JURISDICTION

The Tenth Circuit denied Petitioner's timely petition for rehearing en banc on February 5, 2003. (Pet. App. 68-69). The Petition for a Writ of Certiorari was filed on May 2, 2003, and was granted on October 14, 2003. The jurisdiction of this Court is invoked under 28 U.S.C. § 1254(1).

CONSTITUTIONAL AND STATUTORY PROVISIONS INVOLVED

The First Amendment of the United States Constitution provides in relevant part that "Congress shall make no law . . . abridging the freedom of speech. . . ."

Article III of the Colorado Constitution, entitled "Distribution of Powers," provides:

The powers of the government of this state are divided into three distinct departments,—the legislative, executive and judicial; and no person or collection of persons charged with the exercise of powers properly belonging to one of these departments shall exercise any power properly belonging to either of the others, except as in this constitution expressly directed or permitted.

42 U.S.C. § 1983 is reproduced at Br. App. 48a; Section 13-51-105, Colo.Rev.Stat. (2003) is reproduced at Br. App. 48a.

Littleton's Adult Entertainment Establishment ordinance ("the Ordinance")² is reprinted in its current form in the appendix to this brief at Br. App. 12a-42a. The Ordinance has been amended three times since it was enacted in 1993. The Ordinance in its original form is contained in the petition appendix at pages Pet. App. 75-111. The Ordinance was amended on June 19, 2001, and this amendment is contained in the petition appendix at pages Pet. App. 112-116.

Littleton calls the Court's attention to two other amendments which have been made to the Ordinance which, while relevant to the issues in the case at bar, do not affect the question on which this Court granted certiorari. See Diffenderfer v. Central Baptist Church of Miami, Fla., Inc., 404 U.S. 412, 414 (1972) (per curiam) (this Court will "review the judgment . . . in light of [the] law as it now stands, not as it stood when the judgment below was entered") (citing Hall v. Beals, 396 U.S. 45, 48 (1969)); see also Fusari v. Steinberg, 419 U.S. 379, 387 n.12 (1975) (noting duty of counsel to inform the Court of amendments to the subject legislation after grant of certiorari).

The Tenth Circuit invalidated and severed, § 3-14-5(A) (Pet. App. 91) and LCC § 3-14-5(B)(10) (Pet. App. 93-94), which dealt with photographing and fingerprinting of license applicants and zoning certification. Littleton thereafter amended these provisions and LCC § 3-14-7 on June 3, 2003, and these amendments are at Br. App. 1a-4a. The Ordinance was amended most recently on November 18, 2003, and these amendments are at Br. App. 5a-11a. In relevant part, the amendments to LCC §§ 3-14-5(A)(B), 3-14-7 and 3-14-8 shorten even further the limited time periods within which city officials must act. LCC § 3-14-5(B) now requires the applicant to submit photographs and fingerprints with the application, thereby eliminating City involvement and any possible delay in the process. (Br. App. 23a-26a). LCC § 3-14-7 now requires that within five business days of the filing of an application, the zoning official shall issue a report confirming adherence to the locational requirements. Upon any failure to timely issue said report, the city clerk shall presume the proposed location is proper. (Br. App. 27a-28a). Additionally, if “any city official or department fails to render a timely decision pursuant to the terms of the ordinance, then said official or department shall be deemed to have approved or consented to the issuance of the requested license.” LCC § 3-14-8(C) (Br. App. 30a).

STATEMENT

The Ordinance's Background and Purpose

The City of Littleton is a Colorado home-rule municipal corporation. The Ordinance, as originally passed in 1993, sets forth zoning and licensing requirements with regard to adult businesses. (Pet. App. 75-111). Before passing the Ordinance, the City Council considered evidence of the adverse secondary impacts of adult businesses, including increased crime, decreased property values, and urban blight. (Pet. App. 75-79, 82). As detailed in the legislative history and as memorialized in the preamble, the purpose and intent of the Ordinance is to prevent the deleterious secondary effects of adult businesses in the City. (Pet. App. 75-79, 82). On its face, as well as in its operation and effect, the Ordinance does not impose any limitations on the content of communicative materials or restrict adult access to protected speech. Moreover, the Ordinance targets secondary effects, not sexually explicit speech as such, by regulating adult businesses regardless of whether they feature protected expression.³

The first and second readings of the Ordinance were open to the public and held before the Littleton City Council on July 20, 1993, and on August 13, 1993, respectively. (R. 74). Various documents were disseminated to council members including: (1) a legal analysis of relevant case law; (2) specific proposals regarding sections of the Ordinance; (3) Littleton's zoning maps, which demarcated residential, business and industrial zones; (4) the proposed Ordinance; and (5) summaries of land-use studies documenting the secondary effects of adult uses. (R. 74, 117-148, 176). Littleton's assistant city attorney also discussed the right of adult businesses to open and operate in the City, balanced with the City's substantial interests in regulating the time, place and manner of such operations to prevent secondary effects. (R. 143-148). In an open forum, Littleton's City Council analyzed the Ordinance's various provisions, as well as the documentation which detailed the adverse secondary impacts associated with adult businesses. Several individuals spoke before the City Council. (R. 149-175). Following these hearings, Council passed the Ordinance.

As noted above, in passing the Ordinance, Littleton relied upon the negative impact that other municipalities experienced related to adult businesses. LCC § 3-14-1 (Pet. App. 75-79, 82). To prevent such secondary effects, Littleton's Ordinance requires adult businesses to obtain a license, LCC § 3-14-4, and comply with specified time, place, and manner regulations. (Br. App. 23a). The Ordinance defines a variety of establishments specializing in sexually explicit fare including adult bookstores, adult cabarets and "sexual encounter centers." LCC § 3-14-2 (Br. App. 12a-20a).

The Ordinance sets forth eight specific, non-discretionary grounds upon which a license can be denied. LCC § 3-14-8(A) (Br. App. 28a-29a).⁴ These standards foreclose any possibility that a licensing official's subjective views or personal opinions would affect any licensing decision. None of the grounds for denying a license in Littleton has anything to do with what the speaker might say.

Although the administrative time frames are not in dispute, LCC § 3-14-8(B) (Br. App. 29a-30a) sets forth brief time periods for the administrative process and ensures expeditious and mandatory judicial review in state court

⁴ LCC § 3-14-8(A): The application of any applicant shall be approved or denied by the city clerk within fourteen (14) days of the date the application is filed with the city clerk. The city clerk shall deny a license if: (1) The applicant is under the age of eighteen (18) years; (2) The applicant has made a false statement upon the application or has given false information in connection with an application; (3) The applicant or any holder of any class of stock, or a director, officer, partner or principal of the applicant has had an adult business license revoked or suspended anywhere within the state within one year prior to the application; (4) The applicant has operated an adult business which has [been] determined to be a public nuisance under state law or this code within one year prior to the application; (5) A corporate applicant is not in good standing or authorized to do business in the state; or (6) The applicant is overdue in the payment to the city of taxes, fees, fines, or penalties assessed against him/her or imposed against him/her in relation to an adult business; (7) The applicant has not obtained the required sales tax license; (8) The applicant has been convicted of a specified criminal act within the five year period prior to the date the application is filed with the City Clerk. (Br. App. 28a-29a).

