20 Years After MacCrate
Report of the Committee on the Professional Educational Continuum

Featured Articles
Erica Moeser to Receive Kutak Award
Belmont University College of Law Granted Provisional Approval
Proposed Change to Employment Status Determination Date

News and Announcements
2013–2014 Council Slate Announced
Member News
2013 Annual Meeting Schedule
Twenty Years After the MacCrate Report: A Review of the Current State of the Legal Education Continuum and the Challenges Facing the Academy, Bar and Judiciary

Introduction

When the Council of the ABA Section of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar formed the MacCrate Task Force on “Law Schools and the Profession: Narrowing the Gap” almost twenty-five years ago, there was a general perception that there was a “gap between the teaching and practice segments of the profession.”[1] As the Task Force explained in the Introduction to its report:

It has long been apparent that law schools cannot reasonably be expected to shoulder the task of converting even very able students into full-fledged lawyers licensed to handle legal matters. Thus a gap develops between the expectation and the reality, resulting in complaints and recriminations from legal educators and practicing lawyers.[2]

After extensive study of the then-existing state of the systems for preparing new members of the legal profession for practice, the Task Force concluded that the apparent “gap” was more a function of perception than reality, “reflect[ing] an unwillingness of the academy and the practicing bar fully to understand the culture, needs, aspirations, value systems, and accomplishments of each community.”[3] The Task Force conducted an “in-depth survey to document the full extent of [law school] curriculum development in the skills training area, and the availability of such resources to students,” and found that, contrary to the perception of a “‘gap’ between legal education and the needs of the profession,” law schools made a “major commitment of resources . . . to the development of skills training programs.”[4]

Now, two decades after the issuance of the MacCrate Report, there is once again a public perception of a problematic gap between legal education and legal practice. In the past couple of years, articles have appeared in various media sources, criticizing law schools for their alleged failure to do enough to prepare students for legal practice, and reporting law firms’ complaints about the quality of legal education.[5]

As was the case in the pre-MacCrate era, the criticisms of legal education are based mostly on anecdote rather than empirical research and often overlook or give short shrift to the many important ways in which the academy actually does prepare students for legal practice. Moreover, these criticisms often fail to bring to bear the crucial, systemic perspective that the MacCrate Report presented: that the processes of education and training of new members of the legal profession are best viewed as a “continuum that starts before law school, reaches its most formative and intensive stage during the law school experience, and continues throughout a lawyer’s professional career.”[6]

This Report attempts to present a more nuanced view of the current state of the professional educational continuum and the challenges currently facing the academy, bar, and judiciary. The Report begins by briefly reviewing the MacCrate Report’s vision, content, and impact. The Report then examines the current state of the professional educational continuum and the challenges that loom.

[2] Id. at 4.

[3] Id.

[4] Id. at 6.

[5] See, e.g., David Segal, What They Don’t Teach Law Students: Lawyering, N.Y. Times, Nov. 20, 2011, at 1. See also, e.g., Michele Goodwin, Law Schools’ Failure to Prepare Students ... It’s Complicated, Chronicle of Higher Education,
Dec. 13, 2011 (describing “[r]ecent reports in The New York Times, Washington Post, and other national media” of law firms’ “claim[s] that law students are not prepared to perform basic tasks such as drafting contracts, negotiating mergers, and other key features of law practice”).

Special Committee on the Professional Education Continuum

Dean Mary Lu Bilek
Diane Camper
Dean Roger J. Dennis
Associate Dean Robert D. Dinerstein
Professor Bryant G. Garth
Professor Laura N. Gasaway
Dean Phoebe A. Haddon
Vice Dean Randy Hertz (Chair)
Rebecca S. Thiem, Esq.

March 20, 2013

Read the complete report.
Erica Moeser is 2013 Robert J. Kutak Award Recipient

Erica Moeser is the 2013 recipient of the Robert J. Kutak Award sponsored by the national Kutak Rock law firm and the ABA Section of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar. Ms. Moeser has led the NCBE since 1994. She is a former chair of the Section’s Council and has served as a law school site evaluator, as a member of the Section’s Accreditation and Standards Review committees, and as the co-chair of the Section’s Bar Admissions Committee.

