The Future of Mandatory Arbitration: A Conversation About Dodd-Frank and the Arbitration Fairness Act

FEBRUARY 8, 2011
12:00 - 1:15 PM Eastern Time

Last year Congress passed Dodd-Frank, a bill that ushered in sweeping reform in the financial services industry. This bill directs the SEC to decide whether or not to eliminate mandatory arbitration. For several years, Congress has considered the Arbitration Fairness Act which could eliminate mandatory arbitration in all consumer disputes. The landscape is unclear and debate is heated. Join us while experts in this area discuss the future of mandatory arbitration in the securities industry and beyond.