Specified criminal acts are defined in the Ordinance in LCC § 3-14-2 as “[s]exual crimes against children, sexual abuse, rape or crimes connected with another adult business, including distribution of obscenity, prostitution, or pandering.” (Br. App. 19a).

pursuant to Colo.R.Civ.P. 106(a)(4) (Br. App. 43a-47a).⁵ The Ordinance provides for a maximum of 40 days from the time an application is submitted until an action pursuant to Colo.R.Civ.P. 106(a)(4) can be commenced. LCC § 3-14-8(B)(1-3) (Br. App. 29a-30a). An application shall be approved or denied within fourteen days of the date the application is filed with the city clerk. LCC § 3-14-8(A) (Br. App. 28a-29a). In the event of a denial, written findings of fact stating the basis for the denial shall be sent first class to the address shown on the application. LCC § 3-14-8(B) (Br. App. 29a). The applicant shall have the right to a hearing before the city manager, provided the request is made within ten days. LCC § 3-14-8(B) (Br. App. 29a). The hearing shall be held within fourteen days, and allows for statements and other evidence from enforcement officers, the applicant or other parties in interest and shall be held within fourteen days. LCC § 3-14-8(B) (Br. App. 29a). The city manager must issue an order based upon findings of fact within two days. LCC § 3-14-8(B)(2) (Br. App. 29a-30a).

Under Colo.R.Civ.P. 106(a)(4), any denial of a license which is affirmed by Littleton's city manager may be immediately appealed to state district court. The rule provides for mandatory review in the nature of certiorari. Pursuant to Colo.R.Civ.P. 106(a)(4)(VIII), the district court can accelerate the action if the court determines that acceleration is appropriate. Relief is available on Sundays and holidays. The court may also provide injunctive relief under Colo.R.Civ.P. 106(a)(4)(V) and Colo.R.Civ.P. 65. Moreover, the parties may challenge the constitutionality of ordinances under Colo.R.Civ.P. 106(a)(4). Tri-State Generation and Transmission Co. v. City of Thornton, 647 P.2d 670, 676 n.7 (Colo. 1982).

Through its narrowly tailored provisions, the Ordinance seeks to target the adverse secondary effects. For example, adult businesses are prohibited from allowing minors on the premises. The Ordinance also contains minimum lighting and interior configuration requirements designed to prevent sexual activities on the premises. LCC §§ 3-14-15, 3-14-16, and 3-14-17 (Br. App. 37a-41a).

Littleton's Ordinance also targets the negative secondary effects which spawn from adult businesses through its locational requirements. Littleton is divided primarily into three zoning categories—residential, business (including, in part, the B-2 zone) and industrial (including I-1 and I-2 zones).⁶ Subject to certain distance requirements between churches, schools or childcare facilities, parks and correctional facilities, adult businesses are afforded a full opportunity to operate in Littleton's I-1 and I-2 zoned districts. LCC § 3-14-3 (Br. App. 21a-22a).

The District Court and Tenth Circuit Proceedings

In August 1999, ZJ's opened an adult business⁷ in a B-2 zoned district, which is not a zone district allowing for adult entertainment establishments, and has continued to operate since that time. Littleton took no action to prevent ZJ's opening. Upon opening, without applying for or having been denied an adult business license, ZJ's brought an action under 42 U.S.C. § 1983, challenging Littleton's Ordinance as unconstitutional on several theories, including void for vagueness, overbreadth, and prior restraint. ZJ's sought declaratory and injunctive relief, damages and attorneys' fees. (R. 8-28).

Littleton filed its motion for summary judgment (R. 70-115) and ZJ's filed its cross-motion for summary judgment. (R. 373-422). ZJ's primarily argued that it was not an adult business, that there were not enough I-1 and I-2 zoned sites in Littleton for adult businesses, and that the licensing provisions were an unconstitutional prior restraint. (R. 373-422).

The lower courts flatly rejected ZJ's contention that it is not an "adult business."⁸ The District Court specifically noted that ZJ's restricts access to its store to adults and accordingly found that ZJ's considered itself an adult business. (Pet. App. 51). Moreover, it was undisputed that ZJ's sells a plethora of adult magazines, videos and other merchandise which vividly display anuses, vaginas, penises and closeups of sexual activities such as penial/vaginal contact, penial/anal contact, penial/mouth contact and ejaculation. (R. 213-284, 375). A review of a videotape tour of ZJ's, as well as floor plans, schematic drawings, affidavits and reports from city personnel, a detailed financial analysis of sales, products, and income derived from adult products by a certified public accountant, inventory and layout photographs, and ZJ's inventory lists made clear to the court the pervasively sexual nature of ZJ's business. (Pet. App. 51-52) (R. 213-372, 581 and Supplemental Appendix Vol II). The court found that ZJ's argument that it was not an adult business was "frivolous at best" and the court held that to define ZJ's as "anything (items) which are characterized by the depiction or description of 'specified sexual activities' or 'specified anatomical areas' . . ." (Br. App. 13a-14a) (Pet. App. 83).

⁷ ZJ's is an "adult bookstore, adult novelty store or adult video store" pursuant to LCC § 3-14-2. (Br. App. 13a-14a) (Pet. App. 83).

⁸ As noted above, ZJ's falls under Littleton's definition of "adult bookstore, adult novelty store, or adult video store" in LCC § 3-14-2, which derives from the Detroit definition of "adult book store" detailed in Young v. American Mini-Theatres, Inc., 427 U.S. 50, 54 n.5 (1976), and reads as follows: "A commercial establishment which (a) devotes a significant or substantial portion of its stock-in-trade or interior floor space to; (b) receives a significant or substantial portion of its revenues from; or (c) devotes a significant or substantial portion of its advertising expenditures to the promotion of: the sale, rental or viewing of . . .

Specified anatomical areas are defined as: "(A) Less than completely and opaquely covered human genitals, pubic region, buttocks, anus, or female breasts below a point immediately above the top of the areolae; or (B) Human male genitals in a discernibly turgid state, even if completely and opaquely covered." (Br. App. 19a) (Pet. App. 87-88).

Specified sexual activities are defined as: "(A) The fondling or other intentional touching of human genitals, pubic region, buttocks, anus, or female breasts; (B) Sex acts, normal or perverted, actual or simulated, including intercourse, oral copulation, or sodomy; (C) Masturbation, actual or simulated; or (D) Human genitals in a state of sexual stimulation, arousal or tumescence; (E) Excretory functions as part of or in connection with any of the activities set forth in subsections (A) through (D) of this definition." (Br. App. 19a-20a) (Pet. App. 88).

other than an adult entertainment establishment would be absurd and totally devoid of any basis on the record.” (Pet. App. 51-52).⁹ The court was sufficiently “disturbed by the frivolous and incredulous argument” made by ZJ’s that it cautioned ZJ’s counsel concerning Fed.R.Civ.P. 11. (Pet. App. 55 n.2).

Following Young v. American Mini Theatres, Inc., 427 U.S. 50 (1976), and City of Renton v. Playtime Theaters, Inc., 475 U.S. 41 (1986), the court found that Littleton’s Ordinance “is narrowly tailored to serve a significant governmental interest. . . .” (Pet. App. 60). Rejecting ZJ’s contention that there are not enough available sites, the court found that there is sufficient land available for adult uses, i.e., that the Ordinance “leaves open ample alternative channels of communication.” (Pet. App. 60-63).