However, Ms. Moeser’s activities on behalf of the Section only tell a small part of the story. As NCBE president, she has improved bar admissions processes nationally. Through her outstanding leadership and organizational skills, bar admissions authorities around the country look to Ms. Moeser and the NCBE for guidance in the many phases of the bar admissions process. Under her stewardship, the NCBE testing products have come to be acknowledged as the state of the art in examination products. The Multi-state Bar Examination (MBE) is now used in every state and territory except Louisiana (due to its Napoleonic Code tradition). The MBE is the anchor for bar examinations across the country and exceeds the reliability gold standard of .90.

The Uniform Bar Examination has been officially adopted in 13 states and it is likely to be adopted by more jurisdictions in the coming years.

Before joining NCBE, Ms. Moeser worked as the director of the Board of Bar Examiners of the Supreme Court of Wisconsin for 17 years. Ms. Moeser holds a B.A. from Tulane University, an M.S. from the University of Wisconsin, and a J.D. from the University of Wisconsin. She was admitted to practice law in Wisconsin in January 1975. Ms. Moeser holds honorary degrees from three law school and has taught professional responsibility as an adjunct at the University of Wisconsin Law School.

In making the announcement, Gregory Murphy, chair of the Kutak Award Committee, noted “Erica came from very humble beginnings and overcame much. She is a self-made woman. Her accomplishments are due to her intelligence, energy, diligence, and gregarious character.”

Robert J. Kutak was a founding partner of the national law firm of Kutak Rock LLP. Mr. Kutak’s sudden death from a heart attack in 1983 cut short a remarkable career characterized by a strong dedication to public service, to the improvement of justice, to legal education and training, to prison reform and to the visual arts. Mr. Kutak held leadership roles in a variety of professional projects of the American Bar Association, including membership on the Council of the Section of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar, and chair of the Section on Individual Rights. At the time of his death, he had just concluded five years as chair of the ABA Commission on Evaluation of Professional Standards, the body that produced the monumental new set of rules for the professional conduct of members of the American Bar.

The ABA Section of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar and Kutak Rock established the Robert J. Kutak Award in 1984. The award is given annually to an individual who has contributed significantly toward increased cooperation between legal education, the practicing bar, and the judiciary. Most recipients have been members of the Section and active participants in its work.

Erica Moeser will be honored at a special reception on Friday, August 9, 6:30 to 8:00 p.m., at the Hotel Nikko in San Francisco during the ABA Annual meeting.
Council Grants Provisional Approval to Belmont University College of Law

At its June 2013 meeting, the Section Council granted provisional approval to Belmont University College of Law, effective June 8, 2013. Located in Nashville, Tennessee, the college of law is housed in the Randall and Sadie Baskin Center on the campus of Belmont University, a private, religiously affiliated school. The law school’s inaugural class began in the fall of 2011. It offers a full-time program that currently enrolls 224 students. Dean Jeffrey Kinster was previously dean of Appalachian School of Law and a professor at Elon University School of Law.

Under Standard 102 (Provisional Approval) of the ABA Standards and Rules for Approval of Law Schools, “a student at a provisionally approved law school and an individual who graduates while the school is provisionally approved are entitled to the same recognition given to students and graduates of fully approved law schools.” (Interpretation 102-4)
Comments Solicited on Proposed Changes to Employment Questionnaire Deadlines

The Data Policy and Collection Committee (DPCC) has recommended to the Council of the Section of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar that the Employment Questionnaire (EQ) employment status determination date be changed from February 15 to March 15 and that the EQ submission deadline be moved from March 15 to April 7. A memo from the DPCC chair, Leonard Strickman, explaining the Committee’s recommendation is below.

The Council solicits and encourages written comments on the DPCC’s recommendation, which must be submitted to LEAP-DPCC@americanbar.org.

All comments will be published on the DPCC page of the Section’s website. Comments should be submitted no later than July 18, 2013.

The Council will consider the DPCC’s recommendation at its meeting on August 9, 2013.

TO: COUNCIL OF THE SECTION OF LEGAL EDUCATION AND ADMISSIONS TO THE BAR

FROM: LEN STRICKMAN, CHAIR, DATA POLICY AND COLLECTION COMMITTEE

RE: PROPOSED CHANGES IN DATES FOR EMPLOYMENT STATUS DETERMINATION AND LAW SCHOOL REPORTING OF SAME IN ANNUAL EMPLOYMENT QUESTIONNAIRE DATA COLLECTION

DATE: JUNE 19, 2013 (a modestly revised version of a memo sent to the Council on June 3, 2013)

In the past, legal employment decisions, even for jobs requiring bar passage, were often made before law graduates’ bar examination results were known to employers. The categories of employers most inclined to make early hiring decisions were large law firms and judges with clerkships available. Those markets have changed in the past decade; large law firms are hiring far fewer entry level law graduates, and there is a distinct tendency of judges, at least at the federal level, to seek clerks with some post-law school experience in the profession. As these numbers have shrunk, the importance of bar examination results has grown, meaning that the timing of the release of bar results and consequent bar admission has become more important than ever in the employment market.

