

No. 04-6964

In The Supreme Court of the United States

—◆—
JAY SHAWN JOHNSON,

Petitioner,

v.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA,

Respondent.

—◆—
On Writ Of Certiorari To The Supreme Court Of The State Of California

—◆—
PETITIONER'S BRIEF ON THE MERITS

—◆—
STEPHEN B. BEDRICK
Counsel of Record
Attorney at Law
1970 Broadway, Suite 1200
Oakland, CA 94612
Phone: (510) 452-1900
Fax: (510) 452-1980

ERIC SCHNAPPER
University of Washington
School of Law
P. O. Box 353020
Seattle, WA 98195
Phone: (206) 616-3167
Fax: (206) 685-4469
Counsel for Petitioner

QUESTION PRESENTED

Whether to establish a prima facie case under Batson v. Kentucky, 476 U.S. 79 (1986), the objector must show that it is more likely than not the other party's peremptory challenges, if unexplained, were based on impermissible group bias?

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	Page
QUESTION PRESENTED	i
OPINIONS BELOW	1
JURISDICTION.....	1
CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISION INVOLVED	1
STATEMENT OF THE CASE	1
Nature of the Alleged Offense	1
Litigation of The Batson Issues In The Courts Below	2
SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT	8
ARGUMENT.....	11
I. THE CORRECT TEST FOR A PRIMA FACIE CASE OF DISCRIMINATION IN JURY SELEC- TION IS WHETHER THE EVIDENCE WOULD PERMIT AN INFERENCE OF DISCRI- MINATION, NOT CALIFORNIA’S REQUIRE- MENT THAT THE OBJECTOR MUST PROVE THAT THE EXISTENCE OF A DISCRIMINATORY MOTIVE WAS “MORE LIKELY THAN NOT”	11
A. Batson Has Established a Method for Identifying and Prohibiting Racial Discrimination in Jury Selection	11
B. When California Requires the Objector at the Prima Facie Stage to Prove by a Preponderance of the Evidence That a Challenge Was Made for a Discriminatory Purpose, It Improperly Applies a Merits Test at the Prima Facie Stage	13

TABLE OF CONTENTS – Continued

	Page
C. Discriminatory Intent Cannot Ordinarily Be Shown Without Hearing the Prosecutor’s Reasons	18
D. Under Batson and its Progeny a Prima Facie Case Is Established When There Is Sufficient Evidence to Permit an Inference of Discrimination	21
E. “Inference,” as Used in Other Areas of the Law, and as Understood by the Federal Courts in Interpreting Batson , Refers to a Permissive Inference.....	23
1. “Inference” means permissive inference	23
2. The lower courts have understood Batson ’s “inference” standard as a permissive inference.....	25
3. The federal courts regularly find a prima facie case when the challenger perempt all two or more members of a protected group, or when he perempt the majority of a protected group.....	28
F. A Review of California Cases Shows that the California Standard Presents a Substantially Higher Threshold for a Prima Facie Case than the Batson Inference Standard.....	29
G. Title VII Standards Do Not Support the Decision of the Court below.....	31
1. Title VII cases do not require proof that discrimination was more likely than not to create a prima facie case	32

TABLE OF CONTENTS – Continued

	Page
2. Less evidence is required to establish a prima facie case under Batson than under Title VII.....	36
II. THE LOWER COURTS’ RELIANCE UPON CONJECTURAL JUSTIFICATIONS AT THE PRIMA FACIE STAGE VIOLATES THE RULE OF PURKETT V. ELEM THAT A PRIMA FACIE CASE IS TO BE EVALUATED WITH THE CHALLENGES “UNEXPLAINED”.....	38
A. No Conjectured Explanations Should Be Relied upon at the Prima Facie Stage.....	38
B. The Prosecution’s Conjectured Explanations Should Be Rejected as Pretextual, Because They Equally Apply to White Jurors Who Were Accepted.....	45
III. A PRIMA FACIE CASE OF A BATSON VIOLATION IS SHOWN ON THIS RECORD	47
A. This Court Should Decide Whether There Is a Prima Facie Case Here.....	47
B. A Prima Facie Case Is Established by the Fact that the Prosecutor Perempted All Three Black Jurors in this Racially-Charged Case.....	48
CONCLUSION.....	49

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Page

CASES

Batson v. Kentucky , 476 U.S. 79, 90 L.Ed.2d 69, 106 S.Ct. 1712 (1986)	passim
Bui v. Haley , 321 F.3d 1304 (11th Cir. 2003)	40, 41
Caldwell v. Maloney , 159 F.3d 639 (1st Cir. 1998).....	43
Central Alabama Fair Housing Center v. Lowder Realty , 236 F.3d 629 (11th Cir. 2000)	25, 28
Collins v. Rice , 348 F.3d 1082 (9th Cir. 2003)	17
Conerly v. State , 544 So.2d 1370 (Miss. 1989)	27
Cooperwood v. Cambra , 245 F.3d 1042 (9th Cir. 2001).....	26
Coulter v. Gilmore , 155 F.3d 912 (7th Cir. 1998)	43
Davidson v. Harris , 30 F.3d 963 (8th Cir. 1994)	17
Devose v. Norris , 53 F.3d 201 (8th Cir. 1995)	43
Fernandez v. Roe , 286 F.3d 1073 (9th Cir. 2002)	26
Ford v. Georgia , 498 U.S. 411, 112 L.Ed.2d 935, 111 S.Ct. 850 (1991)	3
Ford v. Norris , 67 F.3d 162 (8th Cir. 1995)	17, 43
Furnco Construction Corp. v. Waters , 438 U.S. 567, 57 L.Ed.2d 957, 98 S.Ct. 2943 (1978)	32, 33, 35, 36
Georgia v. McCollum , 505 U.S. 42, 120 L.Ed.2d 33, 112 S.Ct. 2348 (1992)	11, 12, 50
Griffith v. Kentucky , 479 U.S. 314, 93 L.Ed.2d 649, 107 S.Ct. 708 (1987)	44
Henderson v. Walls , 296 F.3d 541 (7th Cir. 2002)	43

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES – Continued

	Page
Hernandez v. New York , 500 U.S. 352, 114 L.Ed.2d 395, 111 S.Ct. 1859 (1991).....	40, 41
Hicks v. Johnson , 186 F.3d 634 (5th Cir. 1999).....	43
Hollingsworth v. Burton , 30 F.3d 109 (11th Cir. 1994).....	43
Howard v. Moore , 131 F.3d 399 (4th Cir. 1997)	43
Johnson v. California , 124 S.Ct. 1833 (2004)	8
Johnson v. Love , 40 F.3d 658 (3d Cir. 1994).....	25
Johnson v. Vasquez , 3 F.3d 1327 (9th Cir. 2003).....	17
Jones v. Plaster , 57 F.3d 417 (4th Cir. 1995).....	22
Jones v. Ryan , 987 F.2d 960 (3d Cir. 1993).....	17, 43
Jordan v. Lefevre , 206 F.3d 196 (2d Cir. 2000).....	17, 43
King v. Moore , 196 F.3d 1327 (11th Cir. 1999).....	27
Lewis v. Lewis , 321 F.3d 824 (9th Cir. 2003).....	26
Mahaffey v. Page , 162 F.3d 481 (7th Cir. 1998)...	26, 28, 40, 43
McClain v. Prunty , 217 F.3d 1209 (9th Cir. 2000) ...	17, 28, 43
McDonnell Douglas v. Green , 411 U.S. 792, 36 L.Ed.2d 668, 93 S.Ct. 1817 (1973).....	passim
Midstate Co. v. Penna. Co. , 320 U.S. 356, 64 S.Ct. 128 (1943)	42
Miller-El v. Cockrell , 537 U.S. 322, 123 S.Ct. 1029 (2003)	passim
Overton v. Newton , 295 F.3d 270 (2d Cir. 2002).....	25
Paulino v. Castro , 371 F.3d 1083 (9th Cir. 2004)....	10, 26, 40
People v. Arias (1996) 13 Cal.4th 92 [51 Cal.Rptr.2d 770, 913 P.2d 980].....	44

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES – Continued

	Page
People v. Box (2000) 23 Cal.3d 1153 [99 Cal.Rptr.2d 69, 5 P.3d 130].....	29
People v. Crittenden (1994) 9 Cal.4th 83 [36 Cal.Rptr.2d 474, 885 P.2d 887]	30
People v. Fuentes (1991) 54 Cal.3d 707 [286 Cal.Rptr. 792, 812 P.2d 75].....	6
People v. Howard (1992) 1 Cal.4th 1132 [5 Cal.Rptr.2d 268, 824 P.2d 1315]	30
People v. (James) Johnson (1989) 47 Cal.3d 1194 [255 Cal.Rptr. 569, 767 P.2d 1047]	44, 45
People v. Reynoso (2003) 31 Cal.4th 903 [3 Cal.Rptr.3d 769, 74 P.3d 852]	44
People v. Sanders (1990) 51 Cal.3d 471 [273 Cal.Rptr. 537, 797 P.2d 561].....	29
People v. Snow (1987) 44 Cal.3d 216 [242 Cal.Rptr. 477, 746 P.2d 452].....	6
People v. Wheeler (1979) 22 Cal.3d 258 [148 Cal.Rptr. 890, 583 P.2d 748].....	3
Powers v. Ohio , 489 U.S. 400, 113 L.Ed.2d 411, 111 S.Ct. 1364 (1991)	11
Purkett v. Elem , 514 U.S. 765, 131 L.Ed.2d 834, 115 S.Ct. 1769 (1995)	passim
Riley v. Taylor , 277 F.3d 261 (3d Cir. 1999)	17, 40
Simmons v. Beyer , 44 F.3d 1160 (3d Cir. 1995).....	28
Splunge v. Clark , 960 F.2d 705 (7th Cir. 1992).....	28
St. Mary's Honor Center v. Hicks , 509 U.S. 502, 125 L.Ed.2d 407, 113 S.Ct. 2742 (1993)	36

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES – Continued

	Page
State v. Holloway , 209 Conn. 636 [553 A.2d 166, 171-172] (1989)	27
State v. Henderson , 764 P.2d 602 (Or. App. 1988).....	27
State v. Slappy (Fla. 1988) 522 So.2d 18.....	27
Stubbs v. Gomez , 189 F.3d 1099 (9th Cir. 1999) ...	28, 30, 40
Swierkiewicz v. Sorema , 534 U.S. 506, 152 L.Ed.2d 1, 122 S.Ct. 992 (2002)	19, 36, 37
Tankleff v. Senkowski , 135 F.3d 235 (2d Cir. 1998)	25, 28
Teamsters v. United States , 431 U.S. 324, 52 L.Ed.2d 396, 97 S.Ct. 1843 (1977)	33
Texas Dept. of Community Affairs v. Burdine , 450 U.S. 248, 67 L.Ed.2d 207, 101 S.Ct. 1089 (1981)	34, 35, 41, 43
U.S. Xpress Enterprises v. J. B. Hunt Transport Co. , 320 F.2d 809 (8th Cir. 2003).....	26
Ulster County Court v. Allen , 442 U.S. 140, 60 L.Ed.2d 777, 99 S.Ct. 2213 (1979).....	13, 15, 21, 24
United States v. Alanis , 335 F.3d 965 (9th Cir. 2003).....	44
United States v. Allen-Brown , 243 F.3d 1293 (11th Cir. 2001).....	25
United States v. Alvarado , 923 F.2d 253 (2d Cir. 1991).....	17, 28, 43
United States v. Armstrong , 517 U.S. 456, 134 L.Ed.2d 687, 116 S.Ct. 1480 (1996)	24
United States v. Bishop , 959 F.2d 810 (9th Cir. 1992).....	17
United States v. Chalan , 812 F.2d 1302 (10th Cir. 1989).....	28, 43

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES – Continued

	Page
United States v. Chinchilla , 874 F.2d 695 (9th Cir. 1989).....	28
United States v. Hatchett , 918 F.2d 631 (6th Cir. 1990).....	43
United States v. Pherigo , 327 F.3d 690 (8th Cir. 2003).....	28
United States v. Wynn , 20 F.Supp.2d 7 (D.D.C. 1997).....	43
United States Postal Service Bd. of Governors v. Aikens , 460 U.S. 711, 103 S.Ct. 1478, 75 L.Ed.2d 403 (1983)	22, 40
Valdez v. People , 966 P.2d 587 (Colo. 1998).....	27
Wade v. Terhune , 202 F.2d 1190 (9th Cir. 2000).....	26

STATUTES

United States Constitution

Fifth Amendment.....	42
Fourteenth Amendment	1

United States Code

28 U.S.C. § 1257(a)	1
Title VII, Civil Rights Act of 1964, 42 U.S.C. § 2000 et seq.	passim

California Penal Code

§ 187	1
§ 273ab	1

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES – Continued

Page

OTHER AUTHORITIES

Weinstein’s Federal Evidence (2d ed.) § 301.02[1].....	23
9 Wigmore, Evidence , § 2494	23, 34, 35

OPINIONS BELOW

The decision of the California Supreme Court, 30 Cal.4th 1302, 1 Cal.Rptr.3d 1, 71 P.3d 270 (2003), is at p. 114 of the Joint Appendix (Jt. App.). The first decision of the California Court of Appeal, 88 Cal.App.4th 318, 105 Cal.Rptr.2d 717 (1st App. Dist. 2001), is at Jt. App. 59. The second decision of the California Court of Appeal, after this Court dismissed the prior case for lack of jurisdiction, is at Jt. App. 179. The subsequent order by the California Supreme Court, denying review is at Jt. App. 215. The decisions of the trial court, contained in oral remarks from the bench, are at Jt. App. 4-11.

JURISDICTION

Jurisdiction arises under 28 U.S.C. § 1257(a).

CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISION INVOLVED

The Fourteenth Amendment states in pertinent part, “Nor shall any state . . . deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.”