In granting Littleton’s motion for summary judgment, the District Court discussed the rationale of this Court’s prior restraint cases and concluded that the Ordinance is not a prior restraint of protected speech. The court specifically held that the Ordinance does not place unbridled discretion in the hands of Littleton officials to either approve or deny a license, that it requires a licensing decision in a brief, specified period of time, and that it, when combined with Colo.R.Civ.P. 106, provides adequate procedural safeguards, including an avenue for prompt judicial review. (Pet. App. 63-65). The court concluded that ZJ's did not have standing to challenge the constitutionality of the Ordinance under the void for vagueness doctrine, but that in any event, Littleton's Ordinance was not void for vagueness or overbroad. Ultimately the court dismissed all of ZJ's claims. (Pet. App. 40-67).

ZJ's appealed the District Court's Order in its entirety to the Tenth Circuit. The Tenth Circuit affirmed in part and reversed in part. (Pet. App. 1-39). Having reviewed the District Court record, including the videotape of the interior of ZJ's business, the Tenth Circuit concluded that ZJ's was "unquestionably" an adult business. (Pet. App. 12 n.6). Drawing all inferences in favor of ZJ's, the Tenth Circuit agreed with the District Court that Littleton, whose real estate expert identified more than twenty sites where ZJ's could legally operate, provided sufficient land zoned for adult businesses. (Pet. App. 33-38). The Tenth Circuit also concluded: ZJ's lacked standing to challenge the Ordinance's civil disability provisions, as well as the Ordinance's revocation and suspension provisions (Pet. App. 11); the Ordinance was not void for vagueness (Pet. App. 12-14); and the Ordinance does "not involve discretion on the part of the licensing official." (Pet. App. 29 n.13).

The Tenth Circuit did find for ZJ's on two of its challenges to the licensing provisions. First, the Tenth Circuit found that, notwithstanding the 30-day deadline for licensing decisions, the failure to specify a time frame for the zoning official to issue a statement of compliance, section LCC § 3-14-5(B)(10), or for the Police Department to take an applicant’s photograph and fingerprints, section LCC § 3-14-5(A), created a risk of undue delay. (Pet. App. 22-23). These requirements were severed from the Ordinance by the Tenth Circuit and, as noted above, were subsequently amended. (Pet. App. 20-24). Second, of particular relevance here, the Tenth Circuit ruled that FW/PBS mandates that a city guarantee that a judge issue a prompt decision upon judicial review of a license denial. (Pet. App. 25-33). Because Colo.R.Civ.P. 106(a)(4) permits, but does not require, a “prompt final decision,” (Pet. App. 32), on a court challenge to a license denial, the Tenth Circuit invalidated Littleton’s judicial review provision.

Littleton then filed a petition for rehearing en banc (Pet. App. 117-132) which was denied. (Pet. App. 68-69). ZJ’s filed a petition for rehearing which was also denied.

SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT

I. The plurality opinion in FW/PBS emphasized the distinctions between censorship schemes designed to prohibit speech based on content and licensing procedures designed to implement content-neutral time, place, and manner regulations. 493 U.S. at 229. The former are presumptively invalid under the First Amendment and require prompt judicial determinations to ensure that a censor has not erred in determining “that the [expression] is unprotected.” Freedman v. Maryland, 380 U.S. 51, 59 (1965). In the latter, however, an official “does not exercise discretion by passing judgment on the content” of expression, but rather applies narrow, objective standards to further content-neutral interests, “a ministerial action that is not presumptively unconstitutional.” FW/PBS, 493 U.S. at 229; id. at 246 (White, J., joined by Rehnquist, C.J., concurring in part and dissenting in part). Thus, the FW/PBS plurality held that “[l]imitation on the time within which the licensor must issue the license as well as the availability of prompt judicial review satisfy the ‘principle that the freedoms of expression must be ringed about with adequate bulwarks.’” Id. at 230 (emphasis supplied) (citation omitted).

There is no basis to retreat from the view of the FW/PBS plurality and extend the “prompt judicial determination” requirement to encompass appeals from ministerial licensing rulings. Neither rationale of the Freedman approach is present in this case. Under Littleton’s Ordinance, the licensing official applies objective standards which do not require the judicial expertise necessary to draw “the line between legitimate and illegitimate,” or unprotected, speech. Southeastern Promotions, Ltd. v. Conrad, 420 U.S. 546, 559 (1975). Nor is self-censorship afoot. Whereas a license denial in a censorship scheme may discourage the speaker from seeking judicial review, FW/PBS recognized that such is not the case with ministerial licensing decisions where an entire business is at stake. FW/PBS, 493 U.S. at 229-230. Moreover, because Littleton’s standards are specified and clear, any error in a licensing decision would be obvious and “remedied promptly by judicial intervention.” City of Colorado Springs v. 2354 Inc., 896 P.2d 272, 284 (Colo. 1995) (detailing availability of prompt judicial review under Colo.R.Civ.P. 106(a)(4)).

ZJ’s arguments for expanding the “prompt judicial decision” requirement to this context are unavailing. First, ZJ’s newly-minted “unbridled discretion” argument—based on an unsuccessful claim that the definition of adult bookstore is vague—is waived because it was never presented in the lower courts. Sprietsma v. Mercury Marine, 537 U.S. 51, 56 n.4 (2002). Moreover, the argument is irrelevant to the prior restraint doctrine, which is concerned not with whether the Ordinance covers ZJ’s store, but with whether the city has unbridled discretion “in deciding whether or not to withhold a permit.” Shuttlesworth v. City of Birmingham, 394 U.S. 147, 150 (1969) (emphasis supplied).

ZJ’s second argument, alleging that the Ordinance is a “content-based” prior restraint, fails for the same reason: while some adult businesses are covered by the Littleton Ordinance by virtue of their specialization in sexually explicit fare, content plays no role whatsoever in the decision to grant or withhold a license. More important, ZJ’s assertion is contrary to all of the relevant decisions from this Court, which hold that adult business ordinances targeting secondary effects are to be evaluated as content-neutral under this Court’s test for time, place, and manner regulations. See, e.g., City of Renton v. Playtime Theatres, Inc., 475 U.S. 41 (1986). Littleton’s Ordinance does not control the content of any speech and is “justified without reference to the content of the regulated speech.” Id. at 48 (alteration in original) (quoting Virginia State Board of Pharmacy v. Virginia Citizens Consumer Council, Inc., 425 U.S. 748, 771 (1976)). Finally, the Court’s cases teach that targeting the secondary effects of adult businesses makes Littleton’s Ordinance narrowly tailored, not content based. City of Renton, 475 U.S. at 52 (noting that by targeting adult businesses, Renton’s ordinance avoided the overbreadth flaw identified in previous cases). Thus, Littleton’s Ordinance is more appropriately analyzed as a time, place,

The Littleton Ordinance contains narrow, objective standards “to guide the official’s decision and render it subject to effective judicial review.” Id. at 323. The eight specific grounds for license denial specified in the Ordinance, LCC § 3-14-8(A) (Br. App. 28a-29a), are relevant not to content, but to the city’s time, place, and manner regulations and “do not involve discretion on the part of the licensing official.” (Pet. App. 29 n.13). Thus, “Freedman is inapposite because the licensing scheme at issue here is not subject-matter censorship but content-neutral time, place, and manner regulation . . .” Thomas, 534 U.S. at 322. Moreover, the Ordinance contains fixed administrative time limits for the licensing decision, thus avoiding the “undue delay” problem found in the Dallas ordinance in FW/PBS. Under LCC § 3-14-8, the City will complete its review of an application, both as an initial matter and on administrative appeal, within 40 days. Immediately thereafter, an aggrieved applicant may promptly commence judicial proceedings pursuant to Colo.R.Civ.P. 106(a)(4), under which the district court can grant interim relief or entertain constitutional claims. City of Colorado Springs, 896 P.2d at 282-284. The ministerial nature of the City’s licensing decision, the procedural protections provided in the Ordinance, and the availability of prompt, effective judicial review under state law all counsel against imposing a “prompt judicial determination” requirement in this context.

