THE CIRCUMSTANCES REQUIRING SUPPLEMENTAL BRIEFING

After Respondents filed and served their merits brief, on February 17, 2005, Congress passed The Class Action Fairness Act of 2005, Public Law No. 109-002 (the “Act”), which creates federal subject matter jurisdiction over multi-state class actions in which the aggregate amount in controversy exceeds $5 million. The following day, the President signed the Act into law. The Act is applicable to all class actions filed after its enactment date. The text of the Act is appended hereto.¹

RELEVANCE OF THE ACT TO THE QUESTION PRESENTED

Exxon’s principal argument is that the plain wording of 28 U.S.C. § 1367 does not mean what it says because it is inconceivable that Congress could have intended to expand federal diversity jurisdiction over class actions by overruling Zahn. Congress’ passage of the Act, which further extends federal jurisdiction beyond the limited expansion resulting from § 1367, completely negates this central premise of Exxon’s entire appeal.

Not only do the reasons expressed by Congress in adopting the Act serve to demonstrate the limited practical impact that § 1367’s overruling of Zahn has actually had on federal court caseloads, passage of the Act demonstrates that Exxon’s presumption of Congressional antipathy towards diversity jurisdiction over class actions is completely unfounded.

1. The appended text of the Act was obtained from the bill, S. 5, as engrossed as passed by the Senate, which is available on the active legislation list on the Senate’s website at www.senate.gov.

In addition, even if Exxon were to prevail on the question presented, the passage of the Act, combined with the tolling provisions of § 1367(d), will enable dismissed class members to file a new class action in federal court, as the lesser class members are citizens of at least 35 different states and their claims in the aggregate are substantially greater than $5 million. The result would be the same even were Exxon to obtain the relief sought in its Brief (but not in the question presented) – dismissal of the entire action – because the dismissed case could simply be re-filed in federal court under the Act.

Thus, all that is left of Exxon’s petition is a procedural gambit to obtain a new trial and further delay final resolution of this fourteen year old, twice- tried case in which the claims administration process must still be traversed.

1. The Limited Practical Impact on Federal Diversity Jurisdiction That has Resulted from the Overruling of Zahn

Enactment of the Act demonstrates that Exxon has vastly overstated the practical significance of § 1367’s overruling of Zahn in the federal court system. In its merits brief, Exxon argues that:

[T]he Eleventh Circuit’s interpretation would result in the litigation of virtually all diversity-based class actions in federal court, in contravention of Congress’ express intent. [Exxon Br. at12]

The Eleventh Circuit’s interpretation of § 1367 would substantially increase the scope of diversity jurisdiction. In nearly all cases, one of the parties would prefer a federal forum, with the consequence that where a class representative or plaintiff in a multi-plaintiff case satisfies § 1332, that case will end up in federal court. [Exxon Br. at 32]

In fact, Congress passed the Act precisely because it determined such arguments are untrue. In the extensive Senate and House Committee Reports on the substantially identical bills that immediately preceded those passed, S.R. Rep. No. 108-123 at n. 22-40, 2003 WL 21811251; H.R. Rep. No. 108-144 (2003), 2003 WL 21321526, Congress found that the determination of six of the courts of appeal that § 1367 had overruled Zahn had not materially impacted the filing or removal of diversity class actions in federal court. Id. Instead, Congress concluded that class action plaintiff lawyers have typically “gamed the system” to avoid supplemental jurisdiction over diversity based class actions by filing their claims in preferred state courts, and, to prevent removal to federal court, framed their pleadings in a manner to avoid creating the original federal subject matter jurisdiction from which supplemental jurisdiction could attach. *Id.*²

Thus, it is clear that in abrogating the “no coattails” rule of Zahn, § 1367 resulted in only a limited expansion of federal diversity jurisdiction. See Zahn v. International Paper Co., 414 U.S. 291 (1973) (stating rule “one plaintiff may not

2. Exxon has also publicly advanced the view that plaintiff lawyers who bring large multi-state class actions in state court are “gaming the system.” At the same time, in this case, Exxon claims that Plaintiffs have chosen the wrong forum. If there are games being played here, it is Exxon’s continued procedural machinations intended to delay conclusion of this case.

ride in on another's coattails"). The fundamentally more important precedent restricting federal jurisdiction over diversity class actions was not Zahn, but its predecessor, Snyder v. Harris, 394 U.S. 332 (1969), which prohibited aggregation of individual class member claims for purposes of satisfying the amount in controversy requirement of the diversity statute. In adopting the Act, Congress has expressly permitted the aggregation Snyder prohibited. Act, Section 4, amended subsection (d)(6) to 28 U.S.C. § 1332.

