection unopposed. She is a Tea Party Republican. Blackburn occupied her position in the House up until 2018, when she was elected to Senate after defeating Democrat Phil Bredesen in the general election.

Sen. Mitt Romney (R-UT)

Background

Romney was born and raised in Bloomfield Hills, Michigan. After graduating from a joint JD-MBA program at Harvard, Romney worked as a consultant at Bain & Company; he eventually served as CEO. In 1994, Romney ran for US Senate in Massachusetts. After losing to Ted Kennedy, he resumed work at Bain and became CEO of the Salt Lake Organizing Committee for the 2002 Winter Olympics. After successfully helping organize the Winter Olympics, he again ran for office, this time running successfully for governor. As governor, Romney helped develop and sign into law Massachusetts health care reform legislation that established near-universal health care access by providing subsidies and enforcing individual mandates. In 2006, he campaigned for the Republican nomination in the 2008 US presidential election but lost to John McCain. In 2012, he was successfully nominated to be the Republican Party’s presidential candidate, but lost to Barack Obama in the general election.

Rep. Ann Kirkpatrick (D-AZ-2)

Background

Kirkpatrick majored in Asian studies at the University of Arizona, where she also received her law degree. In 1980, Coconino County elected Kirkpatrick as its first woman deputy county attorney, and she later served as city attorney for Sedona, Arizona. Kirkpatrick is a former representative from Arizona's first congressional district. She lost her first reelection campaign in the 2010 midterms, but regained her seat in a close 2012 race. In 2016 she unsuccessfully challenged Republican Sen. John McCain for his U.S. Senate seat. After Republican Rep. Martha McSally announced she would run for Sen. Jeff Flake's open seat, Kirkpatrick announced she would run to fill the open second district seat, which encompasses most of Tucson.

Rep. Katie Porter (D-CA-45)

Background

After graduating from law school, Porter spent two decades as a consumer protection attorney, where she advocated for homeowners and consumers affected by the housing crisis. In 2012, then-California Attorney General Kamala Harris appointed Porter as a monitor for the state Justice Department, where she acted as a watchdog for financial institutions. Following her appointment, she became a tenured consumer-law professor at the University of California, Irvine. Her campaign platform centered on providing financial stability for middle-class families, including by reforming tax and health care policies. She also supports gun-control reform, such as implementing mandatory background checks and a ban on assault weapons. She lives in Irvine with her three children.

Neguse is an attorney and public servant who has spent the last several years leading Colorado's consumer-protection agency. He is one of the youngest people to serve in a state Cabinet. He is the son of Eritrean refugees who fled violence to come to the United States 35 years ago. Both of his parents received naturalized citizenship in the past several years. After college, he cofounded New Era Colorado, the state's largest youth-voter registration-and-mobilization group in Colorado. His work for this organization registered over 150,000 young people to vote and promoted progressive legislation at the state level.

Rep. Jason Crow (D-CO-6)

Background
Crow is veteran Army officer who was a member of the 82nd Airborne Division in Iraq and holds a Bronze star for his service. After returning from Iraq, he joined the Army’s 75th Ranger Regiment and completed two tours in Afghanistan and Pakistan. Crow left the Army in 2006 and returned to Colorado where he became an advocate for the state’s veterans. In 2012, Crow advised President Obama’s reelection campaign on military issues and spoke at the Democratic National Convention in favor of the repeal of the “Don’t Ask Don’t Tell” policy. Crow served five years on the Colorado Board of Veterans Affairs and acted as co-chair for Colorado Governor John Hickenlooper’s Veterans Affairs Transition Committee and Veterans for Mark Udall. He most recently practiced law as a partner at the firm Holland and Hart. He lives in Denver with his wife and two children.

Rep. Jahana Hayes (D-CT-5)

Background

Hayes entered electoral politics when Rep. Elizabeth Etsy announced her retirement. Hayes entered a competitive Democratic primary against Mary Glassman, a veteran of local Connecticut politics. Hayes won the primary with a commanding lead, having run a progressive campaign that emphasized her underdog story—she grew up homeless, was pregnant as a teenager and lived through economic hardship. Before entering politics, Hayes taught social studies in high school and was a National Teacher of the Year in 2016. Hayes is the first African-American Congress member from Connecticut and the first African-American woman to represent a New England state.