II. Such a requirement would be inherently unworkable. City councils, as well as state legislatures, are precluded by the separation of powers from imposing constraints on the judiciary. See In the Interest of J.E.S., 817 P.2d 508, 511 (Colo. 1991) (holding that “the courts must be independent, unfettered, and free from directives, influence, or interference” from the legislature). Moreover, such a vast expansion of the Freedman line of cases would produce perverse results that harm municipal and judicial interests. As an initial matter, a “prompt judicial decision” rule would elevate the protections given to sexually oriented businesses above those afforded political speech at the core of the First Amendment, contrary to this Court’s consistent recognition that the interests involved here are “of a wholly different, and lesser, magnitude” than the interest in protecting discourse on matters of public concern. Young, 427 U.S. at 70; City of Erie v. Pap’s A.M., 529 U.S. 277, 293 (2000).

A prompt judicial decision rule would also eviscerate municipalities’ ability to control secondary effects through objective licensing procedures that implement content-neutral time, place, and manner regulations. Accepting ZJ’s view that any adult business has the per se right to operate until a court concludes otherwise would undermine cities’ substantial interest in preventing the decreased property values, crime, and urban blight associated with sexually oriented businesses—an interest properly characterized as “undeniably important.” City of Erie, 529 U.S. at 296. The procedural “band-aids” suggested by the lower courts have just this effect. While a “provisional license” to allow an unqualified or offending business to continue operation during judicial review certainly obviates any restraint, the countervailing harm to the public interest—absent in the Freedman line of cases—is substantial. Respondent, failing to recognize the sea change its view would work in municipal law and the role of the courts, also ignores the myriad of other constitutionally permissible regulations that its rule would invalidate. See, e.g., Jews for Jesus, Inc. v. Massachusetts Bay Transp.

Authority, 984 F.2d 1319, 1327 (1st Cir. 1993) (considering permit requirement for noncommercial expressive conduct, and construing FW/PBS to require only access to prompt judicial review); Graff v. City of Chicago, 9 F.3d 1309, 1324 (7th Cir. 1993) (en banc) (construing FW/PBS in context of newsrack permit ordinance). The First Amendment does not compel such a result when municipalities implement time, place, and manner regulations pursuant to objective, content-neutral licensing standards.

I. Under FW/PBS, Littleton’s Ordinance Satisfies the First Amendment Because It Provides for Prompt Commencement of Judicial Review.

This Court’s cases establish that a “city may require periodic licensing, and may even have special licensing procedures for conduct commonly associated with expression.” City of Lakewood v. Plain Dealer Publishing Co., 486 U.S. 750, 760 (1988); Young, 427 U.S. at 62 (“The fact that the commercial exploitation of material protected by the First Amendment is subject to zoning and other licensing requirements is not a sufficient reason for invalidating these ordinances”). The settled rule is that a licensing mechanism for enforcing time, place, and manner regulations is constitutional if it contains narrow, objective standards that “guide the official’s decision and render it subject to effective judicial review.” Thomas, 534 U.S. at 323.

However, a “licensing standard which gives an official authority to censor the content of a speech differs toto coelo from one limited by its terms, or by nondiscriminatory practice, to considerations of public safety and the like.” Id. at 322-323 (quoting Niemotko v. Maryland, 340 U.S. 268, 282 (1951)). When censorship is afoot, this Court has required stringent safeguards to protect freedom of expression. Thus, Freedman held that a state board of censors had the burden of securing a prompt judicial decision confirming an order prohibiting exhibition of a film. Freedman, 380 U.S. at 58; see also Teitel Film Corp. v. Cusack, 390 U.S. 139, 141 (1968) (per curiam) (requiring “a prompt judicial decision on the question of the alleged obscenity of” a work that has been censored) (emphasis supplied); Southeastern Promotions, 420 U.S. 546 (applying requirement to a municipal review board operating with unbridled discretion to determine, based on content, the stage productions that could occur at municipal theaters).

In contrast to decisions addressing content-based censorship schemes, this Court did not impose the “prompt judicial determination” requirement when it reviewed an adult business licensing ordinance in FW/PBS, 493 U.S. 215. Justice O’Connor’s opinion for the plurality emphasized the distinction between censorship schemes and objective licensing standards that implement content-neutral regulations: “[T]he city does not exercise discretion by passing judgment on the content of any protected speech. Rather, the city reviews the general qualifications of each license applicant, a ministerial action that is not presumptively invalid.” Id. at 229 (emphasis supplied); see also id. at 246 (White, J., joined by Rehnquist, C.J., concurring in part and dissenting in part) (noting that Dallas ordinance did “not vest undue discretion” in deciding whether to grant a license). Thus, the licensing procedure “does not present the grave ‘dangers of a censorship system.’” Id. at 228 (quoting Freedman, 380 U.S. at 58).

The plurality accordingly concluded that the First Amendment requires a municipality to guarantee only the “possibility” or “availability” of “prompt judicial review,” FW/PBS, 493 U.S. at 228 (emphasis supplied), rather than, as was required in Freedman and its progeny, a “prompt judicial determination,” Freedman, 380 U.S. at 60 (emphasis supplied).¹⁰ The plurality’s conclusion followed directly from Southeastern Promotions and Freedman, which concluded that the “prompt judicial determination” requirement rests on essentially the same premise as the procedural safeguard, not applicable to ministerial licensing, requiring censors to institute judicial proceedings to confirm their decisions. Southeastern Promotions, 420 U.S. at 560; Freedman, 380 U.S. at 58.¹¹

The Littleton Ordinance makes “prompt judicial review” “available” to adult businesses, as required by the FW/PBS plurality. Under the fixed time limits set by the Ordinance, the City will complete its review of an application, both as an initial matter and on administrative appeal, within 40 days. LCC § 3-14-8(A)&(B) (mandating initial decision within 14 days, providing 10 days to file notice of appeal, requiring hearing within 14 days of notice and mandating decision within 2 days thereafter); cf. Thomas, 534 U.S. at 318-319 (noting final administrative decision provided within 42 days). Additionally, although the adult business is given up to 10 days to file a notice of administrative appeal, that essentially pro forma notice takes almost no time to prepare and file, enabling the applicant to obtain a final administrative order within as little as 30 or 31 days of filing its application.

That order is immediately appealable pursuant to Colo.R.Civ.P. 106(a)(4). City of Colorado Springs, 896 P.2d at 282-284 (noting that district court may grant interim relief, accelerate any action requiring acceleration, entertain constitutional claims, noting that any threat to free expression “may be remedied promptly by judicial intervention,” and concluding that Colo.R.Civ.P. 106(a)(4) satisfies FW/PBS’s requirement of prompt judicial review). The Littleton Ordinance therefore provides a quick exit from the administrative process and immediate access to, as discussed below, “effective judicial review.” Thomas, 534 U.S. at 323.