2. Congress Has Dispelled the Notion of its Supposed Antipathy Toward Diversity Jurisdiction

Congress' adoption of the Act also lays to rest Exxon's assertion that § 1367 cannot be read to mean what it says because of Congress' supposed antipathy to diversity jurisdiction:

This Court has pointed to Congress's consistent choice to cut back on federal diversity jurisdiction . . . [Exxon Br. at 4];

For decades, Congress has repeatedly limited the federal court's diversity jurisdiction and approved this Court's narrow construction of § 1332. [Exxon Br. at 12];

For more than a century, Congress has acted to narrow the scope of diversity jurisdiction. See Snyder, 394 U.S. at 339. Congress has done so by raising the minimum-amount requirement periodically, and by accepting the Court's restrictive interpretation of § 1332. [Exxon Br. at 31]³

[T]he supplemental jurisdiction statute was enacted in response to a perceived threat to federal-question jurisdiction. Congress acted only after Finley altered the rules of pendent jurisdiction in a way that threatened severely to limit federal-court adjudication of federal claims, and Congress sought only to restore and codify the rules as they existed before Finley.⁴ [Exxon Rep. Br. at 11]

3. Upon examination, the evidence of supposed Congressional disfavor of diversity jurisdiction relied upon by Exxon is limited to (1) Congress' periodic increase of the amount in controversy requirement, and (2) Congress' failure to take contrary action when federal courts have narrowly construed the diversity statute. But the former presumes without support that periodic increases to the amount in controversy requirement were something other than gross adjustments for inflation over many intervening years, and the latter presumes knowledge on the part of Congress, pre-Finley, that it had the exclusive power to create or alter the jurisdiction of the federal courts.

4. The misconceived notion that § 1367 "restored" the pre-Finley rules of pendent party jurisdiction actually contradicts Finley, which held that pendent jurisdiction could not be judicially created.

Indeed, it has been questioned whether there is a continuing need for diversity jurisdiction.⁵ [Exxon Rep. Br. at 11]

Exxon's arguments stand in sharp contrast to the express "Findings and Purposes" set forth in Section 2 of the Act:

(a) FINDINGS – Congress finds the following:

(1) Class action lawsuits are an important and valuable part of the legal system when they permit the fair and efficient resolution of legitimate claims of numerous parties by allowing the claims to be aggregated into a single action against a defendant that has allegedly caused harm.

* * *

(4) Abuses in class actions undermine the national judicial system, the free flow of interstate commerce, and the concept of diversity jurisdiction as intended by the framers of the United States Constitution, in that State and local courts are –

(A) keeping cases of national importance out of Federal court;

(b) PURPOSES – The purposes of this Act are to–

(1) assure fair and prompt recoveries for class members with legitimate claims;

5. Exxon's Reply Brief containing this statement was filed on the very day the Congress passed the Act.

(2) restore the intent of the framers of the United States Constitution by providing for Federal court consideration of interstate cases of national importance under diversity jurisdiction;
(emphasis added).

In short, far from showing a disinclination to confer diversity jurisdiction, it is quite apparent that, once this Court announced in Finley that judicial tinkering with the scope of federal subject matter jurisdiction would no longer be countenanced, Congress has fully embraced the public policy considerations that led to the creation of diversity jurisdiction in the Constitution.

3. As a Result of the Act, Federal Jurisdiction Would be Available in this Case Even if Exxon Prevails on the Question Presented

If the Court were to rule that the district court lacks jurisdiction over the subclass made up of the lesser claimants, the district court would proceed with the provisionally established process of sorting the jurisdictionally sufficient claims from the lesser claims. Pet. App. at 150a. Once identified and dismissed, the lesser class members would be entitled to re-file their claims pursuant to the tolling provisions of § 1367(d).

