Bioethics and the law is a constantly changing field, new advances in science and technology provide much promise, but must also be continually balanced against ethical constraints and the need for a proper legal framework to ensure the protection of the rights of the individual and society at large. Please join a roundtable discussion with local and national experts and help identify and discuss the important bioethical issues that the ABA should be prepared to study in the coming years. Topics will include stem cell research, public health and genetic testing, including issues related to privacy, patents and insurance coverage, as well as any topics you would like to bring to the table.