First, the burden of proving that the film is unprotected expression must rest on the censor. . . . Second, . . . the requirement cannot be administered in a manner which would lend an effect of finality to the censor’s determination whether a film constitutes protected expression. . . . Moreover, . . . an administrative refusal to license, signifying the censor’s view that the film is unprotected, may have a discouraging effect on the exhibitor. Therefore, the procedure must also assure a prompt final judicial decision, to minimize the deterrent effect of an interim and possibly erroneous denial of a license.

Id. at 58-59 (citations omitted) (emphasis supplied).

A. The Rationales of Freedman’s Prompt Judicial Decision Requirement Are Inapposite to Littleton’s Ordinance.

As explained in Freedman and Shuttlesworth and reiterated in FW/PBS, two fundamental concerns justify Freedman’s stringent procedural safeguards. The first is the judicial expertise necessary to supervise censorship schemes, because “the line between legitimate and illegitimate speech is often so finely drawn,” Southeastern Promotions, 420 U.S. at 559, and the censor will tend to err on the side of disallowing speech. The second is the risk of self-censorship because the license denial “may have a discouraging effect on the exhibitor,” Freedman, 380 U.S. at 59, such that the administrative action may be tantamount to suppression of the speech.

The FW/PBS plurality addressed both issues squarely. First, the judicial expertise rationale is inapposite because an objective licensing standard involves only “ministerial action that is not presumptively invalid.” FW/PBS, 493 U.S. at 229. Thus, the plurality held that in such situations, a city does not bear the burden of going to court, nor the burden of proof once in court. Cf. Freedman, 380 U.S. at 58 (requiring the censor to bear the “burden of proving the film is unprotected”). The plurality’s conclusion in this regard is directly relevant to the judicial review requirement, because relieving the government of the burden of proof concerning a ministerial licensing decision demonstrates that this is not a case “[w]here the transcendent value of speech is involved.” Id. (quoting Speiser v. Randall, 357 U.S. 513, 526 (1958)).

While an adult business owner will likely have the financial incentive to challenge a regulation, this Court’s cases reveal that “the central concern of the First Amendment in this area is that there be a free flow from creator to audience of whatever message a film or a book might convey.” Young, 427 U.S. at 77 (Powell, J., concurring in the result). This “central concern” is not involved here, where “none of the grounds for denying a permit has anything to do with what a speaker might say.” Thomas, 534 U.S. at 322. Littleton’s licensing standards have nothing to do with the content of speech nor do they prescribe the size, shape, color, texture, flavor, content, or message of any adult products which are sold. Creators and sellers of adult products are free in Littleton to explore the full range of their imagination and creative expression.

Second, the FW/PBS plurality explained that content-neutral licensing decisions do not raise the specter of self-censorship. In Freedman, it was the discouraging effect of a license denial based on the content of speech that could cause the exhibitor “to be deterred from challenging the decision to suppress the speech, and, therefore, the censor’s decision to suppress was tantamount to complete suppression of the speech.” FW/PBS, 493 U.S. at 229. Such a concern is plainly absent in ministerial licensing decisions: “Because the license is the key to the applicant’s obtaining and maintaining a business, there is every incentive for the applicant to pursue a license denial through court.” Id. at 229-230.

The lack of the self-censorship rationale here is dispositive, because it was the very reason the Freedman Court imposed the prompt judicial determination requirement:

[A]n administrative refusal to license, signifying the censor’s view that the film is unprotected, may have a discouraging effect on the exhibitor. See Bantam Books, Inc. v. Sullivan, supra. Therefore, the procedure must also assure a prompt final judicial decision, to minimize the deterrent effect of an interim and possibly erroneous denial of a license.

Freedman, 380 U.S. at 59 (emphasis supplied).

Ironically, ZJ’s did not engage in self-censorship—rather, it brazenly opened and has continually operated in an improperly zoned area despite rulings from the District Court and the Tenth Circuit.

After discussing the absence of these rationales in objective permitting decisions, the FW/PBS plurality dispensed with the requirement—mentioned first and foremost in the Freedman opinion, id. at 58—that the government bear the burdens of proof and prosecution. FW/PBS, 493 U.S. at 230 (“Because of these differences . . . the city does not bear the burden of going to court to effect the denial of a license application”). Rather, the plurality specifically concluded that “[l]imitation on the time within which the licensor must issue the license as well as the availability of prompt judicial review satisfy the ‘principle that the freedoms of expression must be ringed about with adequate bulwarks.’” Id. (citation omitted) (emphasis supplied).

There is no basis to retreat from the view of the FW/PBS plurality and extend the “prompt judicial determination” requirement to encompass appeals from ministerial licensing rulings. A straightforward review of Freedman shows that its prompt judicial decision requirement does not apply of its own force to the Littleton Ordinance. Although ZJ’s invokes the “prior restraint” doctrine and urges this Court to “mechanically apply the doctrines developed in other contexts,” Young, 475 U.S. at 76 (Powell, J., concurring), this Court has long recognized, especially in the First Amendment realm, that “broad statements of principle, no matter how correct in the context in which they are made,” cannot answer novel questions in significantly different contexts. Id. at 65 (plurality opinion of Stevens, J.); see also R.A.V. v. City of St. Paul, 505 U.S. 377, 386 n.5 (1992) (“It is of course contrary to all traditions of our jurisprudence to consider the law on this point conclusively settled by broad language in cases where the issue was not presented or even envisioned”); Kingsley Books, Inc. v. Brown, 354 U.S. 436, 441 (1957) (noting that, even in a censorship case, “the phrase ‘prior restraint’ is not a self-wielding sword” or a “talismanic test,” but that each claim must be analyzed against “the operation and effect of the statute in substance”) (quoting Near v. Minnesota, 283 U.S. 697, 713 (1931)).

Such observations are especially appropriate here, where unbridled discretion—the sine qua non of prior restraint—is absent from the Littleton Ordinance.¹² Thus, Littleton’s Ordinance is more properly analyzed as a time, place, and manner regulation. Thomas, 534 U.S. at 316 (identifying procedural requirements for time, place, and manner regulation).

B. ZJ’s “Substantial or Significant” Argument is Not an Unbridled Discretion Argument At All, But a Meritless Vagueness Challenge Irrelevant to the Question Presented.

ZJ’s has not, and cannot, contend that the Littleton Ordinance permits city officials to deny a license based on the content of any communication. As ZJ’s notes¹³ and the lower courts confirmed, Littleton’s licensing decision “does not involve discretion on the part of the licensing official.” (Pet. App. 29 n.13 and 65) (holding that “the Littleton city clerk does not have unbridled discretion to either approve or deny a license”).¹⁴

¹² Well-reasoned opinions of the courts of appeals are in accord. TK’s Video, Inc. v. Denton County, 24 F.3d 705, 707 (5th Cir. 1994) (“The order, by its own terms, combats pernicious side effects of adult businesses” and “does not censor”); Graff, 9 F.3d at 1331 (Flaum, J., concurring) (“Moreover, uncritically extending Freedman’s reach to strike down the ordinance for lack of judicial review, by attributing broad significance to language in later cases that dealt with schemes substantially dissimilar from the one at issue here, would embark us on a senseless departure from the core logic undergirding the holdings in Freedman and its progeny; for neither the purpose nor effect of the ordinance, unlike the laws challenged in that line of cases, is to involve the licensor in any decision-making of constitutional proportion.”)