Because the aggregate amount of the lesser claims is substantially in excess of $5 million, the dismissed claimants would have a number of options including: (1) simply re-filing in federal court pursuant to the jurisdiction provided by the Act, (2) filing one or more class action(s) in state courts (which would be subject to removal by Exxon under Section 5 of the Act), (3) filing individual actions in state or federal courts, or (4) some combination of all three alternatives. The opt outs from any new class actions could also elect to proceed individually in state court. Unless a non-diverse defendant is joined in any individual claims filed in state court, those claims would also likely be removed to the federal court.

Under any of these permutations, Exxon's liability as established in this action would be subject to summary adjudication by operation of collateral estoppel. In addition, by virtue of this case's exposure of the egregiousness of Exxon's bad faith pricing scheme used to run thousands of dealers out of business without exercising PMPA rights, Exxon would be subject to further potential liability on additional state and federal claims, including state law claims for punitive damages.

CONCLUSION

Congress expressly emphasized in the Act its desire to “assure fair and prompt recoveries for class members with legitimate claims.” Act, Section 2(a)(1). Plaintiffs filed this action in the proper forum pursuant to the supplemental jurisdiction statute and Exxon’s ongoing efforts to frustrate that policy through further delay in the final resolution of this case should be denied.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.

(a) FINDINGS- Congress finds the following:

(1) Class action lawsuits are an important and valuable part of the legal system when they permit the fair and efficient resolution of legitimate claims of numerous parties by allowing the claims to be aggregated into a single action against a defendant that has allegedly caused harm.

Appendix

(2) Over the past decade, there have been abuses of the class action device that have—

(A) harmed class members with legitimate claims and defendants that have acted responsibly;

(B) adversely affected interstate commerce; and

(C) undermined public respect for our judicial system.

(3) Class members often receive little or no benefit from class actions, and are sometimes harmed, such as where—

(A) counsel are awarded large fees, while leaving class members with coupons or other awards of little or no value;

(B) unjustified awards are made to certain plaintiffs at the expense of other class members; and

(C) confusing notices are published that prevent class members from being able to fully understand and effectively exercise their rights.

(4) Abuses in class actions undermine the national judicial system, the free flow of interstate commerce, and the concept of diversity jurisdiction as intended by the framers of the United States Constitution, in that State and local courts are—

Appendix

(A) keeping cases of national importance out of Federal court;

(B) sometimes acting in ways that demonstrate bias against out-of-State defendants; and

(C) making judgments that impose their view of the law on other States and bind the rights of the residents of those States.

(b) PURPOSES- The purposes of this Act are to—

(1) assure fair and prompt recoveries for class members with legitimate claims;

(2) restore the intent of the framers of the United States Constitution by providing for Federal court consideration of interstate cases of national importance under diversity jurisdiction; and

(3) benefit society by encouraging innovation and lowering consumer prices.

‘(a) CONTINGENT FEES IN COUPON SETTLEMENTS- If a proposed settlement in a class action provides for a recovery of coupons to a class member, the portion of any attorney’s fee award to class counsel that is attributable to the award of the coupons shall be based on the value to class members of the coupons that are redeemed.

Appendix

‘(b) OTHER ATTORNEY’S FEE AWARDS IN COUPON SETTLEMENTS-

‘(1) IN GENERAL- If a proposed settlement in a class action provides for a recovery of coupons to class members, and a portion of the recovery of the coupons is not used to determine the attorney’s fee to be paid to class counsel, any attorney’s fee award shall be based upon the amount of time class counsel reasonably expended working on the action.