Rep. Greg Steube (R-FL-17)

A native of Sarasota, Steube served in the Army for four years, with one year as an airborne infantry officer and the following three as a judge advocate general. Steube’s public service continued when, in 2010, he was elected to the state House, then the state Senate in 2016. He is a proponent of repealing “gun-free” zones and reforming immigration policies, including building a wall along the Mexican border and an end to sanctuary cities.

Mucarsel-Powell was born in Ecuador and moved to Florida when she was a teenager. Prior to running for office, she was the associate vice president at Florida International University’s Herbert Wertheim College of Medicine, the director of development at FIU, and most recently the president of DMP Associates. She has volunteered at several wildlife and coral-reef restoration projects in South Florida and the Florida Keys. Mucarsel-Powell was endorsed by Emily’s List, End Citizens United, Planned Parenthood, and the Sierra Club among others. She campaigned on a platform that included support for stronger gun laws and lower interest rates on federal student loans. Mucarsel-Powell lives in southern Florida with her husband Robert and her three children.
Rep. Donna Shalala (D-FL-27)

Background

Shalala was born and raised in Cleveland. During her career as a professor, Shalala was appointed by President Carter to serve as the assistant secretary for policy development and research at the US Department of Housing and Urban Development. Shalala became president of Hunter College, part of the City University of New York from 1980 until 1987 and then served as chancellor of the University of Wisconsin-Madison until 1993. In 1992, President-elect Clinton appointed Shalala to be secretary of Health and Human Services, and she stayed in that role for eight years to become the longest-serving HHS secretary. Shalala then became president of the University of Miami from 2001 to 2015, before taking over as president of the Clinton Foundation in 2015. In 2008, President George W. Bush awarded Shalala the Presidential Medal of Freedom. Shalala has lived in Pinecrest and Coral Gables for 17 years.

Rep. Lucy McBath (D-GA-6)

Background

Originally from Joliet, Illinois, McBath grew up as the daughter of Lucien Holman, president of the NAACP’s Illinois chapter. McBath worked as a flight attendant from 1984 to 2014. In 2012, McBath’s 17-year-old son, Jordan Davis, was shot and killed at a gas station in Jacksonville, Florida. During a retrial of the case, the man was convicted of first-degree murder. Following the tragedy, McBath became the national spokesperson for Everytown for Gun Safety and Moms Demand Action for Gun Sense in America. She also worked as the faith and outreach leader for both organizations. McBath founded the Champion in The Making Legacy Foundation in 2013, which provides financial and educational assistance to graduating high school students going to college. McBath has testified in front of the Senate Judiciary Committee and has lobbied members of Congress and local politicians on gun reform.

Rep. Edward Case (D-HI-1)

Background

Case is originally from Hilo and has lived in the state for most of his life. After studying psychology at Williams College, Case worked as a legislative assistant for Rep. and Sen. Spark Matsunaga. After law school, Case moved back to Hawaii, where he practiced land and commercial law before running for the Hawaii State House. In 2002, he won a special election to replace US Rep. Patsy Mink in 2002. In the House, Case worked with Republicans on numerous policy issues, supporting the Iraq War and being among 34 Democrats who voted to reduce the estate tax. Case ran on a similarly moderate platform in 2018, striking relatively conservative tones on national security and the role of government.

Rep. Russ Fulcher (R-ID-1)

Background

Russ Fulcher is a fourth generation Idahoan who grew up on a dairy farm in Meridian and has served for 10 years in the Idaho Senate. While employed at Micron Technology, Fulcher worked his way up from a production-line worker to director of sales and marketing for the manufacturing division. He conducted business in all 50 states and worked on-site in 36 countries. He served on the Idaho Senate State Affairs and Education Committees and was elected by his colleagues to be the Senate Republican Caucus Leader for six of the 10 years he served. Fulcher worked to pass the grocery-tax credit that offsets the sales tax Idahoans pay on groceries throughout the year.

