

YOUR ABA

news bulletin

Updates from the 2018 Annual Meeting

Click here to view this issue online.

House adopts new dues structure, urges Congress to address family border separation

Delegates tackled several important issues during their two-day session, including those related to a new membership model, rules for lawyer advertising, legal education and more.

Find out what was passed, withdrawn or failed >>

Outgoing president passes gavel; new leadership outlines priorities

Hilarie Bass passed the gavel to Bob Carlson as he became association president at the close of the House session in Chicago.

New president's areas of focus >>

Taking knees & wearing t-shirts: Panelists talk sports activism and free speech

Is the new NFL rule that players stand during the national anthem or stay in the locker room a violation of players' free speech rights?

Why First Amendment claims won't hold up >>

Time's Up founder among speakers reporting from anti-harassment front

Panelists shared the after-effects of the #MeToo and Time's Up movements as national awareness of sexual harassment grows.

How to change workplace culture >>

ABA honors 5 women trailblazers for career achievements

The association recognized those who have paved the way to success for other women lawyers with Margaret Brent Awards.

Meet the 2018 awardees >>

Non-English language Miranda tools promise major changes in criminal justice arena

How the ABA, New Orleans police department and a graduate school of design came together to develop a game-changing tool to increase access to justice.

Addresses 12.7 million with limited English proficiency >>

Experts: Cyberattacks inevitable, preparation for law firms essential

Cyberattacks are at an all-time high and experts say that law firms are unprepared, particularly regarding post-breach measures.

Lessons from the DLA Piper hack >>

Solutions for addiction must start in law school, recovering lawyer says

The author of “The Addicted Lawyer” shares his journey to recovery and what the legal profession can do to support its members in need.

Resources available >>

View Annual Meeting Update 1 for more news, including stories on the keynote from Deputy AG Rosenstein, ABA Medal, Eric Holder’s appearance and more.

For more stories from the 2018 Annual Meeting, see AmBar.org/News and follow @ABANews on Twitter.