‘(2) COURT APPROVAL- Any attorney’s fee under this subsection shall be subject to approval by the court and shall include an appropriate attorney’s fee, if any, for obtaining equitable relief, including an injunction, if applicable. ‘(e) JUDICIAL SCRUTINY OF COUPON SETTLEMENTS- In a proposed settlement under which class members would be awarded coupons, the court may approve the proposed settlement only after a hearing to determine whether, and making a written finding that, the settlement is fair, reasonable, and adequate for class members. The court, in its discretion, may also require that a proposed settlement agreement provide for the distribution of a portion of the value of unclaimed coupons to 1 or more charitable or governmental organizations, as agreed to by the parties. The distribution and redemption of any proceeds under this subsection shall not be used to calculate attorneys’ fees under this section.

‘Sec. 1713. Protection against loss by class members

‘Sec. 1714. Protection against discrimination based on geographic location

‘The court may not approve a proposed settlement that provides for the payment of greater sums to some class members than to others solely on the basis that the class members to whom the greater sums are to be paid are located in closer geographic proximity to the court.

‘(a) DEFINITIONS-

‘(1) APPROPRIATE FEDERAL OFFICIAL-
In this section, the term ‘appropriate Federal official’ means—

If there is no primary regulator, supervisor, or licensing authority, or the matters alleged in the class action are not subject to regulation or supervision by that person, then the appropriate State official shall be the State attorney general.

‘(b) IN GENERAL- Not later than 10 days after a proposed settlement of a class action is filed in court, each defendant that is participating in the proposed settlement shall serve upon the appropriate State official of each State in which a class member resides and the appropriate Federal official, a notice of the proposed settlement consisting of—

‘(1) a copy of the complaint and any materials filed with the complaint and any amended complaints (except such materials shall not be required to be served if such materials are made electronically available through the Internet and such service includes notice of how to electronically access such material);

‘(2) notice of any scheduled judicial hearing in the class action;

‘(3) any proposed or final notification to class members of—

‘(8) any written judicial opinion relating to the materials described under subparagraphs (3) through (6).

‘(c) DEPOSITORY INSTITUTIONS NOTIFICATION-

‘(1) FEDERAL AND OTHER DEPOSITORY INSTITUTIONS- In any case in which the defendant is a Federal depository institution, a depository institution holding company, a foreign bank, or a non-depository institution subsidiary of the foregoing, the notice requirements of this section are satisfied by serving the notice required under subsection (b) upon the person who has the primary Federal regulatory or supervisory responsibility with respect to the defendant, if some or all of the matters alleged in the class action are subject to regulation or supervision by that person.

‘(2) STATE DEPOSITORY INSTITUTIONS- In any case in which the defendant is a State depository institution (as that term is defined in section 3 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (12 U.S.C. 1813)), the notice requirements of this section are satisfied by serving the notice required under subsection (b) upon the State bank supervisor (as that term is defined in section 3 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (12 U.S.C. 1813)) of the State in which the defendant is incorporated or chartered, if some or all of the matters alleged in the class action are subject to regulation or supervision by that person, and upon the appropriate Federal official.

‘(e) NONCOMPLIANCE IF NOTICE NOT PROVIDED-

‘(1) IN GENERAL- A class member may refuse to comply with and may choose not to be bound by a settlement agreement or consent decree in a class action if the class member demonstrates that the notice required under subsection (b) has not been provided.

‘(2) LIMITATION- A class member may not refuse to comply with or to be bound by a settlement agreement or consent decree under paragraph (1) if the notice required under subsection (b) was directed to the appropriate Federal official and to either the State attorney general or the person that has primary regulatory, supervisory, or licensing authority over the defendant.

‘(3) APPLICATION OF RIGHTS- The rights created by this subsection shall apply only to class members or any person acting on a class member’s behalf, and shall not be construed to limit any other rights affecting a class member’s participation in the settlement.

‘(f) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION- Nothing in this section shall be construed to expand the authority of, or impose any obligations, duties, or responsibilities upon, Federal or State officials.’.

(b) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENT- The table of chapters for part V is amended by inserting after the item relating to chapter 113 the following:

1711’.

SEC. 4. FEDERAL DISTRICT COURT JURISDICTION FOR INTERSTATE CLASS ACTIONS.