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Nature of the Alleged Offense

Petitioner Jay Shawn Johnson was convicted in 1998 of second degree murder, California Penal Code § 187, and assault on child, resulting in death, Calif. Penal Code § 273ab. Petitioner, an African-American (black) man, caused the death of Janika Price, the 18-month old daughter of his white girlfriend and another man. The issue at trial was whether the homicide was accidental or malicious.

The prosecution theory was that Petitioner maliciously punched or kicked the child while she was in the bedroom of their home. As part of his circumstantial evidence case, the prosecutor relied upon a quantity of bad character evidence, some of which the Court of Appeal found inadmissible. (Jt. App. 88-97, 201-214) The defense theory was that the death was accidental. Petitioner admitted causing the child's death. He bumped her with his foot while he and his two young sons were moving about the bedroom. The child started wheezing and had trouble breathing. The child's mother took the child into the next room. Petitioner gave the child some water. She drank it. When she gasped for breath, Petitioner attempted to perform cardio-pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) by striking the child hard on the chest, but he struck too hard. Petitioner defended on the ground that his negligent administration of CPR was the cause of death.¹

Litigation of The Batson Issues In The Courts Below

California usually, as here, impanels a jury in the following manner: From among the pool of prospective jurors, 12 are seated in the jury box. The prosecution and defense are provided with copies of written questionnaires completed by the jurors. After the prospective jurors have been questioned, the trial judge hears and decides any challenges for cause. If jurors are disqualified for cause, their seats are refilled, and the replacements are similarly questioned and challenged for cause. Then the prosecution or defense may exercise peremptory challenges. If less than 12 jurors remain, additional jurors are seated to bring the total to 12. After questioning and challenges for cause, either side may exercise peremptory challenges against the newly called prospective jurors or those who were called earlier. This process continues until both sides accept 12 jurors and some alternates (here, three).

¹ This conviction was after a third trial. The first trial terminated in a mistrial. The second trial resulted in a conviction, but it was reversed in case #A076360, unpublished opinion filed July 27, 1998, for instructional errors regarding concurrent cause.

In the instant case, 43 jurors were passed for cause. Three (3) were African-American (black). The prosecution peremptorily challenged all three of the black jurors, and nine of the 40 non-black jurors, for a total of 12. The defense peremptorily challenged 16 prospective jurors. (Jt. App. 13) The resulting jury, including alternates, was all white (with one Spanish-surnamed person).

The prosecutor exercised his 4th peremptory challenge against Clodette Turner and his 8th peremptory challenge against Sara Edwards, who were both black. He challenged Ms. Edwards immediately after the trial court voir dired her. Defense counsel then objected² on the ground that these peremptory challenges had been made on the basis of race.³ The prosecutor did not respond to this objection or volunteer any explanation of these challenges.

The trial court rejected this first challenge on the ground that there had not “been shown a strong likelihood that the exercise of the peremptory challenges” had been based on race. The trial court, however, expressly admonished the prosecutor “that we are very close.” (Jt. App. 6)

Notwithstanding that admonition, the prosecutor exercised his 12th and final peremptory challenge to remove the third and last black prospective juror, Ruby Lanere, immediately after her voir dire concluded. The defense renewed its objection, noting that the prosecutor had now removed all three black jurors who had been passed for cause. The defense contended that “the exercise of the peremptory challenges in this way showed or reflected a systematic attempt by the prosecution to exclude African-Americans from this jury panel.” (Jt. App. 7-8) Again, the prosecutor did not offer explanations.

² Defense counsel cited People v. Wheeler, 22 Cal.3d 258 (1979), the California equivalent of Batson. This was sufficient to raise a Batson claim. Ford v. Georgia, 498 U.S. 411, 418-19, 112 L.Ed.2d 935, 111 S.Ct. 850 (1991).

³ There was brief confusion as to whether a third juror, Bernice Lafall, was African-American. The parties agreed she was Indian. She was dropped from the Wheeler/Batson motion.

The trial court declined to “make a prima facie finding.” (Jt. App. 8-11) Its ruling focused on whether the peremptory challenges were “justified.” Although the prosecutor had not offered any explanation for his challenge to Ms. Lanere, the trial court commented on Ms. Lanere’s written questionnaire and verbal responses, and concluded those responses “would have justified a peremptory challenge.” (Jt. App. 9)⁴ Similarly, although the prosecutor had not explained his earlier challenge to Ms. Edwards, the trial court commented on Ms. Edwards’ questionnaire and statements in court.⁵ It concluded, “[w]ith regard to Ms. Edwards, the Court felt there was sufficient reason . . . to justify the exercise of the peremptory challenge.” (Jt. App. 10)

Neither the prosecutor nor the trial court said anything about the third black juror, Ms. Turner. The trial court then asked the prosecutor if he “wish[ed] to make a further record.” He declined. (Jt. App. 11)

⁴ The trial court articulated two possible justifications for the challenge against Ms. Lanere: (1) she had a sister who had been arrested on drug charges, and (2) her answers indicated that she had difficulty understanding some of the questions. (Jt. App. 8-9)

⁵ The trial judge noted two possible justifications for a peremptory challenge to Ms. Edwards: (1) her questionnaire had failed to mention that thirty years earlier “a parent had a robbery or arrest” and (2) she expressed concern about whether she could be fair in a child abuse case, indicating an inclination to favor the prosecution. (Jt. App. 10)

Although at trial, the prosecutor carefully avoided explaining his challenges, at the California Court of Appeal the state’s appellate counsel was quite effusive. The state’s brief identified numerous “grounds upon which the prosecutor might reasonably have challenged” the jurors in question, although there were no assertions about what the prosecutor’s actual motives were two years earlier.⁶

The state’s appellate brief identified two supposed “permissible reason[s]” or “race-neutral justifications” for objecting to prospective juror Clodette Turner,⁷ five supposed permissible reasons for challenging Sara Edwards,⁸ and eight supposed permissible reasons for challenging Ruby Lanere.⁹ The state did not, however, actually assert ⁶ Respondent’s Brief, People v. Johnson, California Court of Appeal, No. A085450, 1st Dist., Div. 2, p. 40 (emphasis added).

⁷ (1) Clodette Turner “neglected to answer questions 57 and 58 on the questionnaire, which inquired as to her views on prosecutors and defense attorneys. . . . The mistaken failure to complete the questionnaire betrays an ‘inattention to detail’ that justifies the exercise of a peremptory challenge.” (2) Because she was childless, “the district attorney reasonably could have feared that she would be insufficiently sympathetic to the victim – a 19-month old child.” (Id. at 40).

⁸ (1) Sara Edwards was “uncertain whether she could be ‘fair and impartial,’ given the nature of the charges . . . [she] confessed that she had ‘no feelings one way or the other about sitting as a juror until I found out who the victim was. I am deeply saddened that it was an eighteen month old child.’” (emphasis in original) (2) “[Edwards] was evasive. She did not answer question 30 on the questionnaire. . . .” (3) “[T]he juror’s parent had been arrested for robbery over 35 years ago. . . . The arrest of a close relative is an acceptable race-neutral justification for a peremptory challenge.” (4) “Race-neutral justifications for excusing [Edwards] are apparent from her questionnaire and her voir dire. She . . . was childless.” (5) “She . . . had had ‘legal training’ or had taken a law course. . . . Legal training is a legitimate, race-neutral ground.” (Id. at 41-42).

⁹ (1) Ruby Lanere “ha[d] a sister who had been arrested.” (2) “[S]he . . . [had] a son close in age to [Johnson].” (3) “She stated that she could
(Continued on following page)

(or deny) that any of the 15 recited “permissible reasons” constituted the prosecutor’s actual motive at trial. Moreover, several such “permissible reasons,” if anything, suggested possible bias in favor of the state. A prosecution challenge on such basis is rather unlikely.

A divided state Court of Appeal ruled by a vote of 2-1 that Johnson had established a prima facie case under Batson, and reversed his conviction¹⁰ relying on several factors: (i) The prosecutor peremptorily challenged all three black potential jurors. (ii) The trial court erred when it stated that the standard for a prima facie case was a “strong likelihood” of discrimination. Instead, the correct test is the less stringent standard of an “inference” of discrimination under Batson. Because the trial court applied an incorrect legal standard, its ruling was not entitled to deference, and the Court of Appeal could review the issue de novo. (iii) There was no race-neutral reason on not follow the instructions.” (4) “Like [Edwards], she did not know whether she could be fair, given the nature of the charges. . . .” (Edwards indicated she was biased in favor of the prosecution because the victim was an eighteen month old child.) (5) “Her ability was also compromised . . . by her knowledge that she or a family member or close friend had been the victim of a crime where the suspect was African-American.” (6) “Evidence of domestic abuse, she continued, also would affect her impartiality.” (Johnson had been convicted of abusing the girlfriend who was the mother of the victim. Any resulting bias by this juror would have been in favor of the prosecution.) (7) Her ability to be fair, she admitted, was affected by “the issue of interracial relationships – ‘interracial relations is different. . . .’ What affected her ability to be impartial, in other words, was the ‘he is Black and she is not.’ Opinions on racial issues, too, are race-neutral justifications for a challenge.” (8) “[T]he juror’s poor command of the language and potential difficulty understanding the proceedings. . . .” (Id. at 42-43).

¹⁰ In California, when a trial court erroneously fails to find a prima facie case under Batson, the remedy is reversal. People v. Fuentes (1991) 54 Cal.3d 707, 721 [286 Cal.Rptr. 792, 812 P.2d 75]; People v. Snow (1987) 44 Cal.3d 216, 226-227 [242 Cal.Rptr. 477, 746 P.2d 452].

the record why two of the three black jurors, Clodette Turner and Sara Edwards, would not be suitable. (iv) The supposed reasons why the prosecutor challenged them were pretextual. Those same reasons applied to several white jurors whom the prosecutor accepted.¹¹ (Jt. App. 59-88)

The California Supreme Court, by a vote of 5-2, reversed the Court of Appeal, and affirmed the trial court decision that Johnson had not established a prima facie Batson case. The majority held: (i) To establish a prima facie case under Batson, a party must demonstrate “that it is more likely than not that the other party’s peremptory challenges, if unexplained, were based on impermissible group bias.” People v. Johnson, 30 Cal.4th at 1306. (Jt. App. 116) (ii) Where a trial judge, relying on such a standard, has concluded that there was no prima facie case, affirmance on appeal is required “if the record suggests grounds on which the prosecutor might reasonably have challenged the jurors.” Id., 30 Cal.4th at 1325. (Jt. App. 197, emphasis added) (iii) A defendant is barred from arguing on appeal that the grounds claimed to have been relied upon by the prosecutor were pretextual, because those claimed grounds equally apply to white jurors who were accepted. Id., 30 Cal.4th at 1318-1324. (Jt. App. 116, 135)

Two of the seven California Supreme Court justices dissented. They maintained that to establish a prima facie case an objector need only identify evidence which would permit an inference of discrimination. Such a prima facie case was established here, because the prosecutor perempted all three black jurors, and because, for two of those

¹¹ The Court of Appeal also concluded that the trial court had erred in admitting certain highly prejudicial prosecution evidence, but it did not overturn the conviction on that basis. (Jt. App. 88-97)

jurors, there is nothing on the record showing why they would not be acceptable. People v. Johnson, 30 Cal.4th at 1333, 1340, 1341. (Jt. App. 152-153, 159, 171-172)

Last term, on December 1, 2003 this Court granted certiorari. Johnson v. California, case No. 03-6539. However, on May 3, 2004, after oral argument, this Court dismissed the case, due to the lack of a final state court judgment. Johnson v. California, ___ U.S. ___, 124 S.Ct. 1833 (2004). (Jt. App. 174) On August 5, 2004 the state Court of Appeal decided the remaining issues and affirmed Petitioner's conviction. (Jt. App. 179) On October 20, 2004 the California Supreme Court denied discretionary review. (Jt. App. 215) On January 10, 2005 this Court granted certiorari again. (Jt. App. 216)

SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT

(1) California's test for a prima facie case of racial discrimination in jury selection under Batson v. Kentucky, 476 U.S. 79 (1986), requires a much higher level of proof of discrimination at the prima facie stage than does Batson. California requires proof at the prima facie stage that discrimination was "more likely than not," meaning proof by a preponderance of the evidence that discrimination occurred. Batson merely requires that an objector "raise an inference" of discrimination. 476 U.S. at 96. California's test is inconsistent with Batson for many reasons:

(a) California's requirement that an objector prove discriminatory motive by a preponderance of the evidence at the prima facie stage requires proof on the merits in order to establish a prima facie case. That undermines the whole meaning of prima facie case, which is to make a preliminary showing, and to impose a burden less demanding than proving the merits of the case.

(b) The California test confuses the prima facie stage and the merits stage of a Batson analysis when it requires the objector, at what should be the prima facie stage, to prove that discrimination was “more likely than not.” This requirement of merits-level proof at the preliminary stage is premature and improper. At that stage, the objector does not have the critical evidence needed to prove his case on the merits, namely, the prosecutor’s proffered reasons for the disputed challenges. This is like requiring a civil plaintiff to prove his case without discovery.

(c) The conflation of the first and third steps of Batson analysis violates the rule of Purkett v. Elem, 515 U.S. 765 (1995) that the Batson steps must be considered separately.

(d) The court below claimed that its prima facie test is consistent with this Court’s test for a prima facie case in Title VII employment cases. That court is incorrect. (i) A Title VII plaintiff need not show that discrimination is more likely than not to create a prima facie case. (ii) The threshold for a prima facie Batson violation should be lower than that for a prima facie Title VII violation.

(2) The correct test for a prima facie case of discrimination under Batson is to identify sufficient evidence in the record to permit a finding that the other party’s peremptory challenges, if unexplained, were based on impermissible group bias. This evidentiary standard is generally referred to as a permissive inference.