The current date of employment status for the purposes of the Employment Questionnaire required of each law school by the Standards is February 15 of the year following graduation. This works a particular hardship on law schools located in states with late bar examination results and bar admission, and law schools whose students seek in substantial numbers employment in those states. The states having the most exam takers tend to be the latest to report results and the latest to process candidates for admission. California and New York, which together account for more than 17% of accredited law schools and the largest numbers of bar exam takers, are among the states whose bar admission dates often come in December or in the year following the July bar examination.

A preliminary study undertaken by Professor Jerry Organ, a member of our Committee, reported that for graduates in the years 2011 and 2012, 18 of the bottom 37 schools in reported employment rates for the “Bar Passage Required, JD Advantage and Other Professional” categories were located in New York and California. (A more recent, more comprehensive analysis of the data by Professor Organ appears on the DPCC web page of the Section website). Many of these law schools are broadly considered to be highly competitive schools nationally. Of course, this isolated data point may reflect employment market factors not related to bar admission, but simple logic and the experience of Committee members suggests that there is some impact on the date of the reporting of bar examination results and consequent bar admission on the timing of employment commitments to law school graduates.

Some schools sought a reporting date one year from graduation. The Data Policy and Collection Committee decided to reject this request because that length of delay would undermine the currency of data available to prospective law students. Still, the cause is a just one. Hence, the Committee recommends to the Council that in order to achieve some salutary remediation of the current penalty on law schools who suffer from late bar results, the employment status determination date be moved from February 15 to March 15 each year, and that the law school Employment Questionnaire submission date be moved from March 15 to April 7. We should keep in mind that new technologies have enabled us to accelerate the posting of employment data by more than one year since the new comprehensive Employment Questionnaire was instituted. A delay of 24 days in the posting of survey data is, we believe, a cost that is worth the benefit of a more level playing field. That more level playing field will give law school applicants and other interested persons a more accurate picture of the comparative performance of different law schools in the successful placement of their graduates.
2013–2014 Council Slate Announced

The Nominating Committee, chaired by the Honorable Christine Durham, presented the following slate to the Council. The election of Council officers and members will take place at the Section’s annual business meeting on Saturday, August 10, 10:15-11:15 a.m. at the Hotel Nikko in San Francisco.

Nominated for a one-year term

Chair: (automatic under the Bylaws)
The Honorable Solomon Oliver Jr.
Chief Judge, U.S. District Court, Northern District of Ohio
Judge Oliver was appointed to the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Ohio by President Bill Clinton in 1994 and became Chief Judge in 2010. Judge Oliver holds a B.A. from the College of Wooster, an M.A. in political science from Case Western Reserve University, and a J.D. from New York University School of Law. From 1975 to 1976, Judge Oliver was a law clerk for the late Judge William H. Hastie of the Third Circuit Court of Appeals. Judge Oliver was an assistant U.S. attorney in the U.S. Attorney’s Office for the Northern District of Ohio, where he served as Chief of the Civil Division and Chief of Appellate Litigation. From 1982 to 1994, he was a professor at Cleveland State University’s Cleveland-Marshall College of Law and served as associate dean from 1991 to 1994.

He is the recipient of the Distinguished Alumni Award from the College of Wooster, the Distinguished Alumni Award from the New York University Black, Latino, Asian Pacific American Law Alumni Association, and an honorary doctor of laws degree from the University of Akron. He is a member of the American Law Institute, the American Bar Foundation and the board of trustees of the College of Wooster. Judge Oliver has served on the Judicial Conference of the United States, and is currently a member of its Civil Rules Advisory Committee. He was a member of the Section’s Council from 1996 to 2005 and has also served on the Accreditation Committee, the Standards Review Committee, and numerous site visit teams. Judge Oliver previously served as co-chair of the ABA Litigation Section’s Minority Trial Lawyer Committee.