1. (a) APPLICATION OF FEDERAL DIVERSITY JURISDICTION- Section 1332 is amended—

(1) by redesignating subsection (d) as subsection (e); and

(2) by inserting after subsection (c) the following:

Appendix

‘(d)(1) In this subsection—

‘(A) the term ‘class’ means all of the class members in a class action;

‘(B) the term ‘class action’ means any civil action filed under rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure or similar State statute or rule of judicial procedure authorizing an action to be brought by 1 or more representative persons as a class action;

‘(D) the term ‘class members’ means the persons (named or unnamed) who fall within the definition of the proposed or certified class in a class action.

‘(2) The district courts shall have original jurisdiction of any civil action in which the matter in controversy exceeds the sum or value of $5,000,000, exclusive of interest and costs, and is a class action in which—

‘(A) any member of a class of plaintiffs is a citizen of a State different from any defendant;

‘(B) any member of a class of plaintiffs is a foreign state or a citizen or subject of a foreign state and any defendant is a citizen of a State; or

Appendix

‘(C) any member of a class of plaintiffs is a citizen of a State and any defendant is a foreign state or a citizen or subject of a foreign state.

‘(3) A district court may, in the interests of justice and looking at the totality of the circumstances, decline to exercise jurisdiction under paragraph (2) over a class action in which greater than one-third but less than two-thirds of the members of all proposed plaintiff classes in the aggregate and the primary defendants are citizens of the State in which the action was originally filed based on consideration of—

‘(A) whether the claims asserted involve matters of national or interstate interest;

‘(B) whether the claims asserted will be governed by laws of the State in which the action was originally filed or by the laws of other States;

‘(C) whether the class action has been pleaded in a manner that seeks to avoid Federal jurisdiction;

‘(D) whether the action was brought in a forum with a distinct nexus with the class members, the alleged harm, or the defendants;

‘(E) whether the number of citizens of the State in which the action was originally filed in all proposed plaintiff classes in the aggregate is substantially larger than the number of citizens from any other State, and the citizenship of the other members of the proposed class is dispersed among a substantial number of States; and

‘(4) A district court shall decline to exercise jurisdiction under paragraph (2)—

‘(A)(i) over a class action in which—

‘(I) greater than two-thirds of the members of all proposed plaintiff classes in the aggregate are citizens of the State in which the action was originally filed;

‘(II) at least 1 defendant is a defendant—

‘(aa) from whom significant relief is sought by members of the plaintiff class;

‘(bb) whose alleged conduct forms a significant basis for the claims asserted by the proposed plaintiff class; and

‘(cc) who is a citizen of the State in which the action was originally filed; and

‘(III) principal injuries resulting from the alleged conduct or any related conduct of each defendant were incurred in the State in which the action was originally filed; and

Appendix

‘(ii) during the 3-year period preceding the filing of that class action, no other class action has been filed asserting the same or similar factual allegations against any of the defendants on behalf of the same or other persons; or

‘(B) two-thirds or more of the members of all proposed plaintiff classes in the aggregate, and the primary defendants, are citizens of the State in which the action was originally filed.

‘(5) Paragraphs (2) through (4) shall not apply to any class action in which—

‘(A) the primary defendants are States, State officials, or other governmental entities against whom the district court may be foreclosed from ordering relief; or

‘(B) the number of members of all proposed plaintiff classes in the aggregate is less than 100.

‘(6) In any class action, the claims of the individual class members shall be aggregated to determine whether the matter in controversy exceeds the sum or value of $5,000,000, exclusive of interest and costs.

‘(7) Citizenship of the members of the proposed plaintiff classes shall be determined for purposes of paragraphs (2) through (6) as of the date of filing of the complaint or amended complaint, or, if the case stated by the initial pleading is not subject to Federal jurisdiction, as of the date of service by plaintiffs of an amended pleading, motion, or other paper, indicating the existence of Federal jurisdiction.

‘(8) This subsection shall apply to any class action before or after the entry of a class certification order by the court with respect to that action.

‘(9) Paragraph (2) shall not apply to any class action that solely involves a claim—

‘(A) concerning a covered security as defined under 16(f)(3) of the Securities Act of 1933 (15 U.S.C. 78p(f)(3)) and section 28(f)(5)(E) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78bb(f)(5)(E));
