LAW SCHOOLS IN THE UNITED STATES ON THE APPROVED LIST OF THE AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION, 1958

The requirements shown in the following tables are stated in terms of academic years. An academic year in an approved law school consists of not less than thirty weeks if the students devote substantially all of their time to the study of law, or not less than thirty-six weeks in a part-time school.

The figure in parentheses following the name of the law school indicates the year in which the school was approved by the American Bar Association. The figures following M, A, and E directly beneath the name of the school show the number of students in each class or year, namely, first year, second year, third year, fourth year, graduate, and special or unclassified students. The figure in parentheses immediately following attendance total is included in the total. It indicates the number of women attending law school classes.

Under the heading "Annual Tuition" the following symbols are used: r stands for resident; n for nonresident; m for morning; a for afternoon; e for evening. Tuition given is for two semesters or three-quarters of a school year; tuition for summer sessions is not shown.

Under "Requirements" Roman numeral indicates number of years of college study required for admission as a law student. Capital letter M means full-time morning classes; classes in late afternoon are designated by capital A; capital E denotes part-time classes held in evening (except for Gonzaga University which is a full-time school). Arabic numerals show number of years required to complete course. Parentheses indicate course may be shortened by local summer school work.

CHANGES IN THE LAW SCHOOLS

As of November 1, 1958, there are 129 schools on the approved list of the American Bar Association. Of these, South Carolina State College School of Law, Southern University School of Law (Louisiana), Suffolk University School of Law, Salmon P. Chase College Law School, New York Law School, Golden Gate College of Law, Florida A. & M. University College of Law, and Cleveland-Marshall Law School, enjoy provisional approval. Indiana University operates a full-time division in Bloomington and a part-time division in Indianapolis (counted as one school in the total above), while Rutgers University operates schools in Camden and Newark (counted as two schools in the total above), of which all are fully approved.

The Youngstown College School of Law will close upon the graduation of the last class enrolled in 1956-57—no beginning students were admitted in September 1957 or 1958. We are advised that the Andrew Jackson College of Law and the McKenzie College of Law, both in Tennessee, and Smithdeal Massey College of Law, in Virginia, have closed. The Thomas Jefferson College of Law and Virginia College of Commerce and Law, both in Virginia, have not replied to any inquiry for the past three years. Seven other unapproved schools did not reply to two requests for information or enrollment. Some of these may have closed. If so, we have not been advised. The names of these schools are shown in the listing.

One new law school has been opened—California Western University in San Diego. The school is affiliated with the Methodist Church.

CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS OF LAW

The American Bar Association expressly disapproves of correspondence law courses as a means of preparation for bar examinations and for practice. A diploma or degree from a correspondence school of law does not qualify one to appear for the bar examination in any state. Before one pursues a correspondence law course, it is suggested that he first familiarize himself with the rules and regulations of the state in which he intends to practice and inquire whether correspondence law courses are acceptable under the applicable rules and regulations of the said state and any governmental agencies with which one expects to secure employment.

STANDARDS OF THE AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION

Paragraphs in italics constitute some interpretations which have been made by the Council of Legal Education

(1) The American Bar Association is of the opinion that every candidate for admission to the bar should give evidence of graduation from a law school complying with the following standards:

(a) It shall require as a condition to admission at least three years of acceptable college work, except that a school which requires four years of full-term work or an equivalent of part-time work for the first professional degree in law may admit a student who has successfully completed two years of acceptable college work."

An approved school shall require of all candidates for any degree at the time of the commencement of their law study the completion of three-fourths of the work acceptable for a bachelor's degree granted on the basis of a four-year period of study either by the state university or a principal college or university in the state where the law school is located.

(b) It shall require its students to pursue a course of three years' duration if they devote substantially all of their working time to their studies, and a longer course equivalent in the number of working hours, if they devote only a part of their working time to their studies.

A law school which maintains a course for full-time students and a course for part-time students must comply with all the requirements as to both courses.

The curriculum and schedule of work of a full-time course shall be so arranged that substantially the full working time of students is required for a period of three years of at least thirty weeks each. A part-time course shall cover a period of at least four years of not less than thirty-six weeks each year.

(c) It shall provide an adequate library available for the use of the students.

An adequate library shall consist of not less than seventy-five hundred well-selected, usable volumes, not counting obsolete material or broken sets of reports, kept up to date and owned or controlled by the law school or the university with which it is connected. Beginning with the academic year 1958-59 the number of such volumes should be at least 10,000. Two years later it should be 12,500 and by the Fall of 1963 should be at least 15,000. It is required that a five-year expenditure of $4,000 per year on library additions be made, with a minimum expenditure of $3,000 in any one year.

A school shall be adequately supported and housed so as to make possible efficient work on the part of both students and faculty.

(d) It shall have among its teachers a sufficient number giving their entire time to the school to insure actual personal acquaintance and influence with the whole student body.

The number of full-time instructors shall not be less than one for each one hundred students or major fraction thereof, and in no case shall the number of such full-time instructors be less than three.

(e) It shall not be operated as a commercial enterprise and the compensation of any officer or member of its teaching staff shall not depend on the number of students or on the fees received.

(f) It shall be a school which in the judgment of the Council of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar possesses reasonably adequate facilities and maintains a sound educational policy; provided, however, that any decision of the Council in these respects shall be subject to review by the House of Delegates on the petition of any school adversely affected.

(2) The American Bar Association is of the opinion that graduation from a law school should not confer the right of admission to the bar, and that every candidate should be subject to an examination by public authority to determine his fitness.

(3) The Council of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar is directed to publish from time to time the names of those law schools which comply with the above standards and of those which do not and to make such publications available so far as possible to intending law students.

Schools shall be designated "Approved" or "Unapproved." No school shall be placed upon the approved list without an inspection prior to such approval made under the direction of the Council. The approval first given is called "provisional approval." This means that the school fully meets the standards of the American Bar Association, but is subject to reinspection after the lapse of a period which is usually about two years. After a reinspection has been made, the Association on the recommendation of the Council may give full approval.