The purpose of a prima facie case under Batson is to help courts and parties answer, not to improperly evade, the ultimate question of discrimination. That purpose will only be satisfied when the objector and the trial court can learn the reasons behind the challenges to the minority jurors whenever there is sufficient evidence to permit an inference of discrimination. Batson’s traditional permissive inference standard assures such inquiry.

The federal and state courts utilize a permissive inference threshold in interpreting and enforcing Batson. Under this standard, the federal courts regularly find a prima facie case whenever (a) a party peremptorily challenges all of two or more members of a protected group, or (b) whenever a party challenges two or more members of a protected group, and thereby challenges a majority of that group.

(3) On appeal, in litigating the denial of a prima facie case, the California court erroneously allows the state to speculate as to “possible” reasons for the prosecutor’s challenges, even though he never stated his actual reasons. Such speculation is improper. As Judge Kozinski held in Paulino v. Castro, 371 F.3d 1083, 1090 (9th Cir. 2004), it does not matter that the prosecutor might have had good reasons; what matters were his actual reasons. Further, the state court compounds this error by one-sidedly prohibiting the defense from rebutting such hypothesized reasons by showing pretext by pointing to evidence regarding comparable jurors of another race who were not challenged.

(4) The Court should find a prima facie Batson violation here. The prosecutor challenged all three African-American jurors, and caused a black defendant, charged with killing his white girlfriend’s child, to be tried by an all-white jury. The prosecutor did not articulate his actual reasons for these challenges. The reasons hypothesized for the challenges to two of the black jurors were manifestly pretextual, because they equally applied to several accepted white jurors.

ARGUMENTI. THE CORRECT TEST FOR A PRIMA FACIE CASE OF DISCRIMINATION IN JURY SELECTION IS WHETHER THE EVIDENCE WOULD PERMIT AN INFERENCE OF DISCRIMINATION, NOT CALIFORNIA'S REQUIREMENT THAT THE OBJECTOR MUST PROVE THAT THE EXISTENCE OF A DISCRIMINATORY MOTIVE WAS "MORE LIKELY THAN NOT"*A. Batson Has Established a Method for Identifying and Prohibiting Racial Discrimination in Jury Selection

In Batson v. Kentucky, 476 U.S. 79, 90 L.Ed.2d 69, 106 S.Ct. 1712 (1986), the Court held that a party may prevent racial discrimination in jury selection based on proof that discrimination was occurring in his own trial.

Batson review was designed to serve multiple ends. (i) One purpose is "to protect individual defendants from discrimination in the selection of jurors." Powers v. Ohio, 489 U.S. 400, 406, 113 L.Ed.2d 411, 111 S.Ct. 1364 (1991) (Batson applies to a white defendant). (ii) A second purpose is to enforce the equal protection rights of the jurors themselves. Denial of participation in jury service because of race discriminates against the juror personally. While "[a]n individual juror does not have a right to sit on any particular petit jury, . . . he or she does possess the right not to be excluded from one on account of race." Georgia v. McCollum, 505 U.S. 42, 49, 120 L.Ed.2d 33, 112 S.Ct. 2348 (1992) (Batson applies to challenges by criminal defendants); Powers, 499 U.S. at 409. The harm from such exclusion is manifest. The juror is subjected to open and public racial discrimination. (iii) Third, discriminatory challenges undermine public confidence in the fairness of the jury trial system. Georgia v. McCollum, supra, 505 U.S. at 49.

Batson and its progeny established a three-step test for evaluating a charge of racial discrimination in jury selection. (1) First, the objector must present a prima facie case of discrimination. He presents a prima facie case by showing that the circumstances “raise an inference” of discrimination. Id., 479 U.S. at 93-96.¹² In Miller-El v. Cockrell, 537 U.S. 322, 123 S.Ct. 1029 (2003) the Court explained that the “inference” of discrimination needed for a prima facie case could be shown by statistics, such as where the prosecutor challenged a disproportionate number of minority jurors. (2) Second, if a prima facie case is established, the prosecutor must state the reason for his challenge, and the court must determine if the reason is race-neutral on its face. (3) Third, the trial court determines whether or not the challenge is based on impermissible group bias. Purkett v. Elem, 514 U.S. 765, 767, 131 L.Ed.2d 834, 115 S.Ct. 1769 (1995).

¹² Batson illustrated how to show “inference,” 476 U.S. at 97:

[T]he trial court should consider all relevant circumstances. For example, a “pattern” of strikes against black jurors included in the particular venire might give rise to an inference of discrimination. Similarly, the prosecutor’s questions and statements during voir dire examination and in exercising the challenges may support or refute an inference of discriminatory purpose. These examples are merely illustrative. We have confidence that trial judges, experienced in supervising voir dire, will be able to decide if the circumstances concerning a prosecutor’s use of peremptory challenges create a prima facie case of discrimination against black jurors.

B. When California Requires the Objector at the Prima Facie Stage to Prove by a Preponderance of the Evidence That a Challenge Was Made for a Discriminatory Purpose, It Improperly Applies a Merits Test at the Prima Facie Stage

The court below ruled that a prima facie Batson case can only be established by persuading the trial court to find that the record at the prima facie stage actually establishes discrimination on the merits. It held:

to state a prima facie case, the objector must show that it is more likely than not the other party's peremptory challenges, if unexplained, were based upon impermissible group bias.

People v. Johnson, 30 Cal.4th at 1306. (Jt. App. 116) This test undermines the whole meaning of a prima facie case, which is to make a preliminary showing, not a merits showing. See, e.g., Ulster County Court v. Allen, 442 U.S. 140, 156, 60 L.Ed.2d 777, 99 S.Ct. 2213 (1979).

When the California court held that the objector must show, at the prima facie stage, that discrimination is "more likely than not," it meant: prove that discrimination occurred. Its "more likely than not" test means the objector must show discrimination by the "preponderance of the evidence." People v. Johnson, 30 Cal.4th at 1317 (Jt. App. 133-134) That is, of course, the traditional standard of proof on the merits. Thus, under the California test, what must be proved at the prima facie stage is the existence of discrimination in jury selection – on the merits. Further, under the California test, the objector must make this merits-like showing without knowing, and without any opportunity to attack as pretextual, whatever reasons might be offered for the challenges.¹³

Under the California standard, an objector must twice persuade the trial court, by a preponderance of the evidence, to make findings of discrimination. First, he must do so at step one, the supposed prima facie stage, before any reasons have been given for the peremptory challenges, and when the record is thus incomplete, and without being able to attack as pretextual whatever reasons might be offered for the challenges. Second, if the court makes a prima facie finding, and after reasons are given, the objector must again persuade the court to make the same finding, namely, that discrimination occurred.

Thus, the California test undermines the meaning of a prima facie Batson case, when it requires the objector to satisfy the same burden of proof at the prima facie stage (step one), before he has heard the challenger's reasons, as he must meet at the merits stage (step three), after he has heard the challenger's reasons.

In Purkett v. Elem, 514 U.S. 767, the Court clarified Batson's three-step test for determining when peremptory challenges violate the equal protection clause:

[O]nce the opponent of a peremptory challenge has made out a prima facie case of racial discrimination (step one), the burden of production shifts to the proponent of the strike to come forward with a race-neutral explanation (step two). If a race-neutral explanation is tendered, the trial court must then decide (step three) whether the opponent of the strike has proved purposeful racial discrimination. Hernandez v. New York, 500 U.S. 352, 358-359 (1991) (plurality opinion) id., at 375 (O'Connor, J., concurring in judgment); Batson, supra, at 96-98.

¹³ California similarly requires the objector at the prima facie stage to establish a "legally mandatory [but] rebuttable presumption" of group bias. Id., 30 Cal.4th at 1315. (Jt. App. 130) This suggests the objector's evidence must be so overwhelming as to compel a finding of discrimination as a matter of law if no contrary evidence is presented. This is directly contrary to this Court's rule in Purkett v. Elem, supra.

This test requires separate analysis at each step. In Purkett v. Elem the Court reversed because the circuit court improperly conflated steps two and three. It conflated those steps when it required that the “justification tendered at the second step be not just neutral but also at least minimally persuasive, i.e. ‘plausible.’” Id., 514 U.S. at 768. That conflation was defective. It improperly required the prosecutor to show at step two not only that his reason was race-neutral (the step two requirement) but also that it was plausible and persuasive (the step three issue). Thus, the Court reversed in Purkett v. Elem because the circuit court required too much at step two.

An equivalent, or worse, problem arises under the California test for a prima facie case. That court requires the objector, in order to present a prima facie case, to prove at the first step that it was “more likely than not” that the prosecutor acted with discriminatory intent. That violates the Purkett v. Elem test in several ways.

(i) The requirement to prove discriminatory motive by a preponderance of the evidence at the prima facie stage requires the objector to prove his case on the merits in order to establish a prima facie case. That undermines the whole meaning of prima facie case, which is to make a preliminary showing. Ulster County Court v. Allen, supra.

(ii) Under Purkett v. Elem, the objector does not need to reach the level of proof of discrimination of “more likely than not” until step three. At that step the “trial court then will have the duty to determine if the defendant has established purposeful discrimination.” Batson, 476 U.S.

at 98 (emphasis added). The California test is defective, because it improperly conflates steps one and three.

(iii) Worse, when the California prima facie test requires the objector, at step one, to make the step three showing – namely, prove that discrimination is “more likely than not” – it does so without allowing the objector to have access to the most important piece of information which the objector would ordinarily use at step three, namely, the prosecutor’s purported reason.¹⁴ See Purkett v. Elem, supra. At the prima facie case step, it would be rather difficult for an objector to prove that the reason for the prosecutor’s challenge is “more likely than not” racially-based, if he has not yet been allowed to learn the prosecutor’s claimed reason. Requiring an objector to prove at the first step that discrimination is “more likely than not,” without knowing the prosecutor’s reason, is like requiring a civil plaintiff to prove his case without the critical discovery.

In the large majority of federal Batson cases which have concluded that impermissible discrimination had occurred in jury selection, the pivotal evidence was almost invariably a demonstration that the articulated reason was pretextual: (a) that the articulated reasons rested on an inaccurate description of the excluded juror, (b) that the reasons were inconsistent with the action of the prosecutor in not challenging other similar jurors of a different race,

¹⁴ As Justice Kennard correctly noted in her dissenting opinion, 30 Cal.4th at 1339 (Jt. App. 170):

The threshold for establishing a prima facie case should be relatively low, so that close cases are not decided at the first stage of the inquiry, but only after the trial judge has heard the prosecutor’s explanations and is in a better position to determine the propriety of the challenges . . . [T]he prosecutor’s explanation is often critical to the decision whether the challenge was proper.”

(c) that the reason was inherently implausible, (d) that the reason given was a proxy for race, or (e) that the prosecutor had articulated several different explanations, and the falsity of one account called into question the credibility of the others.¹⁵ See also Miller-El v. Cockrell, supra, 537 U.S. 322, 123 S.Ct. at 1043, where the Court critically noted that “three of the state’s proffered race-neutral rationales for striking African-Americans pertained just as well to some white jurors who were not challenged.”

¹⁵ See, e.g., Ford v. Norris, 67 F.3d 162, 168-169 (8th Cir. 1995) (prosecutor’s answer that he struck a juror because he supposedly was “illiterate” was held pretextual, because the juror’s answer that he does not “read the paper,” but watches television instead, did not support the claim of illiteracy); McClain v. Prunty, 217 F.3d 1209, 1221 (9th Cir. 2000) (prosecutor claimed he challenged black juror because juror said she mistrusted the system, but record did not contain any such statement); Johnson v. Vasquez, 3 F.3d 1327, 1330 (9th Cir. 2003) (prosecutor claimed that he challenged juror because she worked for defense attorney, but there was no such evidence in the record); Davidson v. Harris, 30 F.3d 963 (8th Cir. 1994) (state struck several black jurors on the ground that they had children the same age as the defendant, but two white jurors who had children the same age were not struck); Jones v. Ryan, 987 F.2d 960, 973 (3d Cir. 1993) (same); Jordan v. Lefevre, 206 F.3d 196, 201 (2d Cir. 2000) (prosecutor claimed he challenged black juror because he was young and had no supervisory experience, but accepted white juror who was similarly young and inexperienced); Riley v. Taylor, 277 F.3d 261, 283 (3d Cir. 2001) (prosecutor claimed he challenged black juror because of attitude toward death penalty, but accepted white juror with same attitude); United States v. Bishop, 959 F.2d 820, 826 (9th Cir. 1992) (prosecutor claimed he challenged juror because she lived in a certain neighborhood, but because the population of that neighborhood is overwhelmingly black, that reason was deemed a proxy for race); United States v. Alvarado, 923 F.2d 253, 256 (2d Cir. 1991) (“the relative plausibility or implausibility of each explanation for a particular challenge . . . may strengthen or weaken the assessment of the prosecution’s explanation as to other challenges. . . .”). Collins v. Rice, 348 F.3d 1082, 1095 (9th Cir. 2003) (fact that some of prosecutor’s reasons were unconvincing undermined his credibility).

None of this probative evidence is available when a defendant is seeking to establish a prima facie case. Thus, a requirement that a party prove the existence of intentional discrimination before obtaining access to the critical evidence, namely, the challenger's reasons, would raise serious problems under the due process clause.

Accordingly, the California test improperly short-circuits the required three-step process under Batson and Purkett v. Elem. Just as the Court reversed in Purkett v. Elem because the lower court improperly combined steps two and three of this procedure, the Court should reverse here because the California test improperly conflates steps one and three.

C. Discriminatory Intent Cannot Ordinarily Be Shown Without Hearing the Prosecutor's Reasons

Last term, in case No. 03-6539, we surveyed all decisions reported in Westlaw from January 1, 2002 to March 1, 2004, state and federal, which cited Batson, and identified 84 decisions which contain or refer to a finding of invidious discrimination. In the vast majority of these cases, that finding of discrimination turned on analysis of the challenger's stated reason. We set forth in an Appendix a list of those 84 cases.

