As technology explodes—and the value of patent portfolios skyrockets—the volume and complexity of patent litigation demand a new kind of patent litigation reference.

PATENT LITIGATION STRATEGIES HANDBOOK, with 2003 CUMULATIVE SUPPLEMENT, gives you both the “how-to” and the “why-to” of patent litigation, with specific, proven tactics for protecting your clients’ interests and giving them a competitive advantage.

And—most important—this book focuses on resolving legal disputes efficiently, effectively, and professionally.

Through chapters authored by leading experts in all aspects of resolving patent infringement disputes, the book discusses topics from the routine and basic . . . to the dynamic and complex.

You get discussion, analysis, and the strategic reasons behind every phase of patent infringement litigation from initial client counseling prior to suit through the filing of the Notice of Appeal.

Experienced patent litigators will find the insights and analysis helpful in enhancing their understanding of their art, and novice litigators will benefit from the comprehensive discussions and practical advice on all aspects of patent infringement litigation.

The 2003 CUMULATIVE SUPPLEMENT examines pertinent aspects of the following court decisions and other legal developments:

- The Federal Circuit holding in Eagle Comtronics, Inc. v. Arrow Communication Laboratories, Inc., stating that a one-to-one correspondence between components of the accused device and the claim limitations of the patent is not necessarily required to find infringement under the doctrine of equivalents.
- The United States Supreme Court decision in Festo Corp. v. Shoketsu Kinzoku Kogyo Kabushiki Co., clarifying the relationship between prosecution history estoppel and the doctrine of equivalents.
- The United States Supreme Court decision in Homes Group, Inc. v. Vornado Air Circulation Systems, Inc., holding that a counterclaim asserting patent infringement will not give rise to subject matter jurisdiction under the federal patent statute.
- The Federal Circuit decision in Johnson & Johnson Assoc. Inc. v. R.E. Service Co. Inc., holding that material disclosed in a patent specification, but not claimed, is dedicated to the public.
- Expanded discussion of local discovery rules, and more.
