ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Ronald D. Coleman is a lawyer in private practice. His work as a commercial litigator has centered on contract disputes in the areas of insurance coverage, consumer protection, and trade law. He is author of the Princeton Review Prelaw Companion (Random House), has contributed to the ABA Journal, and is a former contributing editor of Student Lawyer magazine. He has taught contract law as an adjunct law professor at Seton Hall University in Newark, New Jersey, and lectures for the New York branch of Jerusalem's Aish Ha Torah College of Jewish Studies. A graduate of Princeton University and Northwestern University School of Law, he lives with his family in Clifton, New Jersey.