In 29 cases the court determined that the challenge was discriminatory because the articulated explanation equally applied to other jurors of a different race or gender who had not been challenged. In 20 cases the court concluded that discrimination had occurred because the articulated explanation rested on a characterization of the voir dire testimony, actions, or background of the disputed juror which was not supported by the record. In 12 cases the court rejected the peremptory challenge because the proffered reason was not race or gender neutral. In 6 decisions the trial court did not accept the proffered explanation because the cited factors had no connection with the issues or parties. In 6 cases the prosecutor failed to question the juror about any facts which underlay the articulated reason. In 4 cases, the articulated reason showed bias in favor of the challenger. In 11 other cases the courts concluded that the proffered explanation was “pretextual.”¹⁶ Only in 4 cases did the evidence which the objecting party had at step one play a substantial role in the ultimate finding of discrimination.

The cases in the Appendix establish that the real purpose of a prima facie Batson finding is to allow the objector to obtain, and the trial court to hear, the challenger’s reason. Because this is akin to a discovery motion, it violates the entire Batson process to require an objector to prove discrimination by a preponderance of the evidence at the prima facie stage, before obtaining discovery, namely, the prosecutor’s claimed reasons. For that would require the objector to try to prove that discrimination was more likely than not before obtaining the evidence needed to prove that discrimination was more likely than not. Such a cart-before-the-horse procedure would violate due process, just as it would violate due process to require a civil plaintiff to prove his case on the merits without discovery. See, e.g., Swierkiewicz v. Sorema, 534 U.S. 506, 511-512, 152 L.Ed.2d 1, 122 S.Ct. 992 (2002).

This survey establishes an additional significant set of facts. The number of disputed peremptory challenges in each of these cases, although sufficient (in conjunction with other information) to permit an inference of discrimination, is rarely so great as to meet California’s “more likely than not” standard.

¹⁶ The number of explanations exceeds the number of cases, because some have multiple explanations for the finding of a Batson violation.

Number of Disputed Peremptory Challenges	Number of Cases
1	26
2	14
3	12
4	7
5	7
6 or more	15

Of these 84 cases¹⁷ where a lower court found discrimination – almost always based on the articulated reason for the challenge – the vast majority would not have met the California prima facie case standard as applied here, namely, that no prima facie case was established, even though the prosecutor challenged all three black jurors. Had California’s standard been in use in the rest of the country, most of these constitutional violations would have escaped undetected and unredressed, because the objectors would not have been allowed to learn or dispute the challengers’ claimed reasons.¹⁸

Because the success of a Batson challenge will rise or fall on hearing the prosecutor’s reason, the goals of Batson will only be realized by broadly construing the responsibility of the trial court to ask for that reason. That will be achieved by retaining the prima facie threshold at the federal “permissive inference” level. However, if the threshold is set at California’s unduly high “more likely than not” level, the chances to hear the challenger’s reason will be minimized, and the goals of Batson will be thwarted.

¹⁷ The total number of decisions included in this table is smaller than the total number of cases surveyed in which Batson violations were found, because not every case identifies the number of peremptories.

¹⁸ There is still another problem when the challenger does not state his reason, namely, that the record is not fully developed for appeal. Without evidence of the challenger’s reason, appellate review is made more difficult, because it is much harder to determine whether the trial court acted properly in rejecting a Batson motion.

D. Under Batson and its Progeny a Prima Facie Case Is Established When There Is Sufficient Evidence to Permit an Inference of Discrimination

The Question Presented is “whether to establish a prima facie case under Batson . . . the objector must show that it is more likely than not that the other party’s peremptory challenges, if unexplained, were based on impermissible group bias?” The answer is “no.” That test, used by California, is incorrect, because it requires the objector to prove his case on the merits at the prima facie stage, without even knowing the challenger’s asserted reasons, which may turn out to be pretextual. Instead, the correct threshold for a prima facie case is that stated by the dissenting opinion in the court below: The objector should adduce evidence sufficient to permit an inference of discrimination. 30 Cal.4th at 1334-1339. (Jt. App. 167-171) Such standard is consistent with the rule in virtually every jurisdiction in the nation except California. (See pp. 25-30, infra.)

The correct rule should be: To establish a prima facie case, the objector should identify sufficient evidence in the record to allow a finding that the peremptory challenges, if unexplained, were based on impermissible group bias. This inference is referred to as a permissive inference. See, e.g., Ulster County v. Allen, supra.

The reasons why the standard for a prima facie case are, and should be, a permissive inference of discrimination are three-fold: First, only Batson's traditional permissive inference standard, and not California's unduly-elevated standard, can assure inquiry into the challenger's reasons when peremptory challenges may be the result of improper discrimination. Second, it is the practice in virtually every jurisdiction, other than California, that a prima facie case may be established by evidence which would support an inference of discrimination. Third, Batson's purpose was to reduce the burden of proof for requiring inquiry as to possible discrimination. However, raising the prima facie threshold from a permissive inference standard to proof that discrimination "more likely than not" actually occurred, as the California court does, would increase that burden of proof, not lower it.

The test, or threshold, for establishing a prima facie Batson case plays a crucial role in eliminating racial discrimination in jury selection. Until a prima facie case is established, no inquiry need be made into reasons for a challenge. Until then, the objector lacks the information needed to show whether a challenge is discriminatory, namely, the claimed reason for a challenge. If the barrier for establishing a prima facie case is set too high, the necessary evidence for evaluating possible discrimination will be absent, and judicial scrutiny of possible discrimination will be unduly reduced. The threshold for establishing a prima facie case should be set relatively low, so close cases are not decided at the first stage of the inquiry, but only after reasons are given and evaluated.

The purpose of a prima facie case under Batson "is to help courts and parties answer, not unnecessarily evade, the ultimate question of discrimination, vel non." Jones v. Plaster, 57 F.3d 417, 421 (4th Cir. 1995), quoting from United States Postal Service Bd. of Governors v. Aikens, 460 U.S. 711, 714, 103 S.Ct. 1478, 75 L.Ed.2d 403 (1983). That purpose will only be satisfied if the objector and the trial court can learn the reasons behind the challenges to the minority jurors whenever there is sufficient evidence to permit an inference of discrimination.

If a party is not discriminating, a simple explanation will suffice, and the case will proceed. The cost of taking a few minutes to obtain the reasons for a challenge is far lower than the cost of allowing a trial to proceed which has been contaminated by racial discrimination.

E. “Inference,” as Used in Other Areas of the Law, and as Understood by the Federal Courts in Interpreting Batson, Refers to a Permissive Inference

1. “Inference” means permissive inference

Batson holds that an objector may establish a prima facie case by adducing evidence sufficient to “raise an inference” of discrimination. The inference established by a Batson prima facie case is merely a permissive inference, not a mandatory inference. That is so, because Batson cannot possibly mean that in order to permit an inference of discrimination, an objector must adduce evidence that, if unrebutted, compels a finding of discrimination.

1. Wigmore states that a prima facie case is most commonly shown by a permissive inference. “[T]he more common meaning of a prima facie case applies ‘where the proponent, having the first duty of producing some evidence in order to pass the judge to the jury, has fulfilled that duty, satisfied the judge, and may properly claim that the jury be allowed to consider his case.’” 9 Wigmore, Evidence (Chadbourn rev.ed. 1981) § 2494, p. 379.

2. Weinstein’s Federal Evidence (2d ed.) similarly makes clear in § 301.02[1] that the standard meaning of “inference” is a “permissive” inference, not a “mandatory” presumption, and that an inference, unlike a presumption, “allows but does not require the trier of fact to infer the elemental fact from proof of the basic one. . . .”

3. In Ulster County Court v. Allen, supra, 442 U.S. at 156-157, the Court distinguished between a permissive inference and a presumption, and explained that, when facts are sufficient to establish a permissive inference, they are sufficient to establish a prima facie case.

The most common evidentiary device is the entirely permissive inference or presumption, which allows – but does not require – the trier of fact to infer the elemental fact from proof by the prosecutor of the basic one and that places no burden of any kind on the defendant. [citation omitted] In that situation the basic fact may constitute prima facie evidence of the elemental fact.

4. In United States v. Armstrong, 517 U.S. 456, 470, 134 L.Ed.2d 687, 116 S.Ct. 1480 (1996), a selective prosecution case, the question was the quantum of evidence needed by a defendant to obtain discovery. The Court held the threshold was “some evidence of differential treatment of similarly situated members of other races,” or “a credible showing of different treatment of similarly situated persons.” (Id., emphasis added) When an objector makes a Batson motion, he similarly seeks discovery, namely, the purported reason for the challenge. If the Armstrong standard of “some evidence,” or a “credible showing” is good enough to obtain discovery in a selective prosecution case, then the Batson standard of “permissive inference” should be good enough to obtain what is often critical discovery in a jury discrimination case.

2. The lower courts have understood Batson's “inference” standard as a permissive inference

The lower courts regularly apply a permissive inference standard in evaluating a prima facie case under Batson: See, e.g., Johnson v. Love, 40 F.3d 658, 665 (3d Cir. 1994) (“whether a prima facie case was present, i.e., whether there is reason to believe that discrimination may have been at work”). In Central Alabama Fair Housing Center v. Lowder Realty, 236 F.3d 629, 636-637 (11th Cir. 2000), the court held the objector:

bears the burden of establishing facts sufficient to support an inference of racial discrimination. . . . an inference of discrimination based on the number of jurors of a particular race may arise when there is a substantial disparity between the percentage of jurors of one race struck and the percentage of their representation on the jury. . . . Thus, the number of jurors of one race struck by the challenged party may be sufficient by itself to establish a prima facie case where a party strikes all or nearly all of the members of one race on a venire. (emphasis added)

C.f., United States v. Allen-Brown, 243 F.3d 1293, 1298 (11th Cir. 2001) (where government opposed defendant’s peremptories of white jurors, court held that Batson “compels the trial court to act if it has a reasonable suspicion that constitutional rights are being violated . . . ” (emphasis added)).¹⁹

¹⁹ And see also Tankleff v. Senkowski, 135 F.3d 235, 249 (2d Cir. 1998) (“[W]here there are only a few members of a racial group on the venire panel and one party strikes each one of them, the inference of discrimination may arise” (emphasis added)); Overton v. Newton, 295 F.3d 270, 279, n. 10 (2d Cir. 2002) (Batson imposes only a “minimal burden . . . on a defendant to make a prima facie showing . . . ”

(Continued on following page)

The Ninth Circuit has unanimously held in five opinions, decided by twelve different judges appointed by four different presidents, that California’s prima facie standard presents an unduly-elevated and improperly-stringent threshold, which conflicts with this Court’s permissive inference test under Batson. Wade v. Terhune, 202 F.2d 1190, 1195 (9th Cir. 2000); Cooperwood v. Cambra, 245 F.3d 1042, 1046 (9th Cir. 2001); Fernandez v. Roe, 286 F.3d 1073, 1076 (9th Cir. 2002); Lewis v. Lewis, 321 F.3d 824, 827 (9th Cir. 2003); Paulino v. Castro, 371 F.3d 1083, 1090 (9th Cir. 2004). For example, it held in Wade v. Terhune, supra, 212 F.2d at 1197:

In our view, the Wheeler “strong likelihood” test for a successful prima facie showing of bias is impermissibly stringent in comparison to the more generous Batson “inference” test. . . . [T]he California Court of Appeal . . . followed the literal language of Wheeler and characterized its test for a prima facie case as “not easy.” . . . We therefore conclude that California courts in following the “strong likelihood” language of Wheeler are not applying the correct legal standard for a prima facie case under Batson.

As shown above, California is not just out of step with the Ninth Circuit. It is out of step with other federal circuits, and with state courts as well.²⁰ For example, in Mahaffey v. Page, 162 F.3d 481, 485 (7th Cir. 1998) (“an inference of discrimination may arise where the prosecutor makes a pattern of strikes against African-American jurors. . . . Such a pattern plainly is evident in the State’s juror challenges here, where the prosecutor excused each and every African-American member of the jury venire. . . . ”); U.S. Xpress Enterprises v. J. B. Hunt Transport Co., 320 F.2d 809 (8th Cir. 2003) (prima facie case when the relevant circumstances of the voir dire support an inference of discriminatory purpose).

²⁰ The California Supreme Court asserted in Johnson that two other states agreed that the necessary “inference” must reach the level
(Continued on following page)

King v. Moore, 196 F.3d 1327 (11th Cir. 1999) the Florida state trial court had found no prima facie case under a test which, like an earlier version of California’s test, required the opponent of a peremptory strike to show a “strong likelihood” of discrimination. The Eleventh Circuit held that this “strong likelihood” threshold was improper, because it was higher than Batson’s threshold, which merely requires the objector to raise an “inference” of improper motive. Id., at 1334.²¹ of “more likely than not.” People v. Johnson, supra, 30 Cal.4th at 1316. (Jt. App. 132) Presumably, it failed to find support from the other 48 states. In any event, the dissent in Johnson dispelled reliance on either of those states. Id., 30 Cal.4th at 1335-1336 (Jt. App. 163) (Kennard, J. dissenting). For example, Connecticut first adopted and then rejected a preponderance standard. Its current rule is that a prima facie case is established when the defendant is a member of a racially cognizable group and the defendant objects to the prosecutor’s challenges to members of the defendant’s race. State v. Holloway, 209 Conn. 636, [553 A.2d 166, 171-172] (1989). This threshold is distinctly lower than that which Petitioner proposes here.