Born in Durango, Mexico, Garcia and his family moved to Chicago when he was 10. Garcia has been involved in public service since 1984, taking on roles as a committeeman for the 22nd Ward, an Illinois Senator for the 1st District, and most recently as the Cook County commissioner. His 2018 platform promoted investment in regional transportation, restructuring Immigration and Customs Enforcement to a strictly defined role that prioritizes enforcement against violence, and instituting a universal health care under a single-payer system. Garcia ran for the 2015 mayoral election in Chicago but lost to Rahm Emanuel.

Rep. Sean Casten (D-IL-6)

Background

Casten was born in Dublin, Ireland. Prior to entering politics, Casten joined Arthur D. Little in 1997 as a consultant in its energy practice. In 2000, he became the CEO and president of Turbosteam Corporation until 2007, when Casten founded Recycled Energy Development, an energy company with a focus on reducing greenhouse-gas emissions. He has served as its CEO and president until he announced his congressional campaign in 2017. Casten has spent considerable time during the campaign talking about climate change and initiating a shift towards clean energy. He has also claimed that his priorities would be defending the Affordable Care Act, expanding health-care coverage, and working to repeal the tax reform that passed in December 2017.

Rep. Lauren Underwood (D-IL-14)

Background
Underwood was born and raised in Naperville. She held a series of health care positions at the American Association of Colleges of Nursing, the NIH, and the Advisory Board Company from 2009 to 2010. From there, Underwood served in President Obama’s administration in the Health and Human Services as a policy coordinator and a senior advisor to the president. Underwood ran with three issue priorities: health care, jobs, and education. She ran on the platform of expanding Affordable Care Act protections, investing in small businesses to create more local jobs, and increasing affordable education, paid family leave, and equal pay. When asked about President Trump and the Mueller investigation, Underwood maintained that she would support legislation to protect the special counsel from political interference.

Rep. Jim Baird (R-IN-4)

Background

Baird was a member of the Indiana House of Representatives since 2010 until his election after spending four years as a member of the Putnam County Commission. Prior to entering politics, he worked as a farmer and as a small businessman. Baird served as a first lieutenant in the Army during the Vietnam War, where he earned a Bronze Star and two Purple Hearts, losing his left arm in the process. In May, Baird won the 4th District primary by defeating two opponents in who had outraised and outspent him, making his victory a surprise for many political observers. Baird ran on a campaign emphasizing a balanced federal budget and pro-business policies.

Rep. Cindy Axne (D-IA-3)

A fifth-generation Iowan, Axne grew up on the south side of Des Moines. She attended the University of Iowa and earned an MBA from Northwestern University in 2002. From 2005 to 2014, Axne worked for the State of Iowa, holding a variety of roles. Before running for office, she was a small business owner, running a digital design firm. During her 2018 campaign Axne promised to raise wages, address unfair trade deals and protect the state’s unions. She also listed protecting public schools and passing a bipartisan immigration bill as campaign priorities. Axne is committed to maintain and improve the Affordable Care Act to lower prescription drug costs and ensure that individuals with pre-existing conditions do not face discrimination.
Rep. Steven Watkins (R-KS-2)

Background

A sixth-generation Kansan, Watkins grew up in Topeka. From 1994 to 2004, Watkins served in the Army, earning the rank of captain and serving as a qualified Airborne Ranger. After serving in the Army, he was an engineering and business consultant at Versar Incorporated. Watkins attempted to climb Mount Everest in 2015 when a 7.8 magnitude earthquake struck Nepal, killing over 8,500 people, including six people from his team. During his campaign, he advocated for a strong national defense and emphasized that cybersecurity is a pressing issue. He supports military action in Syria, reducing the national debt, and protecting the Second Amendment.

Rep. Sharice Davids (D-KS-3)

Background

Davids grew up in Kansas and graduated from Johnson County Community College. In 2010, she earned a law degree from Cornell University. Davids is a member of the Ho-Chunk Nation, a Native American tribe in Wisconsin. Before running for office, she served as the chair of the board of directors of Twelve Clans and as a White House fellow in the Transportation Department. Davids believes climate change should be addressed immediately and that Kansas is uniquely positioned to capitalize on wind energy. Her campaign focused on an economic platform that included a tax cut for the middle class, incentivizing health care benefits for small businesses and creating a child-care tax credit. Davids supports the continued expansion of Medicaid and enabling Medicare to negotiate drug prices.