¹⁴ ZJ’s Brief in Opposition to the Petition also does not argue that the Littleton Ordinance suffers from the “undue delay” strand of unbridled discretion which infected the Dallas ordinance at issue in

Faced with this reality, ZJ’s fashions a new argument—raised for the first time in this Court—that the City’s failure to specifically define the phrase “significant or substantial” in the definition of adult bookstore renders the Littleton Ordinance an unconstitutional prior restraint. ZJ’s Brf. in Opp. to Pet. at 6 (“While the criteria for granting a license have been held to provide objective standards, the requirement for a license itself involves the exercise of broad discretion by Littleton City officials”) (emphasis supplied).

As an initial matter, this argument has been waived because it was never presented below. See Sprietsma v. Mercury Marine, 537 U.S. 51, 56 n.4 (2002); NCAA v. Smith, 525 U.S. 459, 470 (1999) (noting that the Court will consider only questions properly presented in or passed upon by the court below). To be sure, ZJ’s mounted FW/PBS. 493 U.S. at 227 (invoking prior restraint analysis to invalidate the Dallas ordinance because city-conducted inspections, which were prerequisites to licensure, were not mandated within a specific time frame). This is logical, given that the Tenth Circuit severed the provisions requiring the zoning officer’s letter of compliance and photographs and fingerprints administered by the police department. (Pet. App. 22, 24). Additionally, these provisions have subsequently been amended to require the zoning official’s letter within five days of a request (or the location is deemed compliant) and have eliminated the City’s involvement in administering photographs or fingerprints. LCC §§ 3-14-7; 3-14-5(B)(11) (Br. App. 26a-28a). Moreover, the Ordinance specifically provides that: “If any city official or department fails to render a timely decision pursuant to the terms of this ordinance then said official or department shall be deemed to have approved or consented to the issuance of the requested license.” LCC § 3-14-8(C) (Br. App. 30a). Thus, since both of the “evils” that are the hallmark of prior restraint analysis—amorphous standards and undue delay—are absent here, this case is distinguishable from not only FW/PBS, but also from all of this Court’s prior restraint decisions.

challenges to “substantial or significant” below—but those arguments were vagueness and overbreadth challenges that were flatly rejected. (Pet. App. 12 n.4) (rejecting vagueness challenge, finding that the Ordinance is “unquestionably applicable” to ZJ’s, and affirming that ZJ’s lacked standing under Young, 427 U.S. at 60-61, to bring the vagueness challenge) (Pet. App. 51-55) (rejecting vagueness and overbreadth challenges and commenting that ZJ’s claim that it was not an adult bookstore was “frivolous at best” and based on “incredulous arguments”).

Moreover, the claim that the phrase “substantial or significant” is vague is irrelevant to any cognizable theory of unbridled discretion. This Court has never held that the determination of whether a regulation applies to a particular business, or even to a course of expressive conduct, is itself an act of unbridled discretion. Rather, it is “unbridled discretion with respect to the criteria used in deciding whether or not to grant a license” that is “deemed to convert an otherwise valid law into an unconstitutional prior restraint.” FW/PBS, 493 U.S. at 246 (White, J., joined by Rehnquist, C.J., concurring in part and dissenting in part) (citations omitted); Shuttlesworth, 394 U.S. at 150 (finding unconstitutional prior restraint because “in deciding whether or not to withhold a permit, the members of the Commission were to be guided only by their own ideas of ‘public welfare, peace, safety, health, decency, good order, morals or convenience’”) (emphasis supplied).

The Ordinance lacks such discretion. Even if an establishment’s inventory consisted solely of obscene material, Littleton must promptly grant a license if the applicant meets the straightforward standards of its Ordinance. LCC § 3-14-8 (mandating that application for a license “shall be approved” unless applicant is disqualified pursuant to one of eight objective standards). Where, as here, it is admitted that the City lacks discretion to deny licenses to qualified applicants, the impetus for Freedman's prompt judicial decision requirement is wholly lacking.¹⁵

Finally, it bears noting that an adult business has at least two avenues to bring a constitutional challenge, directly in court, without any delay whatsoever, to either the requirement that it obtain a license or, as discussed below, to the substantive time, place, and manner regulations in the ordinance. First, an adult business can bring a declaratory judgment action in state court. See § 13-51-105 Colo.Rev.Stat. (2003). Second, just as ZJ's did here, an adult business can bring an action in federal court under 42 U.S.C. § 1983. See generally Patsy v. Board of Regents, 457 U.S. 496, 500-01 (1982) (no administrative exhaustion requirement applies to section 1983 actions). These avenues of judicial review, of course, are in addition to the procedure made available under Colo.R.Civ.P. 106(a)(4) to any applicant denied a license under the Ordinance's specific standards.

C. ZJ's "Content-Based" Argument is Not Only Irrelevant to Prior Restraint Analysis, But Also Directly Contrary to this Court's Adult Business Cases.

ZJ's proffers a second reason for imposing Freedman's "prompt judicial determination" requirement on municipal ordinances such as the one at bar: they are allegedly content-based by virtue of being directed at sexually oriented businesses. Resp. Brf. in Opp. to Pet. 3 (claiming that the Ordinance regulates “on the basis of the content”). This argument, however, suffers from the same critical defect as the previous contention—the City’s act of defining a category of regulated land uses or businesses does not in any way give the City discretion “in deciding whether or not to withhold a permit.” Shuttlesworth, 394 U.S. at 150. Thus, ZJ’s substantive attack—rejected by the lower courts (Pet. App. 33 n.15 and 57-59)—adds nothing to its procedural contention that Freedman’s “prompt judicial determination” requirement should apply here.

ZJ’s argument to treat the Ordinance as “content-based” fails for another reason: it is directly contrary to every relevant decision of this Court. Young, 427 U.S. at 71-72 (plurality); id. at 78 (Powell, J., concurring) (holding that adult business ordinance “has silenced no message, has invoked no censorship, and has imposed no limitation upon those who wish to view [sexually explicit films]”); City of Renton, 475 U.S. at 48 (“In short, the Renton ordinance is completely consistent with our definition of ‘content-neutral’ speech regulations as those that ‘are justified without reference to the content of the regulated speech’”) (citations omitted); Barnes v. Glen Theatre, Inc., 501 U.S. 560, 585 (1991) (Souter, J., concurring in judgment) (upholding nudity ban as applied to adult businesses and concluding that “the governmental interest in combating prostitution and other criminal activity is not at all inherently related to expression”); City of Erie, 529 U.S. at 295 (plurality opinion) (same); City of Los Angeles v. Alameda Books, Inc., 535 U.S. 425, 440 (2002) (plurality opinion) (explaining that “Renton requires that municipal ordinances receive only intermediate scrutiny” when directed at secondary effects); id. at 445, 448 (Kennedy, J., concurring in the judgment) (noting that content-neutral label is “imprecise,” but that “the central holding of Renton is sound” because controlling secondary effects is a content-neutral justification).