Decisions from other state courts support Petitioner including, e.g., Valdez v. People, 966 P.2d 587, 590 (Colo. 1998) (“the defendant is not required to prove by a preponderance of the evidence that discrimination occurred. Rather the defendant must present evidence sufficient to raise an inference that discrimination occurred.”); Conerly v. State, 544 So.2d 1370, 1372 (Miss. 1989) (“inference” of discrimination arises under Batson when prosecutor strikes five of six black jurors); State v. Henderson, 764 P.2d 602, 604 (Or. App. 1988) (“inference” sufficient to establish a prima facie case arises when prosecutor strikes the only black juror in case with a black defendant).

²¹ In State v. Slappy (Fla. 1988) 522 So.2d 18, 20-21, the Florida Supreme Court substantially relaxed its definition of the prima facie standard to bring it in line with Batson. It held, 522 So.2d at 22: “any doubt as to whether the complaining party has met its initial burden should be resolved in that party’s favor. If we are to err at all, it must be in the way least likely to allow discrimination.”

3. The federal courts regularly find a prima facie case when the challenger peremptes all two or more members of a protected group, or when he peremptes the majority of a protected group

The federal courts, following Batson's permissive inference standard, regularly find a prima facie case of group bias (a) when the prosecutor strikes all two or more members of the defendant's racial group, leaving no jurors remaining from that group, or (b) when a party, in making two or more challenges to minority jurors, excludes the majority of the members of a protected group.²²

²² Tankleff v. Senkowski, 135 F.3d 235, 249 (2d Cir. 1998) (strikes of all three blacks); United States v. Alvarado, 923 F.2d 253, 255 (2d Cir. 1991) (strikes of four of seven minority jurors); Simmons v. Beyer, 44 F.3d 1160, 1167 (3d Cir. 1995) (strikes of all three blacks); Splunge v. Clark, 960 F.2d 705, 707 (7th Cir. 1992) (strikes of both blacks); Mahaffey v. Page, 162 F.3d 481, 485 (7th Cir. 1998); United States v. Pherigo, 327 F.3d 690, 695 (8th Cir. 2003) (prima facie case where prosecutor struck only two black jurors); McClain v. Prunty, 217 F.3d 1209 (9th Cir. 2000) (strikes of all three black jurors); Stubbs v. Gomez, 189 F.3d 1099 (9th Cir. 1999) (California state court violated Batson in failing to determine that strikes of all three black jurors established a prima facie case); United States v. Chinchilla, 874 F.2d 695, 698 (9th Cir. 1989) (strikes of all two Hispanics); United States v. Chalan, 812 F.2d 1302, 1312 (10th Cir. 1989) (prima facie case where government struck three of four native Americans for cause, and then struck last native American peremptorily; "If all the jurors of a defendant's race are excluded from the jury, we believe that there is a substantial risk that the government excluded the jurors because of their race."); Central Ala. Fair Housing Center v. Lowder Realty, supra, 236 F.3d at 637 (the number of jurors of one race struck by the challenged party may be sufficient by itself to establish a prima facie case where a party strikes all or nearly all of the members of one race on a venire").

F. A Review of California Cases Shows that the California Standard Presents a Substantially Higher Threshold for a Prima Facie Case than the Batson Inference Standard

California cases establish that California’s current “more likely than not” standard, or its predecessor, the “strong likelihood” standard, in effect at the time of Petitioner’s trial in 1998,²³ results in setting the prima facie bar much higher than the federal courts set their prima facie bar. As a result, California courts fail to inquire as to the prosecutor’s reasons for challenges to minority jurors under circumstances when virtually every other court in the country would make such inquiry. This allows parties to get away with discrimination in California, when they could not anywhere else.

In People v. Sanders (1990) 51 Cal.3d 471, 500-501 [273 Cal.Rptr. 537, 797 P.2d 561] the prosecutor peremptorily challenged all four prospective Hispanic jurors. The California Supreme Court refused to find a prima facie case: “Although removal of all members of a certain group may give rise to an inference of impropriety (Wheeler, supra, 22 Cal.3d at 280), we cannot say this factor was dispositive on the record. . . .” Even though the defendant had established an “inference” of discrimination, he had not established the necessary “strong likelihood” or “dispositive” inference of discrimination.

²³ Earlier California cases distinguished between the more stringent “strong likelihood” threshold and the less-stringent “inference” threshold, and chose to apply the former, rather than the latter. See People v. Box (2000) 23 Cal.3d 1153, 1188, n. 7 [99 Cal.Rptr.2d 69, 5 P.3d 130]. Subsequent to Petitioner’s trial, the California court modified its position and perhaps rewrote history a bit, and now deems all these formulations of this test – “inference,” “strong likelihood,” “more likely than not,” “preponderance of the evidence,” “dispositive” inference, “conclusive” inference, and “mandatory [but] rebuttable presumption” – to be equivalent. People v. Johnson, supra, 30 Cal.4th at 1312-1318 (Jt. App. 126-128, 133-134) That court claims all these formulations satisfy Batson. It makes no claim that any independent state law applies. Because the California court now asserts that all these formulations are identical, Petitioner assumes, for the purposes of this argument, that the earlier strong likelihood standard is the same as the standard stated here.

In People v. Howard (1992) 1 Cal.4th 1132, 1154-1156 [5 Cal.Rptr.2d 268, 824 P.2d 1315], the prosecutor peremptoried the only two prospective black jurors. No prima facie case was found. In affirming, the California court held “although the removal of all members of a certain group may give rise to an inference of impropriety, especially when the defendant belongs to the same group, the inference is not conclusive.” Id. Thus, although the elimination of all the black jurors created an “inference” of racial discrimination, it did not rise to the required level of a “strong likelihood” or a “conclusive” inference needed for a prima facie case. Accord: People v. Crittenden (1994) 9 Cal.4th 83, 117-119 [36 Cal.Rptr.2d 474, 885 P.2d 887]: “the prosecutor’s excusal of all members of a particular group may give rise to an inference of impropriety, especially if the defendant belongs to the same group. [T]hat inference, as we have observed, is not dispositive.”²⁴

The California Supreme Court held here that its “strong likelihood” standard required proof that discrimination was “more likely than not.” 30 Cal.4th at 1306 (Jt. App. 116, 135) It defines that standard as requiring proof of discrimination by a preponderance of the evidence, 30 Cal.4th at 1317 (Jt. App. 133-134), and as requiring proof of a “legally mandatory [but] rebuttable presumption.” 30

²⁴ See also Stubbs v. Gomez, 189 F.3d 1099 (9th Cir. 1999) (California state courts refused to find a prima facie case even though prosecutor perempted all three black jurors; on federal habeas corpus, district court found a prima facie case, directed prosecutor to state reasons, and found those reasons race-neutral).

Cal.4th at 1315. (Jt. App. 130) It held that its “more likely than not” standard was not satisfied in this case even though the prosecutor peremptoried all three black jurors in a case where a black defendant was charged with killing his white girlfriend’s child.

These cases show how California’s prima facie threshold is improperly elevated far above that established by Batson and its progeny. Contrary to established practice in essentially all other jurisdictions, California refuses to find a prima facie case, or to make inquiry of the prosecutor, even when he peremptorys all two, all three, or even all four members of a protected group. Accordingly, California’s “more likely than not” prima facie standard should be deemed to violate the rule of Batson.

G. Title VII Standards Do Not Support the Decision of the Court below

The state court held here that the threshold for a prima facie Batson case is proof that discrimination is “more likely than not,” based upon the following syllogism: Batson adopts the requirement in Title VII employment cases of initially requiring a prima facie case of discrimination. Title VII cases supposedly require a finding of discrimination to establish a prima facie case. Ergo, Batson cases require proof of discrimination by a preponderance of the evidence (“more likely than not”) to present a prima facie case. People v. Johnson, 30 Cal.4th at 1311, 1314 (Jt. App. 123, 129)

The syllogism is inaccurate for two reasons. (i) Title VII cases do not require proving the existence of discrimination to create a prima facie case. (ii) In any event, less evidence is required to establish a prima facie case under Batson than under Title VII.

1. Title VII cases do not require proof that discrimination was more likely than not to create a prima facie case

The holding of the California Supreme Court is based on a fundamental misunderstanding of this Court's Title VII decisions. In a Title VII case a plaintiff emphatically is not required, in order to create a prima facie case, to show by a preponderance of the evidence that the employer engaged in discrimination.

In analyzing claims of employment discrimination under McDonnell Douglas v. Green, 411 U.S. 792, 36 L.Ed.2d 668, 93 S.Ct. 1817 (1973), courts use the three-step methodology upon which Batson is modeled, namely, (1) the plaintiff must establish a prima facie case; (2) the defendant employer states its reason for its decision; (3) the trier of fact determines whether the employer treated plaintiff less favorably because of impermissible factors. Furnco Construction Corp. v. Waters, 438 U.S. 567, 575-577, 57 L.Ed.2d 957, 98 S.Ct. 2943 (1978).

In Furnco this Court reversed a lower court decision for confusing the first and third steps of the McDonnell Douglas analysis. The lower court, Furnco held, "went awry . . . in apparently equating a prima facie showing under McDonnell Douglas with an ultimate finding of fact as to the discriminatory refusal to hire under Title VII; the two are quite different. . . ." 438 U.S. at 576. This is essentially the same error which the California court committed here. Under McDonnell Douglas and Furnco a prima facie case arises not because the plaintiff caused the trier of fact actually to make a finding that the defendant's actions (to the extent they remain unexplained) were indeed discriminatory, but because the plaintiff adduced enough evidence to permit such an inference.

This Court has repeatedly held in Title VII cases that evidence from which the trier of fact could infer the existence of a discriminatory motive (a permissive inference) is sufficient to create a prima facie case under McDonnell Douglas. A plaintiff can meet his initial burden of establishing a prima facie case by “showing actions taken by the employer from which one can infer, if such actions remain unexplained, that it is more likely than not that such actions were based on a discriminatory criterion illegal under the Act.” Furnco Construction Co., supra, 438 U.S. at 576 (quoting McDonnell Douglas). Thus, the McDonnell Douglas and Furnco test requires a permissive inference but no more.²⁵ Under this standard, the burden on the plaintiff is to identify evidence which allows a court to “infer” that discrimination occurred.²⁶

This McDonnell Douglas-Furnco Title VII prima facie standard is very different from the rule adopted by the court below, which required the objecting party at the prima facie stage to prove by a preponderance of the evidence that discrimination actually occurred. In Teamsters v. United States, 431 U.S. 324, 358, 52 L.Ed.2d 396, 97 S.Ct. 1843 (1977), this Court made clear that a plaintiff

²⁵ McDonnell Douglas established a four-part formula deemed sufficient per se to create a prima facie case:

This may be done by showing (i) that [the complainant] belongs to a racial minority; (ii) that he applied and was qualified for a job for which the employer was seeking applicants; (iii) that, despite his qualifications, he was rejected; and (iv) that, after his rejection, the position remained open and the employer continued to seek applicants from persons of complainant’s qualifications.

411 U.S. at 802. This evidence is not so overwhelming that it would compel a trier of fact to conclude that discrimination had occurred.

²⁶ Under Furnco Construction the phrase “more likely than not” does not describe the strength of the evidence needed to establish the plaintiff’s inference. Instead, the phrase “more likely than not” characterizes what the trier of fact may find if it accepts plaintiff’s inference, namely, that discrimination was more likely than not.

can create a prima facie case with an “initial showing [that] justified the inference that the minority applicant was denied employment opportunity for reasons prohibited by Title VII” (emphasis added).

In arriving at its conclusion that Batson requires that an objector prove the existence of discrimination in order to establish a prima facie case, the California Supreme Court relied largely on a single sentence in Wigmore’s Evidence. The court below reasoned as follows: (1) Footnotes 18 and 20 in Batson refer to the Title VII decision in Texas Dept. of Community Affairs v. Burdine, 450 U.S. 248, 67 L.Ed.2d 207, 101 S.Ct. 1089 (1981), and Burdine is “one of the cases cited in Batson.” (2) Footnote 7 in Burdine, which is not the passage quoted in Batson, in turn refers to section 2494 in Wigmore’s Evidence. (3) Section 2494 in Wigmore’s Evidence contains a sentence – not quoted in either Batson or Burdine – which purportedly states that the type of prima facie case created in a Title VII case must be based on “strong evidence” which compels the very conclusion mandated by the presumption. “Thus,” the court below reasoned, “Batson permits a court to require . . . [such] ‘strong evidence.’” People v. Johnson, 30 Cal.4th 1314-1316. (Jt. App. 129-131)

Neither the meaning of Batson or Burdine, nor that of any decision of this Court, can be divined in this extraordinarily strained manner. None of the members of the Court who joined the decision in Batson or Burdine could possibly have understood they were endorsing the contents of section 2494, as defining what needed to be shown for a prima facie case.²⁷

²⁷ Section 2494 emphatically does not require “strong evidence” to create a mandatory inference. The section in question states that a prima facie case creates a mandatory inference

(Continued on following page)

The court below mischaracterized footnote 7 in Burdine as stating that a Title VII plaintiff seeking to create a prima facie case must adduce evidence so overwhelming that a trier of fact would be obligated to make a finding of discrimination. People v. Johnson, 30 Cal.4th 1314-1316. (Jt. App. 129-131) That footnote in Burdine, 450 U.S. at 254, n. 7, actually reads:

The phrase “prima facie case” may denote not only the establishment of a legally mandatory, rebuttable presumption, but also may be used by the courts to describe the plaintiff’s burden of producing enough evidence to permit the trier of fact to infer the fact at issue. . . . McDonnell Douglas should have made it apparent that in the Title VII context we use “prima facie case” in the former sense.

However, this footnote only concerns the consequence of creating a Title VII prima facie case, not the type or quantity of evidence needed to do so. A Title VII plaintiff can establish a prima facie case with evidence sufficient to permit a finding of discrimination (a permissive inference). Furnco Construction, supra; McDonnell Douglas, supra.

where the proponent, having the burden of proving the issue (i.e., the risk of nonpersuasion of the jury), has not only removed by sufficient evidence the duty of producing evidence to get past the judge to the jury, but has gone further, and, either by means of a presumption or by a general mass of strong evidence, has entitled himself to a ruling that the opponent should fail if he does nothing more in the way of producing evidence.