Rep. Jared Golden (D-ME-2)

Background
Golden was born in Lewiston, Maine and grew up in Leeds, Maine. He joined the Marine Corps, serving combat tours in both Iraq and Afghanistan. Prior to running for office, Golden returned to Afghanistan as a volunteer teacher, then worked as a staffer for Republican Senator Susan Collins (R-ME) on the Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee. In 2014, he was elected to the Maine House of Representatives, representing part of the city of Lewiston. He was reelected in 2016 and became assistant majority leader. Golden’s congressional campaign highlighted his experience working three jobs after his time in the Marines. He supports protecting health care coverage for people with preexisting conditions, lowering drug prices, and protecting Social Security and Medicare. While Golden received fewer votes in the first round of voting, Maine’s ranked-choice voting system allowed him to pick up enough second-choice votes to win in the second round.

Rep. David Trone (D-MD-6)

Background

Originally from Cheverly, Trone and his family moved to a working farm on the Maryland-Pennsylvania border when he was 11. From opening his first store in 1991, Trone has gone on to be the co-owner of Total Wine & More, the largest private wine retailer in the US. Trone heads an American Civil Liberties Union advisory board and established a legal fund for local residents affected by the travel ban to several predominantly Muslim countries. Trone’s 2018 win follows an unsuccessful bid in 2016 for Maryland’s 8th District seat. He is a proponent of universal access to broadband for students, tying the minimum wage to inflation, and overhauling the bail and pretrial detention system to make it more equitable.

Rep. Lori Trahan (D-MA-3)

Background

Trahan was born and raised in Lowell. She played Division I volleyball at Georgetown University. Her first job out of college was working for Rep. Marty Meehan, who represented Massachusetts’ 5th District. She eventually became his chief of staff and top advisor. After working in politics, Trahan started a business consulting firm with two other women. Trahan won the 10-person Democratic primary by less than 150 votes.

Rep. Ayanna Pressley (D-MA-7)

Background
Born and raised in Chicago, Pressley attended Boston University from 1992 to 1994, but left school before graduating to support her mother, who had lost her job. After leaving college, she worked as a district representative for US Rep. Joseph Kennedy II, where she worked with senior citizens, veterans and people with disabilities in the district. In 2009, she served as US Sen. John Kerry’s political director. Pressley was elected to the Boston City Council in 2009 and served until 2018, when she declared her intent to challenge incumbent Democrat Rep. Michael Capuano (MA-07). She defeated Capuano in the Democratic primary and — facing no Republican challenger in the general election — became the first African-American woman to represent Massachusetts. Pressley has championed universal health care and called for the defunding of US Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE), and she stated on the campaign trail that ending sexual violence would be a priority during her tenure.

Rep. Elissa Slotkin (D-MI-8)

Natives of the district, Slotkin’s family ran Hygrade Foods, a prominent meat company in Southeast Michigan known for inventing Ball Park Franks. After graduate school, she was recruited to join the Central Intelligence Agency, where she served as a Middle East analyst. From there, she went on to work in the White House, the office of the Director of National Intelligence, the State Department, and the Defense Department, where she rose to the rank of acting assistant secretary of Defense for International Security Affairs. During her campaign, Slotkin refused to support Nancy Pelosi as House Democratic leader or accept corporate contributions to her campaign. She highlighted incumbent Rep. Mike Bishop’s vote to repeal the Affordable Care Act as a key theme of her campaign.

Rep. Andy Levin (D-MI-9)

Background

Levin won a contested Democratic primary against two candidates, one of whom, Michigan State Rep. Ellen Lipton, had secured the backing of EMILY’s List. Levin comes from a prominent Michigan political family. His dad, Sandy Levin represented the 9th district for over thirty years. Andy’s uncle, Carl Levin, was Michigan’s senior senator until he retired in 2015. Other members of the Levin family served in the federal judiciary in Michigan. Andy ran for Michigan Senate in 2006, losing a close election to Republican John Pappageorge. Prior to entering electoral politics, Andy worked as an attorney, as a clean energy entrepreneur, and in state government, where he helped to retrain Michigan workers for clean energy jobs.