Chair-Elect:
Joan S. Howland
Associate Dean & Professor
University of Minnesota Law School
Joan Howland is the Roger Noreen Professor of Law and Associate Dean for Information and Technology at the University of Minnesota Law School. Professor Howland teaches American Indian legal history at the law school and law and business in the Executive MBA program at the Carlson School of Management at the University of Minnesota. Her scholarship focuses on American Indian law and culture, information technologies, business management, thoroughbred horseracing and equine law generally, legal research methodologies, and law librarianship. She served on the Accreditation Committee from 2001 to 2006 and has served on the Council since 2006. Professor Howland was a member of the Section’s Law Libraries Committee from 1992 through 1994 and co-chaired that committee from 1994 through 1996.

Professor Howland is active in the Association of American Law Schools and is the immediate past chair of the Committee on Law Libraries and Technology. She is also active in the American Association of Law Libraries, the American Indian Library Association, and the American Library Association. She is a member of the American Law Institute. In 2003, she received the AALL Spirit of Law Librarianship award for her volunteer work with American Indian populations and with indigenous communities in South America. In addition to a J.D., Professor Howland earned master’s degrees in history, library science, and business administration. Prior to joining the faculty at Minnesota, she held administrative positions in the law libraries at U.C. Berkeley, Harvard, and Stanford.

Vice Chair
The Honorable Rebecca White Berch
Chief Justice
Supreme Court of Arizona
Rebecca White Berch was appointed to the Arizona Supreme Court in March 2002 and became its 23rd chief justice in 2009. Before her appointment to the Supreme Court, she served the state of Arizona as solicitor general, chief deputy attorney general, and as a court of appeals judge. Following graduation from the Arizona State University (ASU) College... of Law in 1979, Justice Berch practiced law in Phoenix. In 1986, she joined the faculty at the ASU law school as director of the legal writing program and academic support programs.

For the Section, she has served on the Bar Admissions Committee, including two years at its chair. Before joining the Arizona Supreme Court, Justice Berch served on the Arizona Bar Examinations Committee. She currently serves on the board of trustees of the National Conference of Bar Examiners and on the board of directors of the Conference of Chief Justices. In addition to her J.D. degree, Justice Berch holds a master’s degree in English. She has published 11 law review articles, and the law school textbook she co-authored, Introduction to Legal Method and Process, is in its fifth edition and is used in law schools throughout the nation. Justice Berch is a strong proponent of pro bono work; the Pro Bono Suite at ASU’s Sandra Day O’Connor College of Law is named in her honor.

Nominated for election to a three-year term:

Roger Dennis
Dean & Professor
Drexel University Earle Mack School of Law
Roger Dennis is the founding dean of the Earle Mack School of Law at Drexel University in Philadelphia. He was formerly the provost at Rutgers University-Camden as well as the dean at the Rutgers-Camden School of Law. He clerked for Judge Richard McLaren of the U.S. District Court in Chicago before working in the Antitrust Division of the U.S. Department of Justice and practicing at Skadden Arps in Washington, D.C. Dean Dennis has published widely with a particular focus on the application of modern financial theory to corporate law, strategic corporate behavior, and securities regulation. His teaching currently focuses on the federal regulation of the purchase and sale of securities, the raising of capital, and the operation of the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) in light of changing economic and political environments.

Dean Dennis is a member of the board of the United Way of Greater Philadelphia and Southern New Jersey and past chair of the board of the United Way of Camden County. He was selected for membership on the national United Way Membership Accountability Committee. He also serves as a trustee of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society and on the advisory board of the Public Interest Law Center of Philadelphia. He earned a B.S. in speech from Northwestern University and is a magna cum laude graduate of Northwestern University School of Law where he was selected for the Order of the Coif.

Dean Dennis has held an elected seat in the American Law Institute since 1991 and has served in leadership positions on numerous committees of the Section of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar as well as the Association of American Law Schools.

Nominated for re-election to a three-year term

Jane H. Aiken
Associate Dean for Clinical Programs, Public Interest & Community Service & Professor
Georgetown University Law Center
Jane Aiken is professor of law at Georgetown University Law Center and director of the Community Justice Project. Each student in the clinic represents claimants in unemployment hearings and works collaboratively on projects that address justice issues that are policy based, require extraordinary remedies or international and comparative law. Over the last three years, she has also taught evidence, torts, and motherhood and criminality. In 2010, she received Georgetown’s Frank F. Flegal Award for outstanding teaching and in 2013 she was named Faculty Member of the Year. In her 26 years of teaching, she has directed clinics in which students act as lawyers under supervision in cases involving a wide array of legal issues including domestic violence against women and children, HIV, homelessness, and international human rights.