9 Wigmore, Evidence, § 2494, p. 379 (1979 ed.) (emphasis added). Clearly a general mass of strong evidence is not the only manner of creating a mandatory inference; such a mandatory inference may also arise because of a presumption. This Court’s numerous decisions regarding the McDonnell Douglas prima facie case contain no reference to any “strong evidence” requirement.

Once a plaintiff has established a prima facie case, then he is entitled to a rebuttable presumption of discrimination. Id. The sole purpose of that presumption is to compel the employer to articulate a reason for the disputed action; once the employer has done so, the presumption disappears. St. Mary's Honor Center v. Hicks, 509 U.S. 502, 507, 125 L.Ed.2d 407, 113 S.Ct. 2742 (1993). Thus, because a showing of “strong evidence,” within the meaning of Wigmore § 2494, is not needed to get a Title VII case to a jury, it would be nonsensical to require proof at that elevated level merely to establish the preliminary step of a prima facie case.

2. Less evidence is required to establish a prima facie case under Batson than under Title VII

Title VII cases cannot be used against Petitioner. Less evidence is required to establish a prima facie case under Batson than under Title VII for several reasons.

(a) No presumption: Under Title VII, proof of a prima facie case creates a rebuttable presumption of discrimination. Furnco Construction Corp. v. Waters, supra. Under Batson, to the contrary, proof of a prima facie case merely requires the challenger to give reasons for his peremptory challenges. It does not create any presumption at all. Purkett v. Elem, supra, 514 U.S. at 768. For this reason, among others, the prima facie threshold and prima facie burden under Batson are, and need to be, substantially lower than that under Title VII, because the latter need to be strong enough to establish a presumption of discrimination, while the former do not.

(b) No discovery: In Swierkiewicz v. Sorema, 534 U.S. 506, 152 L.Ed. 1, 122 S.Ct. 992 (2002), the Court held that the district court complaint in a Title VII case need not allege enough facts to establish all four elements of a prima facie case under McDonnell Douglas. The Court held in Swierkiewicz, 534 U.S. at 511-512, that the imposition of such a heightened requirement at the pleading stage would be incongruous and premature, because the plaintiff would not yet have been able to use discovery to obtain the necessary evidence:

It thus seems incongruous to require a plaintiff, in order to survive a motion to dismiss, to plead more facts than he may ultimately need to prove to succeed on the merits if direct evidence of discrimination is discovered. . . . Before discovery has unearthed relevant facts and evidence, it may be difficult to define the precise formulation of the required prima facie case in a particular case. Given that the prima facie case operates as a flexible evidentiary standard, it should not be transposed into a rigid pleading standard for discrimination cases.

Swierkiewicz should apply here. The objector to a peremptory challenge, just like the Title VII pleader under Swierkiewicz, should not be required to state every possible evidentiary fact, or to show that discrimination is “more likely than not,” at the initial stage of his case to present a prima facie claim, because, until obtaining discovery, he is largely unable to state those facts.

(c) No investigation: When a Title VII plaintiff’s prima facie case is tested (such as on summary judgment), he will have his knowledge of his own job situation. He will have conducted investigation as well as discovery. He will have amassed files, if not boxes, full of information before being required to prove that his prima facie case is “more likely than not.” By contrast, all a Batson objector knows is the identity of the challenged jurors. He does not know the proffered reason why they were challenged, or why other jurors were retained. Because the quantities of proof available in these two types of cases are so different, it would be incongruous and illogical to require Batson objectors to prove their prima facie cases by the same quantum of evidence as required in Title VII.

II. THE LOWER COURTS' RELIANCE UPON CONJECTURAL JUSTIFICATIONS AT THE PRIMA FACIE STAGE VIOLATES THE RULE OF PURKETT V. ELEM THAT A PRIMA FACIE CASE IS TO BE EVALUATED WITH THE CHALLENGES "UNEXPLAINED"

A. No Conjectured Explanations Should Be Relied upon at the Prima Facie Stage

The Question Presented is whether, to establish a prima facie case, the objector must show "that it is more likely than not that the other party's peremptory challenges, if unexplained, were based upon impermissible group bias" (emphasis added) (Respondent's position), or whether the objector merely must adduce evidence sufficient to permit an inference that "the other party's peremptory challenges, if unexplained, were based upon impermissible group bias." (Petitioner's position) Either way, a prima facie case is to be established before the challenges are "explained."

California's Supreme Court disregards this principle. When a prima facie case is denied, the prosecutor does not give a reason for his challenge. Nonetheless, the California courts regularly allow the trial judge, the prosecution on appeal, and the appellate court to postulate hypothetical justifications for challenges in order to disprove a prima facie case, although, by definition, the prima facie case is to be evaluated before explanations are given.

Here, for example, when the trial court denied a prima facie case, it based that decision on speculation that possible race-neutral justifications for the challenge to

Sara Edwards were her father's arrest for robbery 30 or 35 years earlier, and her emotional reaction to the charges of child abuse. (Jt. App. 10) That court attached conclusive importance to its views that such circumstances "would have justified a peremptory challenge." (Jt. App. 9) Similarly, on appeal, the state attorney general and a dissenting judge on the intermediate appellate court speculated that possible justifications for Ms. Edwards' challenge were her failure to answer one out of 62 questions on her juror questionnaire, and that she was childless (supposedly making her less sympathetic to a child's death).²⁸ (Jt. App. 110-112) Overall, the prosecution on appeal hypothesized 15 such possible "permissible reasons" for the challenges to the black jurors. (See pp. 4-6, supra)

The state supreme court deemed such speculation proper – indeed, dispositive – when it held that, where a trial judge finds no prima facie case, affirmance on appeal is required "if the record suggests grounds on which the prosecutor might reasonably have challenged the jurors." Johnson, 30 Cal.4th at 1325. (Jt. App. 147) Petitioner disagrees. Such speculation is premature and improper at the prima facie stage.

(1) Consideration at the prima facie stage as to possible reasons for challenges wrongly conflates Batson's step one analysis (prima facie case) with step three (evaluation of the prosecutor's explanations and decision on the merits). This improper conflation, like that discussed at pp. 13-18, supra, violates Purkett v. Elem. It flouts the requirement of separate analysis at each of the three Batson steps. At step one the court decides whether the evidence relied upon by the objector is sufficient "if unexplained” to create a prima facie case. At step one the court is not to consider possible explanations offered by the prosecutor, hypothesized by appellate counsel, or conjured up by the court itself. “Unexplained” means just that – unexplained.

²⁸ Petitioner shows at pp. 45-46, infra, that each such speculative reason equally applied to multiple white jurors who were seated, which indicates that reliance upon any such reason would be pretextual.

(2) At step one, if the challenger states his reasons, the question of whether there is a prima facie case becomes moot, and the court proceeds to determine whether the asserted reason is race-neutral (step two), and whether the reason is valid and credible (step three). Hernandez v. New York, supra, 500 U.S. at 359 (plurality opinion), citing United States Postal Service Board v. Aikins, 460 U.S. 711, 715, 75 L.Ed.2d 403, 103 S.Ct. 1478 (1983) (a Title VII case)); Stubbs v. Gomez, supra, 189 F.3d at 1104. Because stated reasons move a case beyond the prima facie stage, postulated or speculative reasons, serving as a proxy for stated reasons, are similarly inapplicable at the prima facie stage.

(3) Batson only provides for consideration of the prosecutor’s actual reason, not for consideration of conjectured or “permissible” reasons. When there is no proof that the conjectured reasons reflect the prosecutor’s real motivation, they should not be relied upon, because they “cannot be mistaken for the actual reasons for a [peremptory] challenge.” Mahaffey v. Page, supra, 162 F.3d at 483-484, n. 1.

As Judge Kozinski held in Paulino v. Castro, 371 F.3d 1083, 1090 (9th Cir. 2004), “[I]t does not matter that the prosecutor might have had good reasons to strike the prospective jurors. What matters is the real reason they were stricken . . . [and] an actual explanation from the prosecutor.” Accord: Riley v. Taylor, 277 F.3d 261, 282 (3d Cir. 1999) (en banc) (“Apparent or potential reasons do not shed any light on the prosecutor’s intent or state of mind when making the peremptory challenge”); Bui v. Haley, 321 F.3d 1304, 1313-1316 (11th Cir. 2003) (reasons given at post-trial hearing why assistant prosecutor would have challenged jurors fail to satisfy Batson, because no showing that chief prosecutor actually relied upon those reasons). To say that certain facts about a juror could have supported a nondiscriminatory challenge cannot establish that those facts were actually relied upon by the challenger, or that race-neutral reasons were employed.

(4) Written speculation, after the fact, on appeal, as to possible justifications is not proper. Under Batson, once a prima facie case has been established, “the prosecutor must articulate a neutral explanation.” Batson, 476 U.S. at 98 (emphasis added). He must do so personally by a statement in open court. This Court has emphasized the importance of demeanor evidence in resolving Batson claims. Hernandez v. New York, 500 U.S. 352, 365, 114 L.Ed.2d 395, 111 S.Ct. 1859 (1991). Demeanor evidence would be unavailable if a prosecutor were permitted at step two to respond after the fact with a written explanation of his actions. Thus, the state’s burden may not be satisfied through written arguments by an appellate attorney²⁹ who may or may not have any personal knowledge of the reason for the peremptory challenge.³⁰ A fortiori a court cannot itself assume the prosecution’s burden and hypothesize possible explanatory motivations.

(5) When the trial court and the prosecution on appeal conjectured at the prima facie stage as to possible reasons, that effectively required Petitioner not simply to establish an inference of discrimination, but also to prove that there were no possible nondiscriminatory motives for the strikes. By obligating Petitioner to defend at the prima facie stage against an almost infinite number of known and unknown possible reasons, the court below imposed upon Petitioner a far greater burden at the prima facie stage than he would have had at the merits stage. For, at the merits stage, he would only need to address the limited number of reasons actually stated by the prosecution, not the entire universe of imaginable reasons.

²⁹ See Burdine, 450 U.S. at 255, n. 9 (defendant’s Title VII burden cannot be met “merely through an answer or by an argument of counsel.”)

³⁰ See Bui v. Haley, supra, 321 at 1313-1316 (rejecting explanation by co-counsel who had not made the decision to exercise the challenge.)

Batson did not intend that the objector's prima facie burden at step one be more onerous than his merits burden at step three. Batson did not intend that an objector lose a motion at the step one prima facie stage, simply because he cannot guess the reason upon which the prosecutor will later claim reliance, when the objector might win on the merits at step three, once he knows the prosecutor's claimed – and likely pretextual – reasons.

(6) The California court barred Petitioner on appeal from rebutting such conjectured reasons by pointing to evidence in the record that similar white jurors had not been challenged. People v. Johnson, 30 Cal.4th 1318 (Jt. App. 135) Such a ruling presents a double standard, and offends the Fifth Amendment's due process clause, because the bar to new arguments on appeal does not apply to the prosecution. Under current California procedure, (a) the state is regularly allowed, for the first time on appeal, to advance possible reasons for challenges (which were not presented at trial), but (b) the defense is not allowed to rebut those speculations, when it hears about them, years later, for the first time on appeal. This double standard allowing one side, but not the other, to raise new arguments on appeal, and not allowing the other side to respond, offends "the old adage about sauce and geese, which need not be given a citation." Midstate Co. v. Penna R. Co., 320 U.S. 356, 367, 64 S.Ct. 128 (1943).

It would be, and was, manifestly impossible for defense counsel at trial to adduce or point to comparative juror evidence to rebut the hypothetical reasons which were not advanced by the state's lawyer until two years later on appeal.

Under proper Batson procedure, once the prosecutor articulates a reason for a disputed peremptory (step two), the defendant at step three may try to establish pretext by showing that comparable white jurors had not been challenged. If so, that may show the claimed reason for the challenge is pretextual. Such comparative juror analysis is the law of the land. Miller-El v. Cockrell, supra, 123 S.Ct. at 1043-1044. Comparative juror analysis has been uniformly applied in all 12 federal circuits.³¹

Every equal protection claim asks whether similarly-situated individuals have been treated differently on the basis of a constitutionally protected classification. As the Court held in Texas Dep't of Community Affairs v. Burdine, supra, 450 U.S. at 258, "it is the plaintiff's task to demonstrate that similarly situated employees were not treated equally." This elementary principle applies in juror selection cases, too. Miller-El v. Cockrell, 123 S.Ct. at 1042-1044.

³¹ Caldwell v. Maloney, 159 F.3d 639, 653 (1st Cir. 1998); Jordan v. Lefevre, 206 F.3d 196, 201 (2d Cir. 2000); United States v. Alvarado, 923 F.2d 253, 256 (2nd Cir. 1991); Jones v. Ryan, 987 F.2d 960, 963 (3rd Cir. 1993); Howard v. Moore, 131 F.3d 399, 408 (4th Cir. 1997); Hicks v. Johnson, 186 F.3d 634, 637 (5th Cir. 1999); United States v. Hatchett, 918 F.2d 631, 636 (6th Cir. 1990); Henderson v. Walls, 296 F.3d 541, 548 (7th Cir. 2002); Mahaffey v. Page, supra; Coulter v. Gilmore, 155 F.3d 912, 921 (7th Cir. 1998); Ford v. Norris, 67 F.3d 162, 168 (8th Cir. 1995); Devose v. Norris, 53 F.3d 201 (8th Cir. 1995); McClain v. Prunty, 217 F.3d 1209, 1215, 1222 (9th Cir. 2000); United States v. Chalan, 812 F.2d 1302, 1314 (10th Cir. 1987); Hollingsworth v. Burton, 30 F.3d 109, 112 (11th Cir. 1994); United States v. Wynn, 20 F.Supp.2d 7, 13-15 (D.D.C. 1997).