Born in Rochester Hills, Michigan, Stevens is a native of the 11th district. She earned her bachelor’s and master’s degrees from American University, in Washington, D.C. Prior to entering electoral politics, she served as the chief of staff of the Treasury Department task force assigned to rescuing the auto industry after the 2007 financial crisis. Additionally, she served as a policy advisor to the Economic Development Administration. Stevens played a role in setting up the Office of Recovery for Automotive Communities and Workers and the White House Office of Manufacturing Policy. Outside of government, she worked on job training programs and STEM education initiatives in Michigan. Beating five other candidates in the Democratic primary, Stevens’ platform emphasized the cost of prescription drugs and a need to encourage manufacturers and researchers to relocate to the district.

The daughter of Palestinian immigrants, Tlaib earned a B.A. in political science at Wayne State University and a J.D. at Western Michigan University Thomas Cooley Law School, in 2004. Tlaib, who was endorsed by the Democratic Socialists of America, won the Democratic primary seat of retiring John Conyers and ran uncontested in the general election. Tlaib had been a member of the Michigan state legislature for more than 10 years and becomes one of two Muslim elected members of Congress in 2018. She lives with her two children in Detroit.
Rep. Jim Hagedorn (R-MN-1)

Background

Hagedorn was born in Blue Earth, and raised on a grain-and-hog farm. After college, he worked as a legislative assistant to Rep. Arlan Stangeland. He then worked as the director for legislative and public affairs for the Financial Management Service and later as a congressional-affairs officer for the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. One of Hagedorn’s campaign points was a biometric US visa and passport system to track temporary visitors and deport those who overstay. He is also a proponent of seeking energy independence by pursuing all possible sources of production.

Rep. Dean Phillips (D-MN-3)

Background
The heir to the Phillips Distilling Company liquor fortune, as well as the step-grandson of Abigail Van Buren (better known as “Dear Abby”), Phillips is a relative newcomer to politics. Before entering politics, Phillips also served in a number of philanthropic roles throughout the Minneapolis area as the chair of the Phillips family foundations and several other charitable enterprises. Phillips also was chair of Talenti Gelato until the company was sold to Unilever. Notably, Phillips most recent business ventures were two coffee shops that pledged to offer a $15 minimum wage for their employees. Phillips campaigned against incumbent Erik Paulsen’s support for the repeal of the Affordable Care Act, though Phillips declined to back a “Medicare for-all” proposal. Phillips rejected corporate PAC donations and also pledged not to self-fund his campaign.

Born in Somalia, Omar and her family fled the civil war when she was 8, moving to a refugee camp in Kenya for four years before eventually settling down in Minneapolis in 1997. After college, Omar worked as a community nutrition educator and later became a Humphrey Policy fellow, serving as a senior policy aide for a Minneapolis city-council member. In 2016, she became the first Somali-American, Muslim legislator in the US, when she was elected to the Minnesota House of Representatives. Omar is a proponent of funding pre-kindergarten programs nationwide, abolishing Immigration and Customs Enforcement, and automatically registering every 18-year old to vote.
Rep. Peter Stauber (R-MN-8)

Background

Stauber was born in 1966 in Duluth and played hockey from a young age. After suiting up for the Lake Superior State University team, he played for minor-league affiliates of the Detroit Red Wings before retiring in 1993 and returning to Minnesota. He co-owns the Duluth Hockey Company with his five brothers. He worked in law enforcement for over two decades, serving as the president of the Law Enforcement Labor Services Union, Local 363 and as a commander with the Duluth Police Department. He served on the Hermantown City Council for eight years before becoming a St. Louis County commissioner in 2012, defeating the incumbent. Stauber is a supporter of the 2017 GOP tax-reform bill and Trump’s actions on tariffs, and he is a strong opponent of abortion.