In short, it is well-settled that adult business ordinances aimed at secondary effects are evaluated under the standard for content-neutral time, place, and manner regulations because they do not control the content of any expression and are “justified without reference to the content of the regulated speech.” City of Renton, 475 U.S. at 48 (alteration in original) (quoting Virginia State Board of Pharmacy, 425 U.S. at 771). This is amply demonstrated by the fact that Littleton’s substantive time, place, and manner regulations¹⁶ are clearly designed to further its interest in preventing secondary effects—decreased property values, crime, and urban blight—a government interest which does not turn on the psychological effect speech may have on its listeners. Boos v. Barry, 485 U.S. 312, 320-321 (1988) (distinguishing Renton from content-based restrictions on speech).

Additionally, the Littleton Ordinance “is not limited to expressive activities,” City of Los Angeles, 535 U.S. at 447, but rather regulates all sex-oriented enterprises including, for example, “sexual encounter centers” not engaged in protected expression. LCC § 3-14-2 (Br. App. 12a-21a). Thus, the Ordinance “is not even directed to communicative activity as such,” Thomas, 534 U.S. at 322, but at a category of land uses associated with secondary effects. LCC § 3-14-1 (Br. App. 12a) (noting that ordinance has “neither the purpose nor effect of imposing a limitation or restriction on the content of any communicative materials,” but is aimed at limiting “the adverse secondary effects” of adult businesses); see also City of Erie, 529 U.S. at 297 (holding that city could rely on evidentiary foundation in Young and Renton “that secondary effects are caused by the presence of even one adult entertainment establishment in a given neighborhood”).

Finally, ZJ’s “content-based” argument runs headlong into this Court’s narrow tailoring standard for adult business regulations, which requires the Ordinance to affect only adult businesses, “thus avoiding the [overbreadth] flaw that proved fatal to the regulations in Schad v. Borough of Mount Ephraim, 452 U.S. 61 (1981) and Erznoznik v. City of Jacksonville, 422 U.S. 205 (1975).” City of Renton, 475 U.S. at 52 (clarification added); see also FW/PBS, 493 U.S. at 244 (White, J., concurring in part and dissenting in part) (noting that Renton and Young teach that adult business regulations, “although focusing on a limited class of businesses,” are to be treated as content-neutral); Barnes, 501 U.S. at 585 n.2 (1991) (Souter, J., concurring in judgment) (holding that regulation would be suspect if applied outside the secondary effects context of Renton-type adult entertainment).

Relying on this Court’s precedents, the text of the Littleton Ordinance, and the legislative and judicial record in this case, the District Court found that the Ordinance is “narrowly tailored to serve a significant governmental interest and leaves open ample alternative channels of communication.” (Pet. App. 60). Given this conclusion—which is not challenged here—it cannot be “suggested that the prerequisites for obtaining a license, such as certificates of occupancy and inspections, do not serve the same kind of substantial government interest dealt with in [Young and Renton] nor that the licensing system fails the test of content neutrality.” FW/PBS, 493 U.S. at 245 (White, J., concurring in part and dissenting in part) (clarification added).

D. The Littleton Ordinance Contains Narrow, Objective Standards that Guide the Licensing Decision and Render it Subject to Effective Judicial Review.

Under Littleton’s Ordinance, an applicant shall be granted a license within 14 days of application unless one of eight specific reasons justifies denial. LCC § 3-14-8(A) (Br. App. 28a-30a). These straightforward reasons go to whether the applicant is underage, has lied on the application, has recently operated an adult business illegally in the state, is a corporation not in good standing, is overdue on monies owed to the city in relation to an adult business, does not have a sales tax license, or has recently been convicted of certain sex-related or sex-business related crimes. Cf. Thomas, 534 U.S. at 319 n.1 (upholding regulation allowing permit denial based upon, inter alia, a material misrepresentation in the application, prior damage to Park District property, outstanding debts to the Park District, failure to comply with “licensure requirements . . . concerning the sale . . . of any goods or services,” or a finding that the proposed use is “inconsistent with the classifications and uses of the park” or “would present an unreasonable danger to . . . health or safety”).

As the Tenth Circuit noted, Littleton’s grounds for license denial “do not involve discretion on the part of the licensing official.” (Pet. App. 29 n.13); cf. Thomas, 534 U.S. at 324 (noting that grounds for denial “are reasonably specific and objective, and do not leave the decision ‘to the whim of the administrator’”) (quoting Forsyth County v. Nationalist Movement, 505 U.S. 123, 133 (1992)).

The City’s objective standards for license denial demonstrate that the judicial expertise rationale underlying the Freedman prompt judicial decision requirement is simply inapposite. Thomas, 534 U.S. at 322 (“Freedman is inapposite because the licensing scheme at issue here is not subject-matter censorship but content-neutral time, place, and manner regulation . . .”). Littleton’s standards do not require fine line-drawing between protected and unprotected speech—a task properly left to the judiciary—but instead involve content-neutral determinations which are within the traditional realm of municipal expertise.

Characterizing Littleton’s Ordinance as a time, place, or manner regulation enforced by ministerial licensing does not mean that the aggrieved adult business applicant is bereft of procedural protections. The applicant is guaranteed an initial decision within 14 days. LLC § 3-14-8(A). Within 10 days after a license denial, an applicant may request an administrative appeal hearing before the city manager which must be conducted within fourteen days of the request, LCC § 3-14-8(B), and at which the adult business is entitled to present witnesses on its behalf. LCC § 3-14-8(B)(1) (Br. App. 29a). If the applicant is deemed ineligible for a license under the objective standards, the city manager shall issue an order, based on findings of fact, within two days after the hearing. LCC § 3-14-8(B)(2) (Br. App. 29a-30a). That order is immediately appealable to the state district court pursuant to Colo.R.Civ.P. 106(a)(4). LCC § 3-14-8(B)(3) (Br. App. 30a). Finally, if a city official fails to render a timely decision at any time in this process, the official “shall be deemed to have approved” the issuance of the requested license. LCC § 3-14-8(C) (Br. App. 30a).

Because the Littleton Ordinance plainly provides the ability to appeal a licensing decision in court as a matter of right, immediately upon the conclusion of administrative proceedings, the question is not whether judicial review should be available, but instead whether the courts are so singularly suited to making licensing determinations that the First Amendment compels deviating from a process that provides prompt commencement of “effective judicial review.” Thomas, 534 U.S. at 323. Here, the City’s objective standards and extensive administrative procedures minimize the risk of an erroneous determination that would prejudice an adult business. The objective standards not only obviate the need for strict judicial superintendence, they also support the City’s view that any error in the process would be obvious, and would be “remedied promptly by judicial intervention.” City of Colorado Springs, 896 P.2d at 284.

Finally, the immediate availability of judicial review also rebuts the unsupported theory, espoused by the Tenth Circuit, that even though a licensing official “may have little or no discretion in reviewing an application,” he may “be tempted nevertheless to overstep the bounds of the ordinance.” (Pet. App. 31). Such speculation, which need not detain this Court, is clearly contrary to this Court’s view that public officials are entitled to “a presumption of honesty and integrity” in the performance of their public duties in the absence of facts to the contrary. Withrow v. Larkin, 421 U.S. 35, 47 (1975); U.S. v. Chemical Foundation, Inc., 272 U.S. 1, 14-15 (1926) (noting that courts presume public officers have properly discharged their official duties). Such a presumption is all the more warranted here, where there is, in fact, no discretion in reviewing an application. (Pet. App. 29 n.13); Thomas, 534 U.S. at 325 (“[A]buse must be dealt with if and when a pattern of unlawful favoritism appears”).