However, the California Supreme Court, virtually alone among all state and federal jurisdictions, refuses to examine whether speculative reasons would also apply to white jurors who have been accepted. If so, that would constitute strong evidence that the claimed reasons for the challenge to the minority jurors are pretextual. Miller-El v. Cockrell, supra. The California courts' refusal to apply even that limited degree of scrutiny to speculative reasons violates due process and is contrary to Miller-El.³²

³² The California Supreme Court has given two alternative and somewhat inconsistent rationales for prohibiting defendants from arguing regarding comparable white jurors when the defense hears, for the first time, on appeal, the state's hypothesized reasons for the challenges to minority jurors. Both rationales violate Miller-El. (1) First, in cases decided both before and after the instant case, that court has categorically refused to allow, at any stage, comparative juror analysis when evaluating whether proffered reasons are pretextual. People v. (James) Johnson (1989) 47 Cal.3d 1194, 1216-1221 [255 Cal.Rptr. 569, 767 P.2d 1047]; People v. Arias (1996) 13 Cal.4th 92, 136, n. 16 [51 Cal.Rptr.2d 770, 913 P.2d 980]; People v. Reynoso (2003) 31 Cal.4th 903, 920 [3 Cal.Rptr.3d 769, 74 P.3d 852]. California stands alone in the nation in this refusal. (2) Second, the California court held here that, because comparative juror analysis was not used at trial, then it may not be utilized on appeal. People v. Johnson, 30 Cal.4th at 1319-1321. (Jt. App. 137-141)

These conclusions are wrong for several reasons: (a) They are contrary to Miller-El, which uses comparative juror analysis on appeal. Miller-El retroactively applies to the instant case. Griffith v. Kentucky, 479 U.S. 314, 93 L.Ed.2d 649, 107 S.Ct. 708 (1987). (b) Under federal law, comparative juror analysis may be used for the first time on appeal. United States v. Alanis, 335 F.3d 965, 969, n. 5 (9th Cir. 2003). (c) The claim that comparative juror analysis could have been used at Petitioner's trial in 1998 is inaccurate. For many years, as even the dissenting justice at the state Court of Appeal acknowledged, 88 Cal.App.4th 342-344 (Jt. App. 103-106), California barred comparative juror analysis from being used at any stage, including at trial. Thus, any attempt to use it at trial here would have been futile. See, e.g., People v. Arias, supra, 13 Cal.4th at 136, n. 16, where that court held:

Just as an appellate court will not compare the responses of rejected and accepted jurors to determine the bona fides of
(Continued on following page)

B. The Prosecution’s Conjectured Explanations Should Be Rejected as Pretextual, Because They Equally Apply to White Jurors Who Were Accepted

The California Court of Appeal found here, under comparative juror analysis, that every reason hypothesized to support the prosecutor’s challenges to two of the three black jurors (e.g., unanswered questions on juror questionnaires, family members with arrest history, childlessness) equally applied to multiple white jurors whom the prosecutor accepted. Thus, if arguendo, the prosecutor’s after-the-fact conjectured explanations may be examined, reliance on such explanations should be rejected as pretextual. Miller-El v. Cockrell, supra.

As to prospective juror Clodette Turner, the California Court of Appeal gave, as one of several examples of pretext, 88 Cal.App.4th at 333-334 (Jt. App. 80-81):

No basis other than race appears for the prosecutor’s peremptory challenge of Ms. T. . . . The fact that she left questions 57 and 58 blank cannot be credited as a valid justification in light of the fact that the same thing was done by white juror number 7 (questionnaire #50) who also explained he had no opinions on the subject of the justifications offered, so the trial court itself has no obligation to perform such an analysis. “[W]e fail to see how a trial judge can reasonably be expected to make such detailed comparison mid-trial.” (People v. Johnson, supra, 47 Cal.3d 1194, 1220.) Moreover, as we have indicated, such an analysis is largely beside the point, . . .

The instant opinion, which purports to allow comparative juror analysis on appeal, if only it were used at trial, presents an impossible-to-satisfy “Catch-22,” because the state courts bar any such analysis at trial.

those questions, and by white juror number 10 (questionnaire #89).³³

As to prospective juror Sara Edwards, the California Court of Appeal held, 88 Cal.App.4th 333-334 (Jt. App. 83) that any reliance upon the arrest of her father 35 years ago for robbery would be pretextual.

[T]he prosecutor failed to challenge several whites who served on the jury who themselves or whose families were much more recently the subject of criminal charges. Juror number 9's brother was arrested for battery on a police officer just three years earlier. The brother of alternate juror number 1 was arrested for statutory rape seven years earlier. . . . three other seated jurors had themselves been arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol or a related charge. . . .

Other examples of pretextual reasons for these challenges are at 88 Cal.App.4th 333-334. (Jt. App. 81-85)

Neither Respondent nor the California Supreme Court has ever rebutted the examples of pretext identified by the Court of Appeal. If comparative juror analysis were applied here, it would clearly establish a prima facie case of a Batson violation for these two black jurors.

³³ The dissenting Court of Appeal justice suggested one further possible reason, namely, Ms. Turner's childlessness. 88 Cal.App.4th at 347 (Jt. App. 112) This claim, too, fails under comparative juror analysis. The prosecution accepted four white jurors and one Hispanic juror who were similarly childless. (Juror #6, questionnaire 78; Juror #9, questionnaire 41; Juror #10, questionnaire 89; Juror #11, questionnaire 42; Juror #12, questionnaire 81).

III. A PRIMA FACIE CASE OF A BATSON VIOLATION IS SHOWN ON THIS RECORD

A. This Court Should Decide Whether There Is a Prima Facie Case Here

Petitioner requests that the Court resolve the question of whether the record establishes a prima facie case. It is six years since the Batson motion here. Additional delay in determining this issue will permit further deterioration of the memories of court and counsel regarding the voir dire in December, 1998. Should this Batson challenge ultimately be sustained, and a new trial be required, additional delay in resolving that challenge will further dim the witnesses' memories.

Resolution by this Court is also warranted to remove a misapprehension created by this Court's decision in Miller-El v. Cockrell, supra, 537 U.S. 322. In holding that no prima facie case existed here, the California Supreme Court stressed that the evidence in Miller-El was "far stronger than here." People v. Johnson, 30 Cal.4th at 1327. (Jt. App. 150) The particular circumstances of Miller-El were in several respects extraordinarily unique.³⁴ If the lower courts were to treat the facts of Miller-El as the paradigm of a prima facie case, Batson would be virtually a dead letter. The lower courts need guidance from this Court in the assessment of a prima facie case under less atypical circumstances.³⁵

³⁴ For example, the Texas jury shuffle procedure involved in Miller-El exists in few other states. The circular issued by the Dallas District Attorney's office, recommending that prosecutors avoid jurors of several ethnic groups, was withdrawn in 1976, a quarter century ago. Miller-El was tried in 1986, in a pre-Batson era when prosecutors openly engaged in discriminatory practices which they then believed lawful.

³⁵ The California Supreme Court asserted in the instant case that, compared to Miller-El, "the number of strikes is smaller, and thus
(Continued on following page)

B. A Prima Facie Case Is Established by the Fact that the Prosecutor Perempted All Three Black Jurors in this Racially-Charged Case

The facts here support an inference of intentional discrimination. The prosecution peremptorily challenged 100% of the black prospective jurors (3 of 3), but only 22% of the non-blacks (9 of 40). (Jt. App. 9-11, 13) The California Supreme Court correctly characterized this pattern as “indeed troubling,” noting that “it certainly looks suspicious that all three black prospective jurors were removed from the jury.” People v. Johnson, 30 Cal.4th at 1328. (Jt. App. 149) Nonetheless, that court held that such a pattern of challenges was “perhaps more explainable by happenstance.” Id., 30 Cal.4th at 1327 (Jt. App. 151)

It was quite unlikely that this 100% exclusion occurred by happenstance. The probability of such complete exclusion occurring by chance was approximately 1 in 87.³⁶

In Miller-El v. Cockrell, 123 S.Ct. at 1042, the Court held that a prima facie case may be shown by “statistical evidence alone.” The issue at the prima facie stage is neither the credibility of a racially-neutral explanation nor perhaps more explainable by happenstance.” People v. Johnson, 30 Cal.4th at 1327. (Jt. App. 151) In Miller-El the prosecution excused 3 of 31 non-African-American jurors (9.67%) and 10 of 11 African-Americans (90.9%). If the prosecution had excused all jurors at the 9.67% rate, the probability that 10 of the 11 African-American jurors would have been excused would have been less than one in a million (.0967¹¹). If that is the degree of unlikelihood needed to establish a prima facie case, it is unlikely that any other Batson challenge will ever succeed.

³⁶ The prosecution exercised peremptory challenges against 22.5% of the non-African-American jurors. The likelihood that the three African-American jurors (or any other three specific jurors) would be removed by peremptory challenge is $(.225) \times (.225) \times (.225) = .01139$. The inverse of .01139 is 87.8.

the ultimate question of bias, but merely the appearance of such bias as would call for an explanation. Striking all three black jurors clearly presents the appearance of bias, warranting an explanation. These facts alone should establish a prima facie case.

Further, the facts of this homicide were likely to inflame racial animus. Johnson was charged with killing his white girlfriend's child. His defense depended on his credibility. Even a prosecutor who harbored no personal animus towards black defendants might have thought that white jurors would be more likely to convict because of the race of the individuals involved. The state court acknowledged that these racial "circumstances are obviously highly relevant to whether a prima facie case existed." People v. Johnson, 30 Cal.4th at 1326. (Jt. App. 198)

Finally, even if the Court were to examine the personal characteristics of the challenged black jurors to look for obvious reasons for their challenges – a course of action which we contend is inappropriate at step one of the Batson analysis – none appear. No one at the trial court identified any problem whatsoever as to Clodette Turner. No one ever identified any factor as to Sara Edwards which did not equally apply to several white jurors who were accepted. For these reasons the Court should determine, consistent with the majority at the state Court of Appeal and the dissent at the state Supreme Court, that there was a prima facie Batson case.

CONCLUSION

Unjust convictions of African-American defendants by all-white juries have played a long and tragic role in the history of the American legal system.³⁷ The use of peremptory challenges to create an all-white jury is not always conclusive evidence of an invidious discriminatory scheme. But where an all-white jury has been created by the use of two or more peremptory challenges against black jurors (and here the prosecutor used three), the appearance of justice would be intolerably compromised if the court refused even to ask the prosecutor to explain that action.

Accordingly, Petitioner respectfully requests that the Court rule: (1) that California's standard for the inference needed to present a prima facie case of discrimination under Batson is incorrect; (2) that a prima facie case is presented on the record here; and (3) that the decision of the California Supreme Court should be reversed.

Respectfully submitted,

STEPHEN B. BEDRICK
Counsel of Record
 Attorney at Law
 1970 Broadway, Suite 1200
 Oakland, CA 94612
 (Phone): (510) 452-1900
 (Fax): (510) 452-1980

ERIC SCHNAPPER
 University of Washington
 School of Law
 P. O. Box 353020
 Seattle, WA 98195
 (Phone): (206) 616-3167
 (Fax): (206) 685-4469

Counsel for Petitioner

³⁷ See, e.g., Georgia v. McCollum, supra, 505 U.S. at 61, n. 1 (Thomas, J. concurring), noting frequent criticism of "all white juries."

APPENDIX
STATE AND FEDERAL DECISIONS
FINDING BATSON VIOLATIONS
JANUARY 1, 2002 TO MARCH 1, 2004

Berry v. State, 2004 WL 351050 at *8 (Md. App.) (unknown number of disputed peremptory challenges; one peremptory found to violate Batson; Batson violation found because the proffered explanation was “discredited”).

Besser v. Walsh, 2003 WL 22093477 at *26-*30 (S.D.N.Y.) (seven disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different race).

Bounds v. Taylor, 77 Fed. Appx. 99, 106-07, 2003 WL 22325312 (3d Cir. 2003) (one disputed peremptory challenge; Batson claim upheld because the explanation was based on a characterization of the challenged juror that was not supported by the record, and because the explanation was not “plausible”).

Brown v. State, 256 Ga. App. 209, 568 S.E. 2d 62, 63 (Ga. App. 2002) (one disputed peremptory challenge; Batson claim upheld because the proffered explanation was not race neutral).

Bui v. Haley, 321 F.3d 1304 (11th Cir. 2003) (eleven disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because attorney who proffered explanations for the disputed challenges lacked personal knowledge of the reasons for which a different attorney had exercised those challenges).

Commonwealth v. Maldonado, 439 Mass. 460, 788 N.E. 2d 968 (2003) (one disputed peremptory challenge; Batson claim upheld because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different race).

Collins v. Rice, 348 F.3d 1082 (9th Cir. 2003) (two disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the proffered explanation was not gender neutral, because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different race, and because the explanation was based on a characterization of the challenged juror that was not supported by the record).

Davey v. Lockheed Martin Corp., 301 F.3d 1204 (10th Cir. 2002) (three disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the explanation was based on a characterization of the challenged juror that was not supported by the record).

Davis v. State, 818 So. 2d 1260, 1262-65 (Miss. 2002) (one disputed peremptory challenge; Batson claim upheld because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different race).

Dorsey v. State, 2003 WL 22964719 (Fla. Sup. Ct.) (one disputed peremptory challenge; Batson claim upheld because the explanation was based on a characterization of the challenged juror that was not supported by the record).

Duran v. State, 2002 WL 15859 (Tex. App. 14th Dist.) (one disputed peremptory challenge; Batson claim upheld because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different race, and because the proffered explanation was not related to the parties or issue in the case).

Fleming v. State, 825 So. 2d 1027 (Fla. App. 1st Dist. 2002) (three disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different race and because challenger had challenged all three black prospective jurors).