Professor Aiken held the William M. Van Cleve Chair at Washington University School of Law in St. Louis where she was on the faculty from 1997 to 2007. She was a Carnegie Scholar for Teaching and Learning and a Fulbright Scholar in Nepal. She writes in the area of evidence, women’s rights and clinical pedagogy. She is a member of the American Law Institute and a fellow with the American Bar Foundation. She was a member of the AALS Membership Review Committee from 2009 to 2011. She is the past co-chair of the Women in Criminal Justice subcommittee of the ABA’s Criminal Justice Section and previously served on the Section of Legal Education’s Special Committee on the Professional Education Continuum. Professor Aiken holds a B.A. from Hollins College and a J.D. from New York University School of Law where she was a Root-Tilden Scholar. Professor Aiken also received an LL.M. from Georgetown Law Center as a fellow in the Center for Applied Legal Studies.

Brigadier General Leo A. Brooks (retired)
Fort Belvoir, Virginia
Leo Brooks retired in January 1984 from the United States Army, having reached the grade of major general. He has had an abundance of command and management experience in large organizations. Among them was commander of an electronics construction and rebuild plant in Sacramento, California, which employed over 4,000 civilians. In 1976, he left the Sacramento assignment to command the 9,000 soldiers who performed the supply, maintenance, engineering, automation, and communications for the Third Armored Corps in Fort Hood, Texas. Upon promotion to brigadier general, he was selected to head the worldwide food service activities of the Army, which included 1,000 dining facilities and the 178 commissary store system, with 10,000 civilian employees throughout the United States and twelve foreign countries. His final military assignment as a major general was another worldwide operation, the Defense Personnel Support Center in Philadelphia. There, he was charged with the buying and managing of all the food, clothing, and medical supplies and equipment for all U.S. military services.

Upon his retirement from the Army, General Brooks became the managing director of the City of Philadelphia, where he headed the activities of the city’s 30,000 employees in the ten service departments, including fire and police. General Brooks holds a bachelor of science degree from Virginia State University and a master of science in financial management from George Washington University. He is also a graduate of the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and the National War College in Washington, D.C.

Paulette Brown
Partner and Chief Diversity Officer
Edwards Wildman Palmer LLP
Paulette Brown is a partner at an international AmLaw 100 law firm and her practice is focused on all facets of labor and employment, including collective and class actions, successfully defending cases involving discrimination on the basis of age, sex, marital status, sexual harassment, disability, race, and national origin. Prior to joining Edwards Wildman Palmer, Ms. Brown was a partner at Duane Morris and at Brown & Childress, served as corporate counsel to several Fortune 500 companies, and served as a municipal court judge. Ms. Brown is a member of the Employment AAA Panel, and serves as first vice chair of the Labor and Employment Section of the New Jersey State Bar Association. From 1993 to 1994, she was president of the National Bar Association and has held a number of other leadership positions in the organization. From 1991 to 1993, Ms. Brown was Master of the C. Willard Heckel Inn of Court. Ms. Brown has served on both the ABA Board of Governors and the House of Delegates. She has also been active in the ABA Governance Commission, the Section of Litigation, the Section of Labor and Employment, the Commission on Women in the Profession, the Fund for Justice Education, and was chair of the Council on Racial and Ethnic Justice. Ms. Brown has been nominated and is a candidate for the office of ABA President-Elect.

After earning a bachelor’s degree from Howard University, Ms. Brown earned a J.D. from Seton Hall University School of Law. She has been recognized by the New Jersey Law Journal as one of the prominent women and minority attorneys in the state of New Jersey, named by the National Law Journal as one of the “50 Most Influential Minority Attorneys in the United States,” and received the Thurgood Marshall College Fund’s Award of Excellence. In 2011, Ms. Brown received the ABA’s Spirit of Excellence Award and the Margaret Brent Women Lawyers of Achievement Award.