Rep. Steven Horsford (D-NV-4)

Background

Horsford is serving his second, non-consecutive term as Nevada’s 4th district representative. He was first elected in 2012, after Nevada added another district following the 2010 census, then lost re-election in 2014. Horsford supports responsible gun control after losing his father to gun violence when he was 19 years old. Prior to his most recent election, he was CEO of the Culinary Academy and led Nevada Partners, the largest job training program in Nevada. Horsford served as Nevada’s first African American state Senate Majority Leader. While in the state legislature, Horsford authored and passed the Nevada Lands Bill to create jobs across the state. He also worked to pass the Clean energy Jobs Initiative to progress Nevada’s role in renewable energy. Horsford beat Cresent Hardy in the November 6 general election. Between terms, he ran his own small business.

Rep. Christopher Pappas (D-NH-1)

Pappas is a restaurant owner and former New Hampshire state representative from Manchester, New Hampshire. His first entrance to politics was in 1996 when he volunteered for now Senator Jeanne Shaheen’s gubernatorial race while he was still in high school. He attended Harvard University and graduated in 2002 with a BA in Government. Following college, he returned to Manchester to help run his family’s restaurant. He is now the fourth-generation owner of the Puritan Backroom. Pappas served two terms in the New Hampshire House of Representatives from 2002 to 2004 and also served as a county treasurer and executive councilor. He campaigned on a platform that supports comprehensive legislation to combat the opioid crisis, expanding Medicaid, and implement environmental regulation. He received endorsements from both US Senators from New Hampshire, Planned Parenthood, and others.

Rep. Jeff Van Drew (D-NJ-2)

Background

Van Drew is originally from Southern New Jersey and lives in Cape May County, where he was a dentist. He was a member of the state General Assembly from 2002 to 2008, then was elected to the state Senate, where he has served since. While in the New Jersey legislature, Van Drew voted against Democrats on raising the minimum wage and gun regulations, receiving an A rating from the NRA. His 2018 campaign focused on bringing manufacturing jobs to South Jersey and promoting tourism in the region. He also voiced support for comprehensive immigration reform.

Rep. Andy Kim (D-NJ-3)

Background

Kim was born and raised in southern New Jersey. After finishing his education, he worked in the White House on counterterrorism issues, as the Director for Iraq for the National Security Council. He also served in the State and Defense Departments. Kim ran against two-term incumbent GOP Rep. Tom MacArthur’s support over the Trump administration’s efforts to repeal the Affordable Care Act. He also campaigned against MacArthur’s support for the GOP tax-reform bill and its limitations on deductions for state and local taxes, an unpopular provision in New Jersey, where property taxes are among the highest in the country. Kim also refused to accept corporate contributions to his campaign.

Rep. Antonio Delgado (D-NY-19)

Background

Delgado, born and raised in Schenectady, was first elected to represent New York's 19th district in November 2018. He grew up in upstate New York, the son of two General Electric employees. Antonio attended Colgate University, in Hamilton, New York, where he graduated with high honors and earned a Rhodes Scholarship to Oxford. From there, he went to law school at Harvard, which is where he met his wife Lacey. Delgado and his wife live in Rhinebeck. They have two sons, Maxwell and Coltrane. Delgado, an attorney by trade, challenged incumbent Representative John Faso in a race that The Wall Street Journal and CNBC called a solid pickup opportunity for Democrats.

Morelle has been a member of the New York Assembly since 1991, representing eastern Rochester and other Monroe County suburbs. After the death of Rep. Louise Slaughter (D-NY), Morelle announced his intent to run for his friend’s vacant seat. Under New York law, the seat would be held open until the November election, in which the winner would fill the remainder of the term and continue into the next Congress. His campaign focused on expanding access to health care, including universal coverage through Medicaid and Medicare. He has also expressed strong support for the DACA program and the DREAM Act.
Rep. Kelly Armstrong (R-ND-AL)

Background

Armstrong was raised in Dickinson and attended Dickinson High School. He met his wife at law school. Armstrong opened two offices for his law firm, Reichert Armstrong Law Office, and served as a volunteer fireman for the Dickinson Fire Department from 2005 to 2012. In 2011, he joined his family’s energy business, the Armstrong Corporation, as vice president. He represented the 36th District in the North Dakota Senate, chairing the Judiciary and Justice Reinvestment Committees. Armstrong also successfully ran as chairman of the North Dakota GOP in 2015. He sponsored a surge bill that funded infrastructure projects across the state with $2 billion and introduced a bill to solve the lake-bed-mineral crisis.