Gaines v. State, 258 Ga. App. 902, 575 S.E. 2d 704 (2003) (at least four disputed peremptory challenges; reason for sustaining Batson claim not stated).

Gay v. State, 258 Ga. App. 634, 574 S.E. 2d 861 (2002) (thirteen disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different race).

Gibson v. State, 117 S.W. 2d 567 (Tex. Ct. App. 2003) (four disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different race, and because the circumstances relied on in the explanation actually favored the party that had challenged the juror).

Harrison v. State, 2003 WL 1949812 (Ala. Crim. App.) (two disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the explanation was based on a characterization of the challenged juror that was not supported by the record).

Holloway v. Horn, 355 F. 3d 707 (3d Cir. 2004) (eleven disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different race).

Jackson v. State, 832 So. 2d 579 (Miss. App. 2002) (eleven disputed peremptory challenges; attorney's statement that he wanted to "get down the line to some other jurors" did not constitute a race neutral reason).

Lancaster v. Adams, 324 F. 3d 423 (7th Cir. 2003) (one disputed peremptory challenge; Batson claim upheld because explanation was "pretextual").

Lansdale v. Hi-Health Supermart Corp., 54 Fed. Appx. 268, 2002 WL 31856113 (9th Cir. 2002) (three disputed peremptory challenges; reason for sustaining Batson claim not stated).

Lenoir v. State, 830 So. 2d 703 (Miss. App. 2002) (eight disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the explanation was based on a characterization of the challenged jurors that was not supported by the record).

Lewis v. Lewis, 321 F. 3d 824 (9th Cir. 2003) (one disputed peremptory challenge; Batson claim upheld because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different race, and because the explanation was based on a characterization of the challenged juror that was not supported by the record).

McCormick v. State, 2004 WL 350987 (Ind.) (one disputed peremptory challenge; Batson claim upheld because the proffered explanation was not race neutral).

Mills v. State, 813 So. 2d 688 (Miss. 2002) (three disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the proffered explanation was not related to the parties or issue in the case).

Montgomery v. State, 811 So. 2d 417 (Miss. 2002) (three disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the explanation was based on a characterization of the challenged juror that was not supported by the record and because the proffered explanation was not race neutral).

Murphy v. State, 2003 WL 22989233 (Miss. App.) (two disputed peremptory challenges; statement that attorney “just had a bad feeling about” disputed juror did not constitute a race neutral reason).

Paschal v. Flagstar Bank, 295 F.3d 565, 574 (6th Cir. 2002) (one disputed peremptory challenge; Batson claim upheld because the challenging party had failed to question the challenged juror about the problem of possible bias stated in the proffered explanation).

People v. Allen, 9 Cal. Rptr. 4th 374 (Cal. App. 1st Dist. 2004) (two disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the explanation was based on a characterization of the challenged juror that was not supported by the record).

People v. Alston, 307 A.D. 2d 1046, 763 N.Y.S. 2d 764 (App. Div. 2d Dept. 2003) (one disputed peremptory challenge; Batson claim upheld because explanation was “pretextual”).

People v. Armstrong, 2003 WL 22299824 (Mich. App. 2003) (“several” (apparently two) disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the proffered explanation was not race neutral (“I’m not going to excuse anything other than white people. That’s just my policy.”)).

People v. Battle, 308 A.D. 2d 597, 765 N.Y.S. 2d 251 (App. Div. 2d Dept. 2003) (two disputed peremptory challenges; prosecutor’s explanation insufficient because it “amounted to little more than a denial of discriminatory purpose.”).

People v. Burroughs, 744 N.Y.S. 2d 608 (App. Div. 4th Dept. 2002) (one disputed peremptory challenge; Batson claim upheld because the proffered explanation was not related to the parties or issue in the case and because the challenging party had failed to question the challenged juror about the problem of possible bias stated in the proffered explanation).

People v. Campos, 290 A.D. 2d 456, 738 N.Y.S. 2d 108 (App. Div. 2d Dept. 2002) (two disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the proffered explanation was not related to the parties or issue in the case).

People v. Chapman, 295 A.D. 2d 359, 744 N.Y.S. 2d 42 (App. Div. 2d Dept. 2002) (four disputed peremptory challenges (finding of prima facie case was based on the first three); Batson claim upheld because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different race and because the explanation was based on a characterization of the challenged juror that was not supported by the record).

People v. Chin, 771 N.Y.S. 2d 158 (App. Div. 2d Dept. 2004) (three disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because explanation was “pretextual”).

People v. Coleman, 292 A.D. 2d 461, 738 N.Y.S. 2d 877 (App. Div. 2d Dept. 2002) (one disputed peremptory challenge; Batson claim upheld because explanation was “pretextual”).

People v. Davis, 308 A.D. 2d 343, 674 N.Y.S. 2d 184 (App. Div. 1st Dept. 2003) (one disputed peremptory challenge; Batson claim upheld because the proffered explanation was not race neutral).

People v. Duarte, 300 A.D. 2d 159, 751 N.Y.S. 2d 734 (App. Div. 1st Dept. 2002) (one disputed peremptory challenge; Batson claim upheld because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different race or gender).

People v. Haggard, 332 Ill. App. 3d 46, 772 N.E. 2d 829 (Ill. App. 1st Dist. 2002) (five disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the explanation was based on a characterization of the challenged juror that was not supported by the record).

People v. Henry, 309 A.D. 2d 717, 766 N.Y.S. 2d 551 (App. Div. 1st Dept.) (one disputed peremptory challenge; statement in question by juror actually favored the party exercising the peremptory challenge against the juror).

People v. Jenkins, 302 A.D. 2d 247, 756 N.Y.S. 2d 151 (App. Div. 1st Dept. 2003) (three disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different race and because the explanation was based on a characterization of the challenged juror that was not supported by the record).

People v. Johnson, 196 Misc. 2d 417, 765 N.Y.S. 2d 199 (Sup. Ct. 2003) (three disputed peremptory challenges by defendant; six disputed peremptory challenges by prosecutor; Batson challenges for both sides upheld on ground that the explanations were “pretextual.”)

People v. Jones, 297 A.D. 2d 256, 746 N.Y.S. 2d 596 (App. Div. 1st Dept. 2002) (two disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different race).

People v. Lawson, 300 A.D. 319, 750 N.Y.S. 2d 777 (App. Div. 2d Dept. 2002) (one disputed peremptory challenge; Batson claim upheld because the explanation was either not racially neutral or was pretextual.)

People v. Leaym, 2003 WL 21079821 (Mich. App.) (one disputed peremptory challenge; Batson claim upheld because the explanation was based on a characterization of the challenged juror that was not supported by the record).

People v. Lozado, 303 A.D. 2d 270, 755 N.Y.S. 2d 611 (App. Div. 1st Dept. 2003) (three disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different race).

People v. Miller, 298 A.D. 2d 194, 748 N.Y.S. 2d 50 (App. Div. 1st Dept. 2002) (unknown number of disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different race).

People v. Muhammad, 108 Cal. App. 4th 313, 133 Cal. Rptr. 308 (Cal. App. 2d Dist. 2003) (at least six disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the trial court found the proffered reasons were pretextual because they were “intended to disguise the actual reason for peremptory challenges: group bias.”)

People v. Pacheco, 308 A.D. 2d 403, 764 N.Y.S. 2d 426 (App. Div. 1st Dept. 2003) (unknown number of disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because explanation was “pretextual”).

People v. Ramirez, 751 N.Y.S. 2d 248, 298 A.D. 413 (App. Div. 2d Dept. 2002) (one disputed peremptory challenge; defense counsel had used 11 of his 15 peremptory challenges against white jurors; Batson claim upheld because explanation was “pretextual”).

People v. Sanford, 297 A.D. 2d 759, 747 N.Y.S. 2d 789 (App. Div. 2d Dept. 2002) (two disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different race).

People v. Silva, 25 Cal. 4th 345, 106 Cal. Rptr. 93, 21 P. 3d 769 (2001) (at least five disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the explanation was based on a characterization of the challenged juror that was not supported by the record).

People v. Van Hoesen, 307 A.D. 2d 376, 761 N.Y.S.2d 404 (App. Div. 3d Dept. 2003) (four disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the proffered explanation was not race-neutral).

People v. Wesley, 2002 WL 1065567 (Cal. App. 2 Dist.) (five disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the challenging party had failed to question the challenged juror about the problem of possible bias stated in the proffered explanation, because one explanation concerned a statement by the juror that favored the challenging party, and because of racial pattern of challenges).

People v. Willis, 27 Cal. 4th 811, 43 P. 3d 130, 118 Cal. Rptr. 301 (2002) (fifteen disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld in part because challenger appeared to have engaged in “systematic” exclusion of whites).

Pryor v. Commonwealth, 2003 WL 21241881 (Ky. App.) (three disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because explanation was “pretextual”).

Rodriguez v. Schriver, 2003 WL 22671461 (S.D.N.Y. 2003) (three disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the proffered explanation was not national origin neutral and because the explanation was based on a characterization of the challenged juror that was not supported by the record).

Shelton v. State, 257 Ga. App. 890, 572 S.E.2d 401 (Ga. App. 2002) (three disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different race and because the proffered explanation was not related to the parties or issue in the case).

Silas v. State, 847 So. 2d 899 (Miss. App. 2002) (five disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different race).

State ex rel. Ballard v. Painter, 213 W.Va. 290, 582 S.E. 2d 737 (2003) (one disputed peremptory challenge; Batson claim upheld because the explanation was based on a characterization of the challenged juror that was not supported by the record).

State v. Chatwin, 58 P. 3d 867, 2002 UT App. 363 (Utah App. 2002) (one disputed peremptory challenge; Batson claim upheld because explanation for challenge to sole minority juror was not gender neutral.)

State v. Dunn, 831 So. 2d 862 (La. 2002) (eight disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the explanation was based on a characterization of the challenged juror that was not supported by the record).

State v. Harris, 820 So. 2d 471 (La. 2002) (two disputed peremptory challenges) (Batson claim upheld because the proffered explanation was not race neutral, because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different race, because the challenging party had failed to question the challenged juror about the problem of possible bias stated in the proffered explanation, and because the explanation was based on a fact about the challenged juror that actually favored the party utilizing the challenge).

State v. Heckenlively, 83 S.W. 3d 560 (Mo. App. 2002) (five disputed peremptory challenges) (Batson claim upheld because the explanation was based on a characterization of the challenged juror that was not supported by the record and because of pattern of juror strikes).

State v. Jensen, 76 P. 3d 188 (Utah 2003) (two disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the proffered explanation was not gender neutral and because the challenging party had failed to question the challenged juror about the problem of possible bias stated in the proffered explanation).

State v. Lewis, 354 S.C. 222, 580 S.E. 2d 149 (S.C.App. 2003) (unknown number of disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the proffered explanation was not gender neutral).

State v. Marlowe, 89 S.W. 2d 464 (Mo. 2002) (one disputed peremptory challenge; Batson claim upheld because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different race and because the proffered explanation was not related to the parties or issue in the case).

State v. Shepherd, 839 So. 2d 1103 (La. App. 3 Cir. 2003) (five disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the proffered explanation was not related to the parties or issue in the case).

State v. Stewart, 2004 WL 135317 (La. App. 5 Cir.) (two disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different race and because the explanation was based on a characterization of the challenged juror that was not supported by the record).

State v. Wade, 832 So. 2d 977 (La. App. 2 Cir. 2002) (seven disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different race).

State v. Walker, 2002 WL 834179 (Ohio App. 1 Dist.) (one disputed peremptory challenge; Batson claim upheld because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different race).

State v. White, 859 So. 2d 751 (La.App. 2 Cir. 2003) (six disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different race).

United States v. Ajayi, 67 Fed. Appx. 63, 2003 WL 21369262 (2d Cir.) (two disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because trial court concluded that the proffered explanations were not “credible reasons.”)

United States v. Alanis, 335 F. 3d 965 (9th Cir. 2003) (six disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different gender).

United States v. Bennett, 74 Fed. Appx. 201, 2003 WL 22048029 (3d Cir.) (nine disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because trial judge rejected explanation as “farcical”).

United States v. Chinnery, 68 Fed. Appx. 360, 2003 WL 21469342 (3d Cir.) (four disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because challenger was unable to articulate race-neutral reason for two disputed challenges).

United States v. Wellington, 82 Fed. Appx. 828, 2003 WL 22952603 (4th Cir.) (four disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because explanation was “pretextual”).

U.S. Xpress Enterprises, Inc. v. J.B.Hunt Transport, Inc., 320 F. 3d 809 (8th Cir. 2003) (one disputed peremptory challenge; Batson claim upheld because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different race).

Walters v. Mitchell, 2002 WL 1751400 (E.D.N.Y.) (four disputed plaintiff peremptory challenges; five disputed defense peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different race, and because the challenging party had failed to question the challenged juror about the problem of possible bias stated in the proffered explanation).

Warwick v. Kuhlmann, 2003 WL 22047883 (S.D.N.Y.) (unknown number of disputed peremptory challenges; reason for sustaining Batson claim not stated).

Webb v. State, 2003 WL 22006006 (Miss. App.) (one disputed peremptory challenge; reason for sustaining Batson claim not stated).

Weddell v. Weber, 290 F.Supp. 2d 1011 (D.S.D. 2003) (one disputed peremptory challenge; prosecutor's statement that he just had a "gut feeling" that he did not want the juror was insufficient to satisfy the prosecution's burden at stage two).

White v. State, 257 Ga. App. 723, 572 S.E. 2d 70 (Ga. App. 2002) (twelve disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because the criterion for the challenge articulated in the explanation had not been applied equally to comparable jurors of different race).

Wilson v. State, 798 A. 2d 1042 (Del. 2002) (two disputed peremptory challenges; Batson claim upheld because explanation was "pretextual").