Edwin J. Butterfoss
Professor
Hamline University Law School
Ed Butterfoss joined Hamline University Law School in 1983. He served as associate dean for academic affairs from 1995 to 1998 and from 2010 to 2012, and as dean of the law school from 1998 to 2003. He joined the Hamline faculty from the law firm of Pepper, Hamilton and Scheetz, where he practiced in the areas of product liability, employment discrimination, and commercial law. He also handled pro bono cases involving prisoners’ rights and was a volunteer attorney for the Support Center for Child Advocacy.

At Hamline, Professor Butterfoss teaches contracts, criminal law, and criminal procedure. He has published numerous articles in the area of criminal procedure, particularly focusing on Fourth Amendment search and seizure issues. He was a founding board member of the Minnesota Innocence Project and served for many years on the board of the ACLU of Minnesota.

Professor Butterfoss has served as a member of the Accreditation Committee, which he chaired for three years, the Standards Review Committee, and the Foreign Programs Committee. He graduated magna cum laude from Miami University of Ohio with a bachelor’s degree in accounting and magna cum laude with a J.D. from Georgetown University Law Center where he was on the editorial board and case and note editor for the Georgetown Law Journal.

Michael J. Davis
Professor
University of Kansas School of Law
Michael Davis is the Centennial Teaching Professor of Law at the University of Kansas School of Law (KU). Professor Davis joined the KU law faculty in 1971 and teaches property, government regulation of land development, and religion and the state. In 1991, he received the Immel Award for Teaching Excellence. In addition to his faculty duties, Professor Davis served as the university’s general counsel for six years, dean of the law school from 1980 to 1989 and as interim dean from 2005 to 2006. He was also of counsel to the law firm of Stinson Morrison Hecker from 1989 to 2009.

Before joining the law school, Professor Davis was an associate at Arent, Fox, Kintner, Plotkin & Kahn, a Reginald Heber Smith Fellow at the Legal Aid Society of Greater Kansas City, and a legislative assistant to U.S. Representative Louis Stokes. Professor Davis graduated with honors from Kansas State University and earned a J.D. from the University of Michigan Law School where he was the editor of the Law Review. He has served as chair of the Section’s Accreditation Committee and Standards Review Committee, and currently serves on the Finance and Governance committees.
Member News

Erika Robinson Receives University of South Carolina Clinic Award

Erika Robinson, the ABA Law Student Division member of the Section’s Council for the past two years, received the University of South Carolina School of Law’s Clinical Program Professionalism Award. It is presented annually by the law school’s Nelson Mullins Riley & Scarborough Center on Professionalism to the student who demonstrates the highest commitment to the standards of professionalism of the South Carolina Bar through representation of clients in a law school clinical course. Ms. Robinson was recognized for her work in the Consumer Bankruptcy Clinic. A May 2013 graduate of the law school, she will become an associate at the law firm of Gregory, Doyle, Calhoun & Rogers in Marietta, Georgia, this August.

Student Lawyer Seeks Students to Profile for “Head of Class”

Student Lawyer, the magazine of the ABA’s Law Student Division (LSD) is seeking nominations for its monthly “Head of the Class” column that profiles an individual law student with an intriguing life experience. Students who are active in the community are especially desired. In past issues, the column has featured students who:

- teach inner-city kids how to grow and cook their own food;
- fostered several children while attending law school; and
- was elected to a state legislature during law school.

An example can be found on the LSD website at Head of the Class.

To nominate a student at your law school, please send a short description of the student, including his/her name, contact information, and what makes the student an interesting candidate to spotlight, to studentlawyer@americanbar.org
Join Us at the ABA Annual Meeting in San Francisco

Section Headquarters Hotel
Hotel Nikko
222 Mason Street
San Francisco, California 94102
415.394.1111

Section Schedule

Thursday, August 8
Chair’s Dinner
6:30-9:30 p.m.
By invitation

Friday, August 9
Council Meeting
Executive & Open Sessions
8:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
Hotel Nikko
Nikko Ballroom, 3rd Floor

Kutak Award Reception
6:30-8:00 p.m.
Hotel Nikko
Golden Gate, 25th Floor
2013 Recipient:
Erica Moeser, president & CEO of the National Conference of Bar Examiners

Saturday, August 10
Deans Breakfast
8:00-10:00 a.m.
Hotel Nikko
Golden Gate, 25th Floor

Registration Required

Annual Section Business Meeting
10:15-11:15 a.m.
Hotel Nikko
Nikko Ballroom, 3rd Floor

2013 Annual Meeting Registration and Housing