Rep. Kevin Hern (R-OK-1)

Hern graduated from high school in Dover, Arkansas before pursuing his bachelor’s at Arkansas Tech University, from which he graduated in 1986. He earned an MBA and studied for a PhD in astronautical engineering before serving in the military. In his early career, he held a variety of jobs, including in the aerospace industry, computer programming, real estate and hog farming. In 1999, Hern bought two McDonald’s in Muskogee; by 2012, he had become owner of KTAK Corporation, heading an operation overseeing 10 restaurants and more than 400 employees. Hern announced his bid to replace Rep. Jim Bridenstine, who was nominated by President Trump to be NASA director. In a heated Republican primary, Hern beat out Andy Coleman who had been backed by the Club For Growth. He has stated strong opposition to abortion and gay marriage, and campaigned on tighter immigration and opposition to Obamacare.

Background

Horn is a fifth-generation Oklahoman and longterm democratic activist. Her professional background is varied and includes time as a congressional press secretary, Yoga studio manager, and strategic communications consultant. After receiving her law degree from Southern Methodist University, she practiced law for a few years before turning full time toward politics. She served one year as former second district Rep. Brad Carson (D-OK)’s press secretary, before working in communications for multiple Oklahoma-based aerospace firms. For three years she then managed a yoga studio in Boulder, Colorado but returned to Oklahoma politics as the campaign manager of former Rep. Joe Dorman (D-OK)’s unsuccessful 2014 bid for governor. More recently she has served as the executive director of Sally’s List, an Oklahoma non-profit that recruits women to run for public office, while working for a strategic communications firm.

Rep. Daniel Meuser (R-PA-9)

Background

Meuser was born in Flushing, New York, and attended the New York Maritime University before transferring to Cornell University. He began his career as an executive at Pride Mobility Products; during his time there, the company saw $400 million in sales. Meuser entered politics in 2008, when he was a candidate for the GOP nomination in Pennsylvania's 10th district. He lost that primary, but served as PA Secretary of Revenue under governor Tom Corbett from 2011-15. In this position, Meuser oversaw the growth of the Pennsylvania Lottery, which generates $1.1 billion in revenue every year. In 2018, he defeated Democrat Denny Wolff to become the representative of Pennsylvania’s 9th district. He supports Second Amendment rights, President Trump's America First policy and cutting taxes. He is also pro-life.

Rep. John Joyce (R-PA-13)

Background

Joyce was born in Altoona, Pennsylvania. After college, he earned his MD from Temple University and began work at Johns Hopkins Hospital, before becoming a naval physician at Portsmouth Naval Hospital during Operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm. After his time in the navy, Dr. Joyce returned to Pennsylvania, where he has practiced dermatology for 25 years. His 2018 campaign represented his first entry into politics. Joyce supports the elimination of property taxes for schools, Second Amendment rights, the construction of a wall along the US-Mexico border, and the elimination of internet-purchase accessibility of opioids. He also supports preservation of access to Social Security and Medicare in his state.

Rep. Joe Cunningham (D-SC-1)

Background

Cunningham studied Ocean Engineering as an undergraduate, and earned his law degree from Northern Kentucky University. After graduating, he clerked for Boone County Commonwealth Attorney’s Office and the United States Attorney’s in Cincinnati. Currently, he is an Associate at Lyles & Lyles, where he specializes in construction litigation, personal injury defense and insurance defense. He also co-owns Soul Yoga + Wellness. During his political campaign, he committed to fundraising without the help of any political action committees or special interest groups, and promised to limit himself to three terms in office, should he win the race. His campaign priorities included ending offshore drilling, reducing the cost of healthcare, conserving the environment, promoting equal pay for women, and passing the Equality Act.