II. Accepting ZJ’s Argument Would Cause Substantial, Unwarranted Harm to Municipal and Judicial Interests.

A myriad of logical and practical problems infect ZJ’s view that the Constitution requires municipalities to guarantee a judge’s prompt decision. Unlike the censorship situation in Freedman, where the requirement did not impede the public interest or orderly functioning of the judiciary, expanding the Freedman line of cases to this inapposite context would eviscerate the ability of local governments to control secondary effects through objective licensing procedures and would clog the courts with municipal matters.

Initially the City notes that “a municipality has no authority to control the period of time in which a state court will adjudicate a matter.” Nightclubs, Inc. v. City of Paducah, 202 F.3d 884, 893-894 (6th Cir. 2000). The same is true of state legislatures, which are bound by separation of powers provisions in state constitutions from interfering with the independence of the judiciary in this regard. See, e.g., Coate v. Omholt, 662 P.2d 591, 203 Mont. 488 (1983) (holding that legislative imposition of deadlines for judicial decision making violated separation of powers doctrine); Allen v. Butterworth, 756 So.2d 52 (Fla. 2000) (holding that state legislature may not impose deadlines for deciding habeas corpus motions without violating separation of powers).

Colorado is no different. Article III of the Colorado Constitution establishes three co-equal departments of government and states that no department “shall exercise any power properly belonging to either of the others.” In Interest of J.E.S., the Colorado Supreme Court specifically held that “the courts must be independent, unfettered, and free from directives, influence, or interference” from the legislature. 817 P.2d at 511.¹⁷ Thus, by imposing an impossible requirement, the Tenth Circuit's decision has effectively invalidated dozens of similar ordinances in cities across the State of Colorado. A preliminary review of 50 municipal codes conducted by the Colorado Municipal League reveals that more than 30 cities employ adult business licensing procedures similar to Littleton's. (Pet. App. 136). Requiring a prompt judicial decision also assumes that state judges will forsake their duties of office by refusing to render one when necessary. Judges in the courts of the State of Colorado have the same duty to apply the protections of the United States Constitution as federal judges. "[S]tate courts share with federal courts an equivalent responsibility for the enforcement of federal rights, a responsibility one must expect they will fulfill." Schlesinger v. Councilman, 420 U.S. 738, 756 (1975). It must be assumed that a judge hearing a Colo.R.Civ.P. 106 review will recognize an obligation to proceed promptly and exercise the power to grant a stay, to expedite the determination, or provide such other temporary relief as may be appropriate.

Another curious result of imposing a prompt judicial decision requirement in adult business licensing cases would be that it would have the effect of giving the core political speech activities discussed in Thomas less constitutional protection than sexually oriented businesses are afforded. Beginning with the decision in Young, this Court has determined that "material that is on the borderline between pornography and artistic expression," is of a less vital interest than "the free dissemination of ideas of social and political significance." Young, 427 U.S. at 61. As Justice Stevens noted:

Whether political oratory or philosophical discussion moves us to applaud or to despise what is said, every school child can understand why our duty to defend the right to speak remains the same. But few of us would march our sons and daughters off to war to preserve the citizens' right to see 'specified sexual activities' exhibited in the theaters of our choice.

Id. at 70; see also City of Erie, 529 U.S. at 294.

Political speech requires the most vigilant protection under the Constitution. Buckley v. American Constitutional Law Foundation, Inc., 525 U.S. 182, 187-88 (1999) (first amendment protection for core political speech "is at its zenith"); see also Meyer v. Grant, 486 U.S. 414, 419 (1988). On the other hand, as noted above, sexually oriented speech has traditionally enjoyed protection on the periphery of the First Amendment. Young, 427 U.S. at 70-71; cf. FCC v. Pacifica Foundation, 438 U.S. 726, 743 (1978). Yet read together, Thomas and the decisions of the circuits which require a prompt judicial decision would have the effect of requiring a prompt judicial decision for sexually oriented businesses, but not for core political speech.

Nevertheless, ZJ's expansive view would have the Constitution granting an unqualified adult business a per se right to operate until a court says otherwise.¹⁸ This radical expansion of Freedman to content-neutral licensing determinations is not only unworkable and unwarranted under this Court's precedents, it would also create impediments and dangers for local governments in their efforts to control secondary effects through objective licensing procedures. This Court has repeatedly held that cities' substantial, content-neutral interest in preventing secondary effects—like those identified by the City in this case, Pet. App. 60—is “undeniably important.” City of Erie, 529 U.S. at 296-297 (following Young, Renton, and California v. LaRue, 409 U.S. 109 (1972)); see also City of Los Angeles, 535 U.S. at 444 (Kennedy, J., concurring in the judgment) (“Municipal governments know that high concentrations of adult businesses can damage the value and the integrity of a neighborhood. The damage is measurable; it is all too real”).

If Freedman's prompt judicial decision requirement is extended to the situation at bar, the expansion of that rule in the lower courts is practically unavoidable. Indeed, lower courts adopting this requirement have implemented “the policy underlying this [prompt judicial decision] safeguard” by extending Freedman to post-licensing sanctions based on violative conduct. 4805 Convoy, Inc. v. City of San Diego, 183 F.3d 1108, 1115 (9th Cir. 1999) (emphasis supplied); see also Nightclubs, Inc., 202 F.3d at 894 (holding that in licensing, “a city may very well have to go beyond merely maintaining the status quo”); City News and Novelty, 531 U.S. at 282 (noting that petitioner adult bookstore’s actual request was for a stay after the city refused to renew a license based on, inter alia, allowing patrons to engage in sexual activity on the premises). Yet neither logic nor precedent requires municipalities to abdicate their police power when implementing objective licensing standards, either initially or upon periodic review.

ZJ’s also fails to acknowledge the sea change its theory would work in municipal law and the role of the courts. The requirement of a prompt judicial decision would necessarily undermine a wide range of time, place, and manner regulations that are enforced through objective permitting procedures. These range from regulations of noncommercial expressive conduct in subways, see Jews for Jesus, 984 F.2d at 1327 (construing FW/PBS to require only that ordinance permit prompt judicial review), to permitting requirements for newsracks. Graff, 9 F.3d at 1324 n.11 (holding that ordinance did not confer unbridled discretion and ruling that a “newsstand is also as much a business as an adult bookstore. Therefore, Chicago need not prove its case in court before ruling on a permit or removing a newsstand”).¹⁹ Such a rule would unnecessarily thwart municipal attempts to control not only the secondary effects of adult businesses, but also the attendant consequences of a myriad of unregulated activities associated with expression. It would be unreasonable to hold that regulation to prevent negative secondary effects is a laudable goal, perhaps even a duty for municipalities, while at the same time creating a requirement which cities like Littleton simply cannot meet. The First Amendment does not compel such a result, nor does it require that municipalities grope for solutions which may not work, while allowing the conditions conducive to secondary effects to flourish during judicial review of ministerial licensing decisions.

¹⁹ Note the similar concerns raised by the Colorado Municipal League in its Amicus Brief filed in support of Littleton’s petition for rehearing en banc. (Pet. App. 138-139).

CONCLUSION

For these reasons, Littleton requests that this Court reverse the holding of the United States Court of Appeals for the Tenth Circuit requiring a prompt judicial decision and find that the requirement of prompt judicial review imposed by FW/PBS entails a prompt commencement of judicial proceedings.