Rep. Mark Green (R-TN-7)

Background

Green is a member of the Tennessee State Senate as a Republican. Originally from Ashland City, Tennessee, he attended the US Military Academy at West Point. Following his time at West Point, Green served in the US army as an infantry officer, battalion personnel officer and airborne rifle company commander. Green went on to attend Wright State University where he earned an MD, and later became a flight surgeon in the Army. Green served in the Afghanistan War and the Iraq War, as well as participating in the military operation that captured Saddam Hussein. He has earned numerous military awards, including the Bronze Star and The Air Medal. Green authored a book about his experience interrogating Hussein, called A Night with Saddam. Following his military service, he founded Align MD, a company that provides staffing to hospitals across ten states. In 2012, Green was elected to the Tennessee state Senate and was later nominated to serve as the US Secretary of the Army by Donald Trump, although he withdrew his name.

Rep. Ron Wright (R-TX-6)

Background

Wright is a sixth generation resident of Tarrant County, where he attended Azle High School. After graduating from the University of Texas, Arlington, Wright worked on his family’s dairy farm and in construction. At the age of 25, Wright began managing an audio-visual company. After that, he oversaw multi-million dollar projects as a project manager for a cooling tower company in Fort Worth. Wright became active in political affairs in 2000, first as a City Council Member and Mayor Pro Tempore and later as Congressman Joe Barton’s chief of staff. He moved from Washington DC to accept his most recent job as the Tax Assessor-Collector of Tarrant County, where he worked from 2011 to 2018. During his House campaign, Wright emphasized local issues like his opposition to traffic cameras and the cancellation of a charity drive that he believed would benefit Planned Parenthood.

Rep. Elaine Luria (D-VA-2)

Background
Luria received a degree in physics and history from the United States Naval Academy in 1997 and received an MS in engineering management from Old Dominion University in 2004. Luria served for 20 years as a Surface Warfare Officer and nuclear engineer in the Navy, and was deployed six times to Japan, the Middle East and the Western Pacific. After retiring from the Navy in 2017, she started a family business that sells paintable clay mermaids. Luria emphasized her military experience during her 2018 campaign, saying that it would help her represent the district, which contains the world’s largest navy base and one of the highest concentrations of veterans nationwide. She supports preserving Social Security and Medicare, protecting the environment and investing in infrastructure.

Rep. Denver Riggleman (R-VA-5)

Background

Riggleman was born and raised in Virginia. He earned a BA in Foreign Affairs from the University of Virginia and a MS in Program Management from Villanova. While pursuing his education, Riggleman served as an enlisted member in the Air Force for four years, and then commissioned in 1998, went to work for the 366th Fighter Wing, the 34th Bomb Squadron and the National Security Agency. He's a small business owner of a distillery in Virginia, which he co-owns and operates with his wife. During his campaign, he advocated for the repeal of the ACA, which he wanted to replace with a consumer-driven model for Medicaid that gives states flexibility. He also supported eliminating the cap on medical residencies and prioritizing funding of medical residencies to areas most in need.

Miller was born in Columbus, Ohio in 1950, and she graduated from Columbia College in South Carolina with a degree in history and political science. Beginning in 1985, she worked as a self-employed real estate manager, and she has owned the Swann Ridge Bison Farm since 1994. In 2004, Miller ran for the West Virginia House of Delegates (District 15) and placed in the four-way, three-selectee Republican primary, but she lost the general election to the race’s incumbents. In 2006, she ran for the position again, this time successfully unseating the incumbent Democrat Margarette Leach. She held the position before being redistricted to District 16 in 2012. In 2018, she served as the majority whip in the House of Delegates. Miller has emphasized President Trump’s endorsement, and avidly supports the President. She has called herself an America-first conservative. She has advocated for making English America’s national language and supports Trump’s proposal to build a wall on the southern border.
Rep. Bryan Steil (R-WI-1)

Background

Steil was born and raised in Janesville, Wisconsin. He worked as a legislative assistant to Rep. Paul Ryan and as an attorney at McDermott Will & Emery. He then shifted to working with manufacturing firms in southeastern Wisconsin. In 2016, Steil was appointed to serve on the University of Wisconsin Board of Regents. While campaigning in 2018 elections, Steil promoted an end to federal mandates for education and giving states and local communities more control in setting the agenda for high schools, technical schools and universities. Steil is also a proponent of shifting health care decisions from the government to doctors, while ensuring coverage for pre-existing conditions